48th Annual Dixie National Livestock Show and Rodeo

By Donna West

Winter in the south; sometimes cold, mostly cool, but at times, it's downright warm. Rainy days are common, and on rare occasions, it snows, but many days dawn clear, bright, and glorious. Still, January and February can sometimes feel drab, dreary, and long. The fun and excitement of the holidays have come and gone, and the rejuvenating spring months seem far away.

Yet, here in Mississippi, January and February are two of the most eagerly anticipated months of the year. Why? Well, it's Dixie National time, of course! Adventure, amazing competition, and standout entertainment, packed into three and a half of the best weeks of the New Year, bring thousands of people donned in denim, buckles, and boots to the capital city of Jackson each year.

Beginning January 26, a cavalcade of covered wagons, horses, cowboys, and cowgirls of all ages will come together to once again make this year's Dixie National Livestock Show and Rodeo the biggest and best event in the south. All events take place on the Mississippi State Fairgrounds in Jackson and conclude on February 17. A complete schedule of events can be found on pages 18 and 19.

For 48 years, the Dixie National has continued to grow and evolve, and now ranks as the largest of its kind east of the Mississippi. One of the most enduring and notable assemblages during this event is the Junior Livestock Show, the largest in the state. The Dixie National is the showcase for the 4-H and FFA livestock programs and livestock industry. At the five district shows each year, hundreds of FFA and 4-H members show their market animals, with only the best making the Mississippi Junior Roundup at the Dixie National. The grand finale and the most inspiring part of the show every year is the Sale of Junior Champions, which will be held on February 7. For 43 years, the Sale of Junior Champions has meant a great deal to the Mississippi livestock program. The first sale in 1970 grossed approximately $7,600; since then the sales have totaled $4.8 million. Last year's Sale of Junior Champions was the most significant to date, bringing in almost $300,000.

In 2012, nearly 1,600 4-H and FFA members exhibited more than 2,300 head of livestock at the Dixie National, the most in at least a decade, according to the Mississippi State University Agricultural Extension Service. In addition, thirty-five scholarships totaling $51,500 were awarded by the Sales Committee. "The great thing about all of these events for our young people is that they bring in youth from all 82 counties of the state," said Commissioner of Agriculture and Commerce Cindy Hyde-Smith. "It's also a wonderful opportunity to meet other participants across Mississippi and build lifetime relationships."

Of course, there is so much more to the 2013 Dixie National Livestock Show and Rodeo. Other events include the Dixie National Rodeo Dance, the Dixie National Queen Pageant, the Equine Expo, Farm Expo, and Farriers Competition. Don't miss the Beef Cooking Demonstration with Chef Luis Bruno, or the FFA Tractor Driving Contest. A variety of other livestock shows, expos, and competitions are offered as well.

The fun and excitement of the Rodeo begins on February 7 and continues through February 13. The best of Smith, Harper, and Morgan rodeo stock will be on display as cowboys and cowgirls compete for the win and the ultimate gold buckle. Special entertainers are featured each day of the rodeo, and kicking off this year's line-up is Easton Corbin; also appearing are Joe Nichols, Dustin Lynch, Loretta Lynn, Kip Moore, Justin Moore, and the band Gloriana.

Don't fail to catch the Dixie National Wagon Train as it arrives at the fairgrounds in all of its glory on February 7 and 8. And the always entertaining Dixie National Parade, set for Saturday, February 9, has a new start time, as well as a change in the route. Getting under way at 10:30 a.m., the parade procession includes an array of car clubs, floats, motorcycles, marching groups, horses, wagons, riding clubs, beauty queens, and so much more. A map of the new parade route can be found on page 30.

If you are looking for something good to eat that is both hot and free, stop by the Mississippi Farmers Market on February 10 from 8:00 a.m. until 10:00 a.m. for the annual Dixie National Rodeo breakfast of pancakes and sausage. "Last year nearly 80,000 people attended the Dixie National Livestock Show and Rodeo," said Director of the Mississippi Fair Commission, Billy Orr. "The boost to the local economy is huge with millions of dollars being spent on food, hotel rooms, and other retail establishments."

Adds Commissioner Hyde-Smith, "The Dixie National celebrates so much of what is important to us here in Mississippi, so come on down to the Fairgrounds and have a wonderful time."

From Our Kitchen To Yours

Riding the Trails & Camp Fire Favorites...

FROSTY MORNING TRAIL MIX

- 1 dark chocolate bar, broken
- 1 cup walnut halves
- 1 cup dried cherries
- 1/4 cup chocolate covered espresso beans

Combine all ingredients and store in zip-lock bags.

COWBOY BEANS

- 1 pound hamburger meat
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 1 small green pepper, chopped
- 1 large can pinto beans
- 1 large can pork & beans
- 1 large can tomatoes
- Shredded cheese
- Chili powder

Brown hamburger meat with onion and green pepper. Add all of the canned items and chili powder. Stir to combine and simmer for a while. Spoon into soup bowls and top with cheese. Serve with cornbread sticks.

EASY BAKED APPLES

- Whole apples (1 per person)
- Butter or margarine
- Cinnamon and/or cinnamon sticks
- Sugar, brown sugar, or Splenda
- Aluminum foil

Slice the top of the apples and core out the center; leave the skins on. Mix butter or margarine with the cinnamon, sugar, brown sugar, or Splenda until creamed together. Place the butter mixture inside the cored out area of the apple. Insert a cinnamon stick into core too if you desire. Wrap in double thickness of foil squares. "Bake" in the coals or in a Dutch oven about 30 minutes. Check one apple after 20 minutes by squeezing it for softness (be sure to use a heat proof mitt). Serve in the foil with a spoon.

BACON BAKED POTATOES

- 5 pounds round white potatoes
- 1 pound thinly sliced bacon
- Aluminum foil

Scrub potatoes in water, pierce with a fork. Wrap each potato in one layer of bacon. Wrap in aluminum foil with the shiny side toward the inside. Lay potatoes along the coals of the campfire, turning often with long tongs. Check for doneness by poking with a fork. When the fork slides easily into the potatoes, remove them from the fire; serve with your choice of toppings. Any leftovers can be cut up, and mixed with scrambled eggs and cheese for a quick and delicious breakfast.

BROWN SUGAR CARROTS OFF THE GRILL

- Carrots
- 3/4 cup brown sugar
- 1 tablespoon granulated sugar
- 1 tablespoon cinnamon
- Pinch salt
- Butter

This starts at home; prepare a zip-lock sandwich bag with brown sugar, cinnamon, granulated sugar, and salt. On a large piece of aluminum foil place baby peeled carrots or sliced and peeled regular sized carrots, and add sugar and spices from zip-lock bag; mix thoroughly. Top with a few pats of butter and wrap carrots tightly to ensure no leakage. Roast the wrapped carrots on the grill to desired softness, but remember to flip the packet halfway through the roasting process.

HOT HAM & CHEESE

- Your favorite bread, sliced
- Butter
- Deli ham, sliced
- Deli cheese, sliced
- Dijon mustard

Place a slice of bread, buttered side down, into pie iron. Add a slice of ham and a slice of cheese on the bread; apply mustard and cover with remaining slice of the bread, buttered side up. Close iron and latch handles. Grill to golden brown, turning iron as needed.

BANANA BOATS

- 1 banana per person
- Mini marshmallows
- Chocolate chips

Slice a banana down the middle with the stem lying flat (do not slice the banana in half completely). Spread the banana; it should look like a canoe. Fill with marshmallows and chocolate chips. Place on coals until chocolate and marshmallows begin to melt; remove from heat and place on a plate to cool just a bit; eat warm. If preferred, wrap aluminum at bottom part of banana boat, but do not wrap it entirely.

New Conservation Initiative Assists Specialty Crop Producers

By Justin Fritscher
Public Affairs Specialist – Mississippi
USDA/NRCS

A new initiative in Mississippi aims to encourage specialty crop producers to make conservation improvements to their operations. USDA's Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is offering financial and technical assistance to help these producers enhance their farms while cleaning and conserving water and improving soil.

This initiative, part of NRCS' Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP), offers about $500,000 to Mississippi specialty crop producers, such as growers of potatoes, greens, beans, peas, pecans, blueberries, and fruit trees. Growers of cotton, soybeans, peanuts, and other recognized commodity crops are not eligible.

"We want to engage Mississippi's specialty crop growers and encourage them to use conservation to boost production and improve the quality of our waterways and soil," NRCS State Conservationist Homer Wilkes said.

Applications were due by January 18 for the first ranking period. April 19 is the deadline for the second ranking period.

Assistance through this initiative will help producers install terraces, buffers and efficient irrigation systems, plant cover crops and implement other conservation activities.

All participants must meet conservation program eligibility requirements to receive financial assistance. This initiative places special emphasis on historically underserved producers during the ranking of applications.

For more information, contact your local field office or visit our website www.nrcs.usda.gov.

Market Ready Training Planned For Producers

By Keri Collins Lewis
MSU Ag Communications

A one-day Mississippi Market Ready Training at Mississippi State University can help business owners capitalize on the “buy local” movement.

On February 13, MSU Extension Service experts will discuss current food policy legislation, building relationships with restaurant managers and chefs, proper packaging and labeling, marketing strategies, pricing structures and regulatory concerns.

This workshop will be at the Bost Conference Center from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Doors will open at 8:30 a.m. for coffee and socializing with speakers and colleagues.

“This is an ideal training for fruit and vegetable growers; producers who have meat, seafood, dairy or poultry products; and makers of value-added or processed foods, such as sauces, wine, jams and jellies, desserts or breads -- any food product our Mississippi producers want to sell to a restaurant directly,” said Kim Morgan, assistant Extension professor in the Department of Agricultural Economics. “This is an intermediate-level training for entrepreneurs with existing products who want to establish accounts with local businesses.”

There is no cost to attend, but pre-registration is required. The workshop, which includes refreshments, lunch, training workbooks, and reference materials, is funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture’s Southern Region Extension Risk Management Education Grants Program. Those interested are encouraged to register online at <https://www.agecon.msstate.edu/training/marketready/detail.php> or call Morgan at (662) 325-0413.

The event is supported by the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce, the Mississippi Fruit and Vegetable Growers Association, the Mississippi Agriculture and Forestry Experiment Station, the Mississippi Hospitality and Restaurant Association, and Alcorn State University.

Pest Management Training Approaches

By Linda Breazeale
MSU Ag Communications

Producers and consultants can register now to hear agricultural specialists address the management of a wide variety of pests during a daylong workshop on February 12.

The annual pest management workshop will take place at Mississippi State University’s Central Mississippi Research and Extension Center auditorium in Raymond. Registration is $10 and begins at 8:30 a.m. The program begins at 9 a.m., and sessions will conclude by 4:30 p.m.

Speakers will cover topics such as tomato diseases, high-tunnel research, microgreens, wild pig management, strobilurin resistance and ornamental nutrient deficiencies. Another expert will address future regulations connected to good agricultural practices, such as the use of fertilizer and pesticides, and good hygiene practices, including harvest and postharvest handling of produce.

The program will serve as training and recertification for agricultural consultants as well as in-service training for county coordinators and area agents in Extension. Pending approval, the program will provide 4.5 hours of continuing education units in pest management under the Certified Crop Advisors Program.

For more information on the six-hour workshop, contact local Extension offices or David Ingram at (601) 857-2284 or davidi@ext.msstate.edu.

MSU Workshop Teaches Grapevine Pruning Tips

By Keri Collins Lewis
MSU Ag Communications

Muscadine and grape growers can get hands-on experience at a vine pruning workshop February 12.

The Mississippi State University Extension Service is hosting the Muscadine Pruning Workshop from 10 a.m. to noon at the Beaumont Horticulture Unit, part of the Mississippi Agricultural and Forestry Experiment Station.

Experts from MSU’s Extension Service, MAFES and the U.S. Department of Agriculture’s Agricultural Research Service will discuss vine anatomy, reasons to prune, timing of pruning and how to prune. They will demonstrate small-scale pruning with gas-powered hedge trimmers and traditional hand pruning.

“Participants will have an opportunity to practice pruning a vine if they bring pruning shears,” said Eric Stafne, MSU Extension fruit crops specialist. “They should also bring gloves and protective eye gear – goggles or sunglasses.”

The pruning workshop is free, and pre-registration is not required. The entire workshop will take place in the vineyard, rain or shine, so participants are encouraged to dress accordingly.

For more information, contact Stafne at (601) 403-8939 or estafne@ext.msstate.edu. The Beaumont Horticulture Unit is located in Perry County at 478 Highway 15, Beaumont, Mississippi.

Through its classified advertising section, the Bulletin provides a forum for Mississippi residents to buy and sell agricultural related items while also giving statewide exposure to small farmers who might not normally have the economic resources for such widespread advertising. The Bulletin does not publish commercial or display ads and all items offered for sale must have been produced, raised, grown or operated on the seller's property. Businesses, corporations, dealerships, brokers or other commercial enterprises are not allowed to advertise in the Mississippi Market Bulletin.

Managing Mud on Cattle Operations

By Dr. Jane Parish
Extension Beef Cattle Specialist,
Mississippi State University

Mud and Mississippi can be synonymous. Mississippi is home to a wide range of soil types, and many of these soil types get really muddy with just a little rain or cattle urine. On average, the rainfall distribution in Mississippi is such that winter and early spring tend to be the wettest times of the year. This is also the time of year when much of the permanent pasture acreage is dormant, and cattle congregate around hay feeders and feed troughs. The concentrated hoof action causes trampling damage to forages, and bare spots appear in areas where cattle congregate. Tractors, trucks, and ATVs also rut up fields, lanes, and roads during this time. Add in a leaky water trough or busted water line, and mud seems to be everywhere on the farm.

Muddy Cattle

So how does mud affect cattle? It creates a variety of problems. Mud can negate the insulation value of the hair coat. Of distinct concern are newborn calves born in or near mud holes or muddy areas. Calves can become chilled by mud, trapped in it, or sickened by pathogens thriving in it. This is why it is so important to closely monitor calving, routinely check cattle, and move cow-calf pairs to fresh pasture soon after calving. Additionally, mud on udders contributes to poor udder hygiene conditions. Also, mud under hooves may increase the risk of foot problems such as foot rot.

Mud creates suction on hooves and makes it more difficult for cattle to move around in a muddy area. They expend more energy moving through mud and may have difficulty mounting for breeding. One only has to walk into a feeding area with deep mud once to realize just how difficult it is to take steps. Boots must be held securely on feet or the mud will claim them quickly.

With mild mud conditions, just 4 to 8 inches of mud, cattle dry matter intake is reduced by 15% versus what it would be under the same conditions without any mud. When severe mud conditions are present, one foot or more of mud, dry matter intake plummets by 30% relative to the same conditions without any mud. It is no wonder that it becomes challenging to maintain good body condition on cows and desirable weight gains on calves when mud is all around.

Mud Management

Although it may not be practical to totally eliminate mud on the farm, pastures, feeding areas, and cattle should be managed to minimize the negative impacts of mud on the herd. Start by taking an inventory of the soil types and slopes on the farm. The USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service website hosts a Web Soil Survey online that can be used to map soil types within an individual farm. Go to websoilsurvey.nrcs.usda.gov/app/HomePage.htm to get started mapping soils for a specific cattle operation. Some soils drain better than others and are less prone to mud accumulation. If soil types and slopes are identified on a farm that are less susceptible to water pooling and/or mud build-up, then areas with these soils may be good places to select for high-traffic uses.

Hay feeding is a common source of pasture damage and mud development. If one or only a few hay feeding locations are used throughout the entire winter feeding period, then mud can become severe in these locations. Alternately, frequent movement of hay feeding locations around a large area may result in more widespread damage to pasture plant cover but less severe mud in any one location. Also, recognize that beginning hay feeding at the front of the pasture near the gate through which the feed delivery equipment travels can make for an area that is difficult or impossible to drive through over time. If the feeding area is first placed at the far end of the pasture from the entrance, then it can be more easily moved progressively towards the front of the pasture over time with less chance of not being able to get equipment through the mud to the feeding location.

Minimizing vehicle traffic through pastures can also help protect from vegetation destruction, soil compaction, and rut development. Forages are particularly susceptible to damage when frosted or otherwise stressed. When possible, check cattle on foot or use smaller vehicles such as ATVs that weigh less and do less damage to pasture forages. Always have a plan to free a vehicle or hay feeding wagon that becomes stuck in the mud. Use of 4-wheel drive tractors may be warranted in some situations.

Mud is a feature of cattle production in Mississippi that is tough to avoid. However, careful management can make mud less of a detriment to production. Visit with other producers for innovative ideas on combating mud on cattle operations. 65th Annual Mississippi Cattlemen's Association Convention and Dixie National Farm Expo

By LeAnne L. Peters
Director of Communications
Mississippi Cattlemen's Association

The 2013 Mississippi Cattlemen's Convention and Dixie National Farm Expo will convene in Jackson, Mississippi, February 8-9. The host city Jackson and the Mississippi State Fairgrounds share their hospitality each year for cowboys and cowgirls across the state for a not-to-be-missed convention and Dixie National Farm Expo. Doors open to the Expo at 10 a.m. both days and is free to the public.

On Friday night, the "Taste of Beef" event will be an evening of food and entertainment open to all friends of the Mississippi Cattlemen's Association (MCA). Area restaurants will provide a serving of their best beef specialty to each attendee. An eclectic sampling of Italian, American, and Mexican dishes will be presented in a social setting from some of Jackson's best restaurants. The cost of the event is $25, and the proceeds go to the Cattlemen's Foundation for education.

In addition to the convention, don't miss the Dixie National Farm Expo. Static exhibits along with equipment demos, and educational opportunities combine to make a great farm show. This is a great opportunity for you to visit with many companies and see all the latest products.

An exciting new event for the Expo will be the FFA Tractor Driving Contest, which will be held in front of the Trade Mart on Saturday starting at 11:00 a.m. and 1:00 p.m.

Don't miss Chef Luis Bruno from 1:00 to 2:30 p.m. on Saturday inside the Expo. Chef Luis will demonstrate how to prepare several mouth-watering beef dishes. The Mississippi CattleWomen's Association will be on hand with an interactive meat cuts display as well as free beef recipes that the entire family will enjoy. The Mississippi Beef Council, through the producer driven checkoff program, hosts the cooking event.

Also, on Saturday there will be an awards program lunch honoring The Wax Company, Mississippi Cattlemen's Foundation, and the Mississippi CattleWomen Scholarship Award winners. Over $50,000 in scholarships will be presented to the children and grandchildren of MCA members.

The Mississippi Cattlemen's Association invites everyone to come to Jackson on February 8-9 to enjoy a weekend of fun and education. For more information and schedule, contact the MCA office at (601) 354-8951 or visit our website at www.ms cattlemen.org.
