Dairy Farmers across the Southeast Celebrate June Dairy Month

By Southeast Dairy Association

Join the Southeast United Dairy Industry Association as we celebrate 76 years of June Dairy Month and the accomplishments of more than 3,500 dairy farm families in the Southeast who are dedicated to dairy and will share their stories of producing wholesome, nutritious dairy foods.

National Dairy Month began in 1937 as a way to promote dairy consumption during peak milk production in the summer. Today, its rich history continues with communities, companies, and people from the Southeast celebrating in a variety of ways.

This year's theme, "Dairy Packs Power," focuses on you, the consumer, and encourages dairy families to make milk their first beverage choice because of its unique package of vitamins, minerals, and nutrients that are an essential part of a healthy diet and key to strengthening bones. Dairy farmers will be working alongside Southeast Dairy with local media, farm bureaus, and through social media, radio contests, T-shirt giveaways, events, and more.

"We're excited about celebrating the hard work and dedication that Southeast dairy farmers have for the dairy industry," said Amanda Trice, Southeast Dairy's director of communications and public relations. "The upcoming media interviews that feature dairy farmers will be a great way for the public to learn about the importance of dairy nutrition and dairy farming."

You can join us on Facebook as sedairy or visit www.junedairy-month.org to access activities, coloring books, activity sheets, state-specific facts, recipes, farm videos, farm facts, and more.

Value of Dairy Remains Strong as Food Prices Rise

By Southeast Dairy Association

While fuel prices are rising, which drives the cost of nearly all products, including food, and other commodities, the value of dairy foods remains strong.

In addition to the continued struggling economy, the USDA Economic Research Service reported that last summer's drought, which was more far-reaching than any since the 1950s, contributed to an increase in the retail price of many items, including cereal, corn flour, beef, pork, poultry, and dairy.

"The drought has the potential to increase retail prices for beef, pork, poultry, and dairy products first and foremost into 2013," the USDA's U.S. Drought 2012: Farm and Food Impacts report states.

The drought crippled the development of corn crops, which is a primary source of food for cows. Dairy farmers who normally grow their own food not only lost the investment of time and money put into planting and irrigating crops that did not grow, but they also had to spend more money on buying feed from other sources.

While retail prices across the country are rising and falling inconsistently, milk and other dairy foods continue to offer the stability of being one of the best nutritional values of any food group. At 25 cents per glass, milk is less expensive and healthier than other beverages. Milk contains calcium, protein, potassium, phosphorus, and vitamins A and D, making it one of the best values at the supermarket.

New research is emerging that shows how much protein is packed in yogurt and other dairy food. Those results will be made public in the coming months.

CHEESY CAULIFLOWER

1 16-20-ounce bag frozen cauliflower florets –OR-
1 small head cauliflower, broken into florets
3/4 cup low-fat milk
1 tablespoon all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon Dijon mustard
1/8 teaspoon garlic powder
3/4 cup reduced-fat, shredded Cheddar cheese
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons plain or seasoned bread crumbs

Cook the cauliflower according to package directions, or steam fresh cauliflower 8 to 10 minutes until tender; set aside. Whisk together the milk, flour, mustard, and garlic powder in a small saucepan until well blended. Place over medium-high heat and bring to a simmer, stirring constantly. Reduce the heat and continue to simmer, and stir gently for about 2 minutes or until the mixture thickens slightly. Stir in the Cheddar and Parmesan cheeses until melted. Preheat the broiler on high. Arrange the cauliflower in a baking pan and pour the cheese sauce evenly over the top. Sprinkle with bread crumbs and broil for about 2 minutes or until the bread crumbs turn golden brown.

BAKED PEARS WITH VANILLA YOGURT AND GRANOLA

1/2 cup apple juice
1 cup water
1 tablespoon honey
3 6-ounce containers low-fat vanilla yogurt
1/2 cup low-fat granola
Mint leaves, optional

Preheat oven to 375° F. Cut pears in half lengthwise and remove core with a melon baller or small spoon. Place pears, cut side down, in a shallow baking dish just large enough to hold them. Pour apple juice and water over pears; drizzle with honey. Cover pan loosely with foil and bake about 35 minutes or until tender. While pears are baking, place granola in a shallow baking pan or pie plate, and toast in oven 10 minutes; set aside. When pears are done, pour liquid into a small saucepan, and reduce over medium heat until about 1/4 cup of syrup remains; set aside to cool. Line a colander with paper towels and place over bowl to catch drips. Pour yogurt into colander and allow to drain about 30 minutes. Divide yogurt among 4 shallow bowls. Place warm pear half, cut side up, over yogurt. Top with toasted granola and drizzle with syrup. Garnish with a mint leaf, if desired.

4 pita flatbread rounds
1/3 cup prepared marinara sauce
1 cup garden blend shredded cheese, seasoned according to package directions

Preheat oven to 450° F. Coat vegetables in nonstick cooking spray; reserve. Spread marinara sauce over flatbread rounds. Top equally with 1/2 cup seasoned cheese and reserved vegetables. Top with remaining seasoned cheese. Bake uncovered for 10 minutes or until crust is golden brown and cheese is melted.

FRESH PICKED PEACH SMOOTHIE

3 medium or 2 large fresh peaches with skin, seed removed, sliced
2/3 cup low-fat milk
1/2 cup low-fat plain yogurt
2 teaspoons honey

In a single layer on a plate, freeze the sliced peaches for at least one hour (or overnight). Add the frozen peach slices, milk yogurt, honey, and vanilla extract to a blender container. Cover and puree until smooth. Pour into 2 chilled glasses. Note: Freeze any leftover smoothie in popsicle molds for frozen treats anytime.

ROASTED RED PEPPER YOGURT DIP

Farmers and Gardeners - Your Produce is Needed

The once-a-year Farmers' Market will be held in downtown Crystal Springs in Railroad Park
Saturday, June 29 as part of the annual Tomato Festival.
Growers who will have produce ready to sell by late June should plan now to participate in the Farmers' Market.

Any locally grown produce is acceptable. In late June, vegetables in season might include red tomatoes, green tomatoes, bell peppers, hot peppers, summer squash, snap beans, southernpeas, butter beans, cabbage, sweet corn, cucumbers, okra, greens, watermelons, cantaloupes, herbs, shiitake mushrooms, etc.

Fruit crops would include blueberries, peaches, plums, blackberries, etc.
Honey, preserves, potted plants, or cut flowers are also welcome in the Farmers' Market.

If you have enough surplus from your home garden and would like to sell it, we will be happy to have you join us.
You don't have to be a full time grower to participate in Tomato Festival Farmers' Market.
All of the vendors who sell produce in the Farmers' Market each year do very well, most selling out.

All produce for sale must be grown in Mississippi.
Please do not bring fruits, vegetables, or anything else from other states.

For more information and to obtain an application contact
Dr. Rick Snyder, Professor & Vegetable Specialist, Truck Crops Experiment Station,
P. O. Box 231, Crystal Springs, MS 39059 or email: Rick.Snyder@msstate.edu.
Applications need to be returned by Monday, June 24.

Science Learned from a Cow

By Lise Foy, Director
MS Agriculture & Forestry Museum

In 1611, cows stepped off the boat at the Jamestown Colony in Virginia. That was a long ride for a cow, and it would have required quite a supply of feed to survive the voyage. Cows have four stomach compartments and consume about 90 pounds of feed every day. They also drink the equivalent of a bathtub full of water – about 25 to 50 gallons – every day. Where did they put all of that on the boat? A modern dairy cow produces an average of five to seven gallons of milk each day. That's more than 100 eight-ounce glasses of milk. What did they do with all of that milk?

June is National Dairy Month. According to the International Dairy Foods Association, National Dairy Month started out as National Milk Month in 1937 as a way to promote drinking milk. It was initially created to stabilize the dairy demand when production was at a surplus but has now developed into an annual tradition that celebrates the contributions the dairy industry has made to the world. After the National Dairy Council stepped in to promote the cause, the name soon changed to "Dairy Month."

Most people think of the Holstein cow when they think of dairy cows, but there are other breeds including Ayrshire, Brown Swiss, Guernsey, Jersey, and Milking Shorthorn. Each breed has its own characteristics in regard to the milk they produce. For instance, a Guernsey produces milk that is almost gold in color, and a Jersey produces milk that is very high in butterfat. Contrary to popular belief, there is no chocolate cow that gives chocolate milk. For that you must thank Mr. Hershey.

Mississippi has a small but active dairy industry. There are dairy farms scattered across the state, but a hub of activity exists in Walthall and surrounding counties in southwest Mississippi.

When kids visit the Ag Museum, one of the activities they often get to participate in is milking Cloverbelle the Cow. Cloverbelle resides in the 4-H Museum & Learning Center located on the grounds near Small Town, Mississippi. While she gives water in place of milk, she does a good job at demonstrating to visitors where milk comes from.

Milk from the cow contains butter-fat particles held in suspension. These particles are lighter in weight than the other parts of the whole milk. This is why when milk is left standing, the butter-fat, or cream, rises to the top. Changing whole milk to butter is a process of transforming a fat-in-water emulsion (milk) to a water-in-fat emulsion (butter).

There are a few butter churns on display at the Ag Museum. A quick and easy way to show kids how a butter churn works is to pour a small amount of heavy cream or whipping cream into a small container and have them shake it until the butter separates from the milk.

Churning (or shaking) physically agitates the cream until it ruptures the fragile membranes surrounding the milk fat. Once broken, the fat droplets can join with each other and form clumps of fat, or butter grains. As churning continues, larger clusters of fat collect until they begin to form a clump. The cream eventually separates into butter and buttermilk.

In the past, farmers milked a few cows, usually by hand, and separated milk by allowing it to sit in a container until the cream floated to the top and could be skimmed off by hand. Some of the skimmed milk was consumed while the rest was used to feed calves and pigs. Enough cream was saved to make butter.

The continuous centrifugal cream separator, invented by Dr. Gustav De Laval in 1878, made it possible to separate cream from milk faster and more easily, without having to let the milk sit for a time and risk it turning sour. There are two on exhibit at the Ag Museum. One is in the detached kitchen of the Main House in the Fortenberry Parkman Farmstead donated by D.W. Fortenberry. The other one was donated by Mr. Carter Naugher who owned the Naugher Dairy Farm in Pontotoc, MS. The separator was purchased by James R. Naugher in 1917. It is a Primrose Brand Cream Separator made by International Harvester.

To alleviate the labor involved in milking, during the 20th century, the milking process has been automated. The modern dairy farm is mechanized with automatic milking machines that eliminate the task of pulling a teat by hand approximately 340 to 350 squirts to produce a gallon of milk.

These advances allowed U.S. dairy farmers to produce a record 196 billion pounds of milk in 2011. This is good news as we are currently at a population of over 6 billion people in the world and moving toward 11 billion by the year 2050. The ability of the farmer to produce more food faster and with fewer resources is becoming more important to feed the world.

Here is a dairy experiment that once won me a trip to the state science fair.

Ice Cream in a Bag From Acres of Adventures National 4-H Curriculum

You will need:

- 1 gallon zipper-style bag and
- 1 quart zipper-style bag
- 4 cups ice
- 1 cup ice cream salt
- 1/2 tablespoon sugar
- 1/2 cup light whipping cream
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract

1. Pour the cream, vanilla extract, and sugar into the small zipper bag. Squeeze as much air out as possible, seal the bag, and mix well.
2. Place the small bag in the large bag and cover with ice and salt. Seal the large bag.

3. Shake and flip the 'ice cream machine' for 5 to 10 minutes. If the mixture hasn't frozen in 10 minutes, add more salt.

4. Open the larger bag and remove the smaller one. The ice cream should be ready to eat.

Salt is used in the production process to lower the freezing point of the water. This super-cold water and ice mixture causes the liquid milk mixture to freeze and become solid. The United States produces about 900 million gallons of ice cream a year.

The Ag Museum is located at 1150 Lakeland Drive in Jackson and is open Monday through Saturday from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. In addition to our gallery and exhibit spaces, the Ag Museum also has room for your event, whether it's a meeting, a wedding or other special event. Mississippi Poultry Show Club Brings Back Poultry Show to MS State Fair

By Mississippi Poultry Show Club

The American Poultry Association (APA) has appointed Dr. Shirley Jean Johnson 'Doc' as the new State Representative of the APA. There has not been a state representative for over 23 years or APA sanctioned shows in the state nearly 30 years. Dr. Johnson has just retired from her position as a Behavioral Health Doctor in Phoenix, Arizona, in January, returning to her home in Laurel, with her husband, Roy. They quickly became involved in raising chickens and meeting others who share their interest from the across the state.

A simple question "Why are there no poultry shows in Mississippi?" started a storm of research and a commitment to bring purebred 'backyard' poultry shows to the state. There are many Mississippians who travel hundreds, or even thousands, of miles to show their high-quality chickens and other poultry in other states. Dr. Johnson founded the Mississippi Poultry Show Club on a Facebook Group to gauge interest. Due to an overwhelming response, the official group was formed as a non-profit organization and a website was set up.

After contacting members of the Mississippi Board of Animal Health and the Mississippi Fair Commission, it was decided the first APA/ABA (American Poultry Association and the American Bantam Association) show hosted by the club, will be at the Mississippi State Fair in Jackson, October 11-12, 2013.

Usually there are 5-7 district shows before a fair, and the club is planning on that in 2014. It will take people several months to get prepared and meet the requirements to show in October.

For those interested in showing their poultry, they may check out the club's Facebook page: Mississippi Poultry Show Club, email the club at mppsc@yahoo.com or visit the website at www.mspoultryshowclub.org. The deadline will be September 12, 2013. The fair will be an open show for Standard and Bantam entries in the adult and juvenile division. Details will be posted on the Facebook page, website, and through press releases via media or contact Dr. Johnson at 601-470-1095.

The main judge for the show in October will be Patrick Malone from Arlington, Texas. He served in the APA for over 23 years as an APA licensed judge and past President. He is currently the American Poultry Association's District Director over Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Oklahoma, and Texas. The club is very honored to have him travel to Mississippi and judge the first APA/ABA sanctioned show in three decades.

Dr. Johnson wants to emphasize the importance of maintaining poultry health. Therefore, she encourages all chicken growers to seek out NPIP certification by the Mississippi Board of Animal Health poultry epidemiologist. It is a free service and can help maintain a disease-free flock. The number to acquire NPIP testing is 601-359-1170. The club is seeking corporate sponsors to offset some of the cost and assist in making history and moving Mississippi's poultry agriculture forward.

"The 4H/FFA are doing a wonderful job; however, if we do not get the youth of Mississippi more involved in raising backyard poultry, we might as well turn off the light when we leave the barn," said Dr. Johnson.

Ag Commissioner Applauds the Nation's Food Supply

By Linda Breazeale
MSU Ag Communications

Cindy Hyde-Smith, the state's leading advocate for Mississippi agriculture, touted the nation's food supply as the safest and most affordable in the world when she spoke Tuesday, May 28, at the 2013 Boys State.

Hyde-Smith became the first woman to be elected Mississippi's commissioner of agriculture and commerce in 2011 after serving 12 years in the Mississippi State Senate. After explaining the regulatory functions of her department to the 390 participants, she encouraged them to give credit for their food to farmers.

"When you sit down to a meal, first thank God and then thank the farmer," she said.

Hyde-Smith said consumers can trust that their food has been inspected from the gate to the plate. Additionally, farmers are keenly aware of the importance of protecting the environment.

"You can trust that farmers are doing their jobs right. Right now, we have a lot of challenges in agriculture. By 2030, we will have to increase production by 50 percent to meet demand," she said. "If all farming came to a halt this moment, we would only have enough food for 30 days."

When asked for her advice to potential farmers, Hyde-Smith said she would encourage realistic assessments of their work ethics and budgeting skills.

"If you can't work really hard and budget your money, then farming is not for you, but it is a great way of life," she said. "Anything you do successfully is going to be hard."

As a state senator, Hyde-Smith was an advocate for Mississippi farmers, serving as the chairman of the Agriculture Committee for eight years and as a member of numerous other committees.

Hyde-Smith said only 11 of the nation's commissioners of agriculture are elected, and most of those are in the Southeast. Texas is the only other state to elect a woman to the position.

"The only limitations you have are the ones you put on yourself," she said.

Following her speech at Mississippi State University, Boys State participant Andrew Smith of Monticello said he would like to follow in her political footsteps. After earning a degree in business administration and economics, he wants to enter politics with an emphasis on agriculture.

"I would like to lobby for legislation to help farmers, much like the commissioner did when she was a senator," he said. "It is also important to help those who are not farmers to understand agricultural issues."

Kyle Scott of Rosedale, another Boys State participant, said he wants to pursue an agricultural engineering degree and look for ways to help the environment.

"My grandfather works on a farm, and I can tell how much he enjoys what he does. It looks very interesting," Scott said.
