MSU Extension Joins Effort to Protect State's Honeybees

By Keri Collins Lewis
MSU Ag Communications

Mississippi farmers and beekeepers are working together to protect the state's pollinators from accidental exposure to pesticides used on crops.

Jeff Harris, Mississippi State University Extension Service apiculturist, said ongoing discussions over the course of several months resulted in the Mississippi Honey Bee Stewardship Program.

"In light of the global decline of honeybee populations, the Extension Service and Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation facilitated discussions to foster a better working dialogue among Mississippi's row-crop farmers and beekeepers, all in the spirit of coexistence and cooperation," Harris said. "The potential for great tension between these two groups exists because some commercial beekeepers keep thousands of colonies near soybean and cotton fields."

Harris said these two crops bloom during hot and dry periods, when no other major food source is available.

"But farmers must manage pest populations to prevent damage to their crops, so there is a relatively high potential for honeybees to be killed accidentally by pesticide applications," he said.

In some states, laws have been passed requiring beekeepers and farmers to follow certain protocols, but so far the level of cooperation in Mississippi has allowed for the stewardship program to be voluntary.

Angus Catchot, a row-crops entomologist with the MSU Extension Service, said he is pleased with the results of the collaboration.

"As this topic has gained attention over the last couple of years, I have been surprised to see how few farmers were aware of the issue. Now that they realize there is a problem, they have seemed more than willing to figure out how to work together," Catchot said. "This program will certainly not eliminate all risks, but it will no doubt go a long way to head off future problems with acute bee kills."

One component of the program is a unified flagging system to be used throughout the state to identify hive locations that are near agricultural fields. Beekeepers will work with farmers to place the black and yellow striped "Bee Aware" flags where they will be visible both on the ground and from the air, to alert pesticide applicators.

"The Mississippi Honey Bee Stewardship Program is setting a precedent by showing there is cooperation and commitment on both sides. They're willing to work together to minimize the risk of economic losses by both the beekeepers and the farmers," said Jeff Gore, entomologist with the Mississippi Agricultural and Forestry Experiment Station and MSU Extension Service. "The Bee Aware flags that resulted from this agreement are an additional tool to help raise everyone's awareness about pollinator health and protecting pollinators."

The Mississippi Honeybee Stewardship Program has been adopted by Mississippi Beekeepers Association, Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation, Mississippi Agricultural Aviation Association, Mississippi Agricultural Consultants Association, Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce, and the MSU Extension Service.

From Our Kitchen To Yours

Honey...Nature's Sweetener

*****

Honey Nut Breakfast Grits

- 2 cups fat-free milk
- 1 cup water
- 1 cup stone ground grits
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons honey
- 1 tablespoon unsalted butter
- 1/4 cup almond slivers, toasted
- 1/8 teaspoon almond extract
- 4 teaspoons honey

In a large pot, add milk, water, grits and salt; bring to a boil. Mix in 2 tablespoons honey and butter; reduce to a simmer and cook about 20 minutes or until grits thicken. While grits are cooking, toast almonds in a frying pan over medium heat, stirring often, for about 8 to 10 minutes or until they are slightly browned. Remove grits from heat and mix in almond extract. Ladle into four bowls; top each with 1 tablespoon toasted almonds and 1 teaspoon honey.

Honey-Yogurt Popsicles

- 2 cups plain yogurt
- 1 cup milk
- 1/3 cup honey
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1/4 pound cherries, pitted and quartered
- 1/4 cup blueberries

In a large bowl, stir together the yogurt, milk, honey and vanilla extract. Taste the mixture and add a little more honey if needed. Divide half the fruit among 8 1/2-cup popsicle holders. Add 1/4 cup of the yogurt mixture to each popsicle holder, and then add the rest of the fruit. Press the fruit down a bit to distribute evenly in the popsicle. Top off with more yogurt mixture if needed, leaving at least 1/4 inch of space at the top of the popsicle holder because it will expand as it freezes. Freeze the popsicles for several hours, until completely solid.

Honey Cucumber Salad

- 3 medium cucumbers, thinly sliced and halved
- 1/4 cup honey
- 1/2 cup white balsamic vinegar (white wine vinegar may be used instead)
- 1/4 cup water
- 2 tablespoons red onion, diced
- Salt to taste

Place cucumbers in a bowl and sprinkle with salt. Toss and set aside. In a small mixing bowl, stir together honey, white balsamic vinegar, water and diced red onions. Pour the mixture over the cucumbers and toss. Allow the salad to marinate in the refrigerator about 1 hour prior to serving.

Honey Cream Cheese
Tea Sandwiches

- Any variety bread slices
- 3 ounces cream cheese, softened
- 2 tablespoons honey
- 1/2 teaspoon grated orange peel
- Watercress sprigs
- Orange peel*, finely julienne

Remove crust from bread; cut into desired shapes. Combine cream cheese, honey and grated orange peel; blend until smooth. Spread cheese mixture on bread and garnish with watercress sprigs and julienne orange peel. *Remove white part of peel as it is very bitter.

Veggie Wraps with Avocado-Honey Dressing

- 2 tablespoons honey
- 1/2 of 1 avocado, chopped
- Juice of 1 lemon
- 2 teaspoons fresh minced garlic
- 2 tablespoons light mayonnaise
- 4 whole wheat tortillas
- 1 sweet red pepper, sliced into strips
- 1/2 of 1 cucumber, thinly sliced
- 1 large carrot, shredded
- 1 tomato, sliced
- 1/4 of 1 red onion, sliced
- 3 cups romaine lettuce, chopped
- Salt to taste

In a blender, combine honey, avocado, lemon juice, garlic and mayonnaise; blend until smooth. Lay the tortillas flat and spread the avocado honey dressing on each one. Layer the veggies evenly in the center of each. Sprinkle each with a pinch of salt, roll the tortillas and serve.

Dixie National App Highlights Livestock Show Winners

By Chaille Clements
MDAC Staff

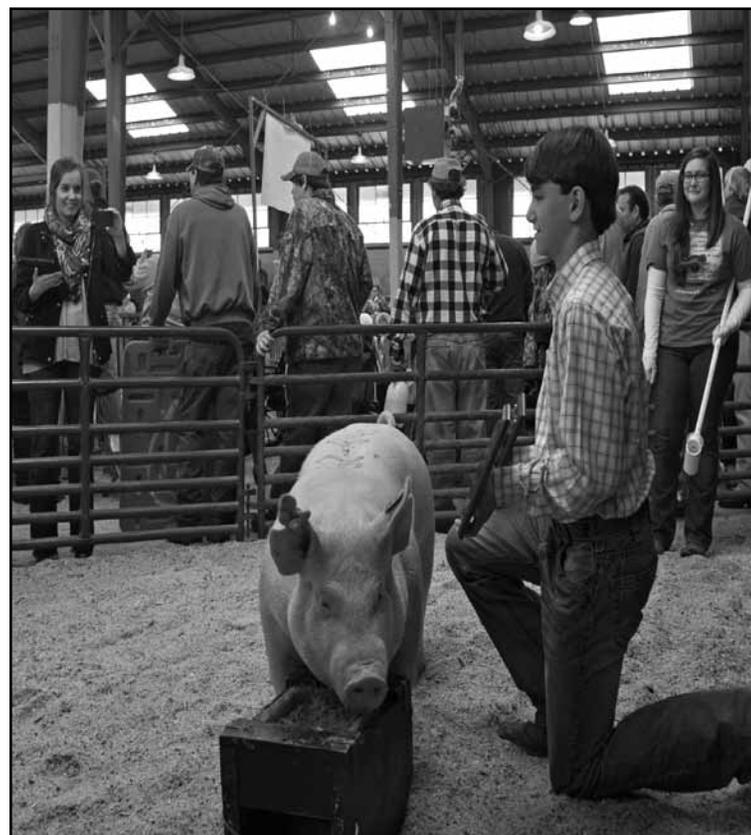

Following the success of the inaugural Mississippi State Fair mobile application, the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce (MDAC) introduced an app for the Dixie National Livestock Show and Rodeo. With nearly 3,000 downloads in three weeks, this interactive app made information accessible to spectators, participants, and volunteers through their iPhone or Android devices.

Users of the Dixie National app had access to the latest updates and information on rodeo events, concerts, and the parade. Users could download the brochure and livestock premium books, connect to social media, submit photos, and listen to music. There was also an outlet to make emergency calls and a truck finder built into the app. The app developers from BFAC.com in Madison, Mississippi, included all of the information necessary to have a safe, well-informed, and enjoyable time at the rodeo.

One of the newest and most technologically advanced additions to the Dixie National app was the brainchild of Commissioner of Agriculture and Commerce Cindy Hyde-Smith. As a pilot program, MDAC, in cooperation with MSU Extension Service, broadcasted push notifications during certain livestock shows in real-time. "The push notifications gave us a very convenient way to let the show participants and their parents know when their event was coming up so they could get prepared. I was thrilled to have the capability of posting pictures of the winners because these kids worked so hard, and this gave us another way to recognize their accomplishments," said Commissioner of Agriculture Cindy Hyde-Smith.

Chaille Clements, MDAC Marketing Specialist, and Kayla Walters, State FFA President, set up at four shows during the Dixie National Junior Round-up and sent progress updates and announcements to the app users that were on the Fairgrounds during that time. MSU Extension Professor and 4-H Livestock Specialist Dr. Dean Jousan explained, "During the shows, many adults and youth are focused on preparing their livestock for competition. Being able to receive push notifications on a mobile device allowed them to keep up with the progress of the show while in the barns, thereby enabling them to utilize their time grooming their show animals." The announcements even included photos of the winners from each age group or breed. "Youth enjoy competing with their animals and take pride when they win. Being able to see their name and photo sent out in a push notification as a champion is another way youth can receive positive recognition for their efforts," said Jousan.

The Chicken or The Egg...or The Bunny?

By Lise Foy, Director
MS Agriculture & Forestry Museum

Which came first, the chicken or the egg? To ancient philosophers, the question about the first chicken or egg evoked the questions of how life and the universe in general began. While that continues to be an interesting debate that can boggle your thoughts if you spend too much time thinking about it, what about those chocolate eggs laid by the Easter Bunny? Where did that whole idea come from?

You might have guessed, Cadbury, of course! Well not exactly. It goes back farther than that.

The Easter Bunny, from information I could find, originated in Germany and came to the U.S. in the 18th century with the Pennsylvania Dutch. One story goes that the fictional character played the role of a judge, evaluating whether children were naughty or nice. Good children received eggs and candy from the Bunny in their basket the night before Easter.

Sometime in the 19th century, Jacob Grimm wrote a fairytale about the fertility goddess Eostre. The myth says that one winter day goddess Eostre was passing through a forest and found a bird dying in the snow. Goddess Eostre turned the bird into a hare because they have a warm fur and can find food more easily than a bird. And so the bunny survived the winter, and when the spring came, the animal started laying eggs because it was once a bird. The rabbit then decorated the eggs leaving them to Eostre as a sign of gratitude. And so began the Easter egg hunt for the eggs the egg-laying bunny left the previous night.

Rabbits, like eggs, are also symbols of fertility and used to depict spring. Rabbits and hares are both prolific breeders. Female hares can conceive a second litter of offspring while still pregnant with the first, and can give birth to several litters in a year. As the mother of twins, I must say 'Oh my!' to the thought of this phenomenon!

The Ag Museum is gearing up for the Mississippi Egg Marketing Board Annual Easter Egg Hunt on April 19. The Easter Egg Hunt, which begins at noon, attracted over 1,000 visitors last year. Other sponsors include Cal-Maine Foods, Mississippi Beef Council, Outlets at Vicksburg and Jackson CVB. Usual activities, including, pictures with the Easter Bunny, pony rides, and egg dyeing will take place as well as a few new happenings.

A celebrity egg toss will take place at 11:00 a.m. featuring well known Mississippi personalities like Billy Orr, Cheryl Lasseter, Randy Knight, and Representative Rita Martinson. This is a must see – who knows, you might see your local mayor or weatherman tossing an egg!

At 1:00 p.m., we will host an egg roll for the kids, and the Egg Hunt is at 12:00 noon. The entire festivities will last from 10:00 a.m. until 2:00 p.m. Admission is $6.00 for adults and $4.00 for children ages 3 – 18.

While at the Ag Museum, visitors can also see the resident bunnies in our barnyard. They are representative of typical livestock that might have been found on a small farm in the 1920's. Prepare your kids though, as they do not lay chocolate eggs.

The Ag Museum is located at 1150 Lakeland Drive in Jackson and is open Monday through Saturday from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. In addition to our gallery and exhibit spaces, the Ag Museum also has room for your event, whether it's a meeting, a wedding, or other special event. # Take Care When Starting Summer Gardens Early

By Bonnie Coblenz
MSU Ag Communications

Warm weather in early spring practically dares gardeners to plant something, but starting too early can lead to failure.

Mississippi State University Extension Service horticulturists Gary Bachman and Rick Snyder offered some tips on how to get a head start on summer vegetables without the risk of losing them to a late frost.

"Don't start your seedlings too early," said Snyder, who is also a Mississippi Agricultural and Forestry Experiment Station researcher at the Truck Crops Branch Experiment Station in Crystal Springs. "Warm season plants started indoors and transplanted into cool soil too early will not do very well in most cases."

Those planted a little later, after soil and air temperatures are higher, easily catch up with the early-planted seedlings that struggle to survive.

For those who just have to plant something and start gardening, sprouting seeds, and growing seedlings may be the best way to go.

Bachman, who is also the Southern Gardening host and columnist, said he looks at the last frost date for the area and counts backwards to know when to start seeds. Warm-season crops, such as tomatoes, peppers, and eggplants, need five to seven weeks to germinate and grow transplant-ready seedlings. Vine crops, such as watermelon, squash, and cucumbers, need three to four weeks.

"To start seeds indoors, the biggest problem is light," Bachman said. "A bright window doesn't provide enough light. A better solution is to set a shop light from the home improvement store about 4 inches above the seedlings as they grow.

"Seeds also germinate better with bottom heat. Germination pads are fairly inexpensive, but placing a couple of trays on top of the refrigerator works pretty well, too," he said.

When setting out transplants, whether sprouted from seed or bought, make sure the soil is prepared by amending with organic matter compost. A soil test done ahead of time can provide information on what nutrients should be added as fertilizer.

"Nearly all plants should be set into holes so that the depth of planting into the soil is the same as the depth in the seedling tray," Snyder said. "Tomatoes are the big exception to this rule. Tomatoes will do better and fruit earlier if they are set deeper than they are growing in the seedling tray.

"If they are tall and leggy, remove the lower leaves, and sink that long stem into the ground, either by digging a deeper hole or by making a trench, and laying the stem into it," he said. "Curve the long stem upwards so that the upper 6 to 8 inches are above the soil."

Decide how water will be applied, and install any needed irrigation at planting.

"Applying the irrigation directly to the soil through drip irrigation is a very efficient method," Bachman said. "I like using pressure-compensated emitters, as these are very consistent in the volume of water applied regardless of the water pressure in the line or hose."

While some gardeners think the only way to grow summer vegetables is with a traditional plot tilled into the ground, others find success with raised beds or container gardening. These options provide well-drained soil, prevent compaction, and make weed control easier. If growing in containers, make sure the soil is a peat-based mix.

"Try to get your weeds out while they are small. They are easier at this stage, and if you let them go too long, the task can be overwhelming," Snyder said.

Insects can be a problem in any gardening scenario, so keep a careful watch to know if it's time to treat for pests.

When growing transplants from seed, calculate back from the last expected frost date to allow time for the seeds to germinate and gain enough size to be planted outdoors.
