Weather, Demand Stresses Christmas Tree Market

By Susan Collins-Smith
MSU Ag Communications

Consumers who want Mississippi-grown Christmas trees to deck their halls should shop early for the best selection every year.

“Choose-and-cut Christmas tree production in Mississippi is fairly flat because there are growers each year who retire,” said Stephen Dicke, a forestry professor with the Mississippi State University Extension Service. “Growers still in the business are producing more trees each year, but demand in heavily populated counties is much higher than the supply of trees.”

Mississippi had about 85 growers who sold approximately 29,000 trees

Christmas tree producer Don Kazery Jr., left, discusses agricultural practices on his Hinds County farm with Stephen Dicke, a forestry professor with the Mississippi State University Extension Service, on November 6, 2014. in 2013. The estimated market value of these trees was $1.45 million. Dicke said he expects these numbers to remain steady for 2014.

Harsh weather conditions put increased pressure on the already tight market. The extreme cold in early 2014 caused some growers to lose young trees, and a rainy spring and summer increased disease pressure from fungus, Dicke said.

“Growers start as soon as the beginning of January replanting the number of trees that were sold, and extreme cold for extended periods like we had at the beginning of the year is tough,” Dicke said. “All the rain we had this year made trees more susceptible to fungal infections. Growers must keep up a regular spraying schedule every year, no matter how rainy. There are no cures for fungal infections, and once the tree looks sick, it is often too late. The best we can do is perform preventative maintenance.”

Don Kazery Jr. and his wife Terri manage about 800 trees on their 3-acre, choose-and-cut farm just outside Clinton in Hinds County, Mississippi.

“We lost about 70 trees this year during the extreme cold,” Don Kazery Jr. said. “We also had a lot of mortality in our plantation from high winds.”

They purchased a few extra replacement trees in 2013, so their inventory remains stable. Like many other tree producers with high traffic, Kazery intends to plant larger trees to shorten the typical four-year production period required to produce 6- to 8-foot trees.

“Buying larger replacement trees at the beginning of the year helps growers like Don, who have fewer acres and need to rapidly replenish their supply,” Dicke said.

Several varieties of trees are available in Mississippi. Leyland cypress is one of the most popular trees and has very little scent. Other varieties include Arizona cypress, Eastern red cedar, Virginia pine and Eastern white pine.

Prices vary among Christmas tree farms, but on average, consumers can expect to pay $5 to $8 per foot.

For more information about tree varieties available in Mississippi and their characteristics, visit the Southern Christmas Tree Association’s website at <http://www.southernchristmastrees.org>.

Advertising Guidelines

The Mississippi Market Bulletin is published on the 1st and 15th of each month by the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce. The Mississippi Market Bulletin is an important way for the Department to disseminate news and information about issues affecting Mississippi's agriculture industry and the Department's operations.

Through its classified advertising section, the Bulletin provides a forum for Mississippi residents to buy and sell agricultural related items while also giving statewide exposure to small farmers who might not normally have the economic resources for such widespread advertising. The Bulletin does not publish commercial or display ads and all items offered for sale must have been produced, raised, grown or operated on the seller's property. Businesses, corporations, dealerships, brokers or other commercial enterprises are not allowed to advertise in the Mississippi Market Bulletin.

Advertising rules and guidelines have been established for the Mississippi Market Bulletin in order to comply with regulations enforced by the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce and to maintain the objectives of the publication. The staff of the Mississippi Market Bulletin reserves the right to edit, revise or reject any advertisement.

The Mississippi Market Bulletin assumes no responsibility for any notice appearing in the Bulletin nor for any transaction resulting from published notices. Advertisers are cautioned that it is against the law to misrepresent any product offered for sale in public notices or advertisements carried in any publication that is delivered by the United States Postal Service.

- In order to advertise in the Mississippi Market Bulletin you must be a subscriber. To place an ad, you must include your name, mailing address and account number that the subscription is listed under on each ad that you submit (this information will not be printed). Each subscriber is allowed to advertise two ads in the Bulletin, listing one ad per category.
- All listings must be agriculture related (raised, grown, produced or operated on your farm). At the top of your ad, write the category that the ad should be listed under. We reserve the right to edit, revise or reject each ad. Please print or type your ad.
- There is a 30-word limit for classified advertisements, this includes: price (on the item you are selling), your city, county and telephone number or name and complete address must be included in the ad if you do not list a telephone number. Ads cannot be held over from one issue to another. You must submit them for each issue.
- Out-of-state residents are not eligible to advertise with the following exceptions: Out-of-state ads are allowed in the "Wanting To Buy" category. Out-of-state ads are allowed for individuals owning farm property within the state that is being offered for sale (consisting of 10 acres or more).

Sitting by the Fire

By Lise Foy, Director
MS Agriculture & Forestry Museum

This one is hard. I look for inspiration for topics for articles on the Ag Museum on two week intervals. Sometimes it comes from the season of the year that connects me to a childhood memory. Other weeks a speaker at a meeting I've attended or an article I've read prompts my thought process. My next article is always on my mind because writing my bi-weekly thoughts is truly a favorite part of my job. This one, however, brings a different feeling to mind.

November 13, 2014, is definitely a day I will not forget. It was my 39th birthday, my 2nd anniversary for being an employee of the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce (MDAC) and the day the Ag Museum Foundation Board hosted their first awareness breakfast event to kick-off a fundraising effort for improving the facilities.

The day ended with a big fire.

Every employee of the Ag Museum, MDAC employees, Foundation Board Members, and caring volunteers watched as the Jackson Fire Department fought to put out the blaze that claimed the Barnyard, the Veterinary Infirmary, and the Maintenance Shop.

The Jackson Fire Department did an unbelievable job. And we are thankful that no more of the treasure that is the Ag Museum was lost.

At the end of the night, there was a 'staff meeting'. Prayers were said, thankful for no loss of human life. Media updates were written and posted, and we went home.

The next morning, boots were pulled on, and we went to work. Because, just like the ancestors I so often write about, we are Mississippians and that is what we do.

To quote myself from about a year ago, "We are a people who hacked out an existence in the wilderness, survived the loss of husbands and sons through the Civil War, suffered the loss of an entire labor force through Reconstruction, sustained the loss of homes and crops following the Great Flood of 1927 just as we entered the Great Depression of the 1930's, endured judgment of a nation and scars on our souls during the Civil Rights Movement in the 1960's, and still face today the loss of history and homes that Katrina washed away in 2005. Our history is not an easy one, from any view point you take."

So, the thing at home that I remember that goes with my thought gathering over the past two weeks is my husband vowing to fix equipment and train our horse to ensure we would have surrey rides at the Ag Museum. The thing I remember from a meeting is a Foundation Board member expressing how generations of Mississippians care about the heritage that the Ag Museum preserves. And, the thing I remember from an experience is how a staff member agonized through tears over artifacts that are lost forever.

The Ag Museum belongs to the people of Mississippi, and I have no doubt that a fire will not stop our effort to teach the next generation about the importance of agriculture and the innovations our ancestors developed to feed, clothe, and house themselves.

The outpouring of support we have received is overwhelming. To list a few, the Jackson Zoo and the Hinds County Penal Farm took in our animals, the Natural Science Museum, the Museum Café and the Jackson Convention and Visitors Bureau brought us food (that's what southern folk do in a crisis), the Department of Archives and History and the Mississippi Museum of Art are providing assistance with artifact recovery along with volunteers from the Southeastern Museum Conference that includes so many of our neighbors that I cannot list them all.

All I can say is thank you to everyone who has brought food, donated time and knowledge, provided the use of equipment, and given support.

Our Country Christmas event is cancelled for several reasons. Staff members are concentrating on clean up and restoration, so decorating would be difficult. The atmosphere is altered to say the least. But, mostly, the event was to include mule pulled wagon rides. Wagon rides are hard to do with no harnesses; those burned in the fire.

A special young man who planned to celebrate his tenth birthday at the Ag Museum during Country Christmas has started a campaign on Facebook to raise money to replace Joe and Sally's (the mules) harnesses. It's called "Ashland's 10th Birthday Wish." The goal is $2,000.

It is going to take determination, creativity and funding to rebuild.

If you would like to make a donation, make checks payable to the Ag Museum Foundation, 1150 Lakeland Drive, Jackson, MS 39216.

If you would like to volunteer, call 601-432-4500. We need help with artifact cleaning, documentation, and photography, assistance with data entry, people willing to dig through ash and soot to recover what we can, and of course food for volunteers.

This article runs after Thanksgiving, but I'm writing before Thanksgiving. I am thankful for the Mississippi Agriculture and Forestry Museum. And, just like I told the staff, "I love y'all, and we're going to be fine."

In order to accommodate for clean up and artifact restoration, the Ag Museum will be closed to the general public until December 1. All pre-scheduled, private events

Prior to the fire, the Veterinary Infirmary and Children's Barnyard, which housed goats, pigs, horses, and a steer, were a favorite of museum visitors.

A destructive fire on the night of November 13, at the Mississippi Agriculture and Forestry Museum on Lakeland Drive in Jackson destroyed the Children's Barnyard, the Veterinary Infirmary, and significantly damaged the Museum's maintenance shop.

Thanks to the heroic efforts of Ag Museum staff, Kayla Dorrell, and a security guard, all Ag Museum staff and large animals made it out of the buildings safely with only one minor injury reported. The cause of the destructive fire remains unknown at this time.

will take place as planned. Pony-ride birthday parties will be cancelled for the remainder of the year. Once the Ag Museum re-opens, the public will be able to view some of the artifacts that were salvaged from the fire in the triage space set up in the 4-H Museum located on the grounds.

The Ag Museum, located at 1150 Lakeland Drive in Jackson, will resume its normal operating hours of Monday through Saturday from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. when it reopens.
