Short Supplies, High Demand Boost Cattle Producer Profits

By Linda Breazeale
MSU Ag Communications

Mississippi's beef cattle producers just experienced the best year in history, and 2015 looks equally promising.

Mississippi State University Extension Service agricultural economist John Michael Riley said droughts in cattle-producing states, especially in 2012, resulted in tighter supplies, while consumer demand for beef has remained strong.

"Each producer has one question to ask before buying an additional cow to expand a herd," Riley said. "Will she pay for herself in the coming years? The answer will depend on the availability of land and forages, additional labor needs and equipment costs."

Beef cattle, such as these Herefords in Oktibbeha County, are part of Mississippi's fifth most valuable agricultural commodity in the state for 2014. Riley estimated the 2014 value of Mississippi's cattle industry at $397 million, up 33 percent from the previous year. Cattle and calves are the state's fifth largest agricultural commodity behind poultry, forestry, soybeans and cotton.

"The economy continues to improve, which supports higher beef prices at the grocery store," Riley said. "We know retail and restaurant prices will eventually reach a ceiling for consumers, but farm-level cattle prices should not change directions very quickly when that happens."

Riley said Mississippi's lightweight calf prices have averaged around $2.50 per pound in 2014. Heavyweight feeder cattle were closer to $1.80 per pound. By comparison, lighter calves were $1.50 per pound in 2013, and the heavier cattle were around $1.25 per pound.

Riley said low prices occurred in 2009 when lightweight cattle were around $1 per pound and heavyweights were around 85-90 cents per pound. Prices started rising even before major cattle-producing states began to experience droughts about three years ago.

Another positive for the industry -- and it is a big one -- is the lower cost of corn and soybeans, the two

Spring Calving Cows Nutritional Needs

By Clay Wright
Samuel Roberts Noble Foundation

At this time of year, a spring calving cow experiences two periods of increased nutritional need which are significant and must be accommodated or her performance for the rest of the year can be negatively affected. One of these periods, of course, is at calving.

In the first month of lactation, her protein and energy needs have increased by 0.7 lbs. and 2.3 lbs. respectively, compared to her last month of pregnancy. By the second month, as her level of milk production nears maximum, her protein and energy needs have increased major ingredients in cattle feed.

"The droughts that caused producers to reduce their herd sizes also reduced national crop yields and drove up feed costs. Now, we've had a couple growing seasons that were much better, contributing to better feed supplies and lower costs," Riley said.

Brandi Karisch, an MSU Extension beef specialist, said Mississippi's cow/calf operations have had plenty of forage in recent years.

"States with typically large numbers of cattle have reduced their herd sizes because of the lack of forages," she said. "Now, feedlots can't get enough cattle. Most of our cattle are sold to feedlots that finish feeding them out with grains, which are less expensive than in recent years."

Karisch said at the beginning of 2014, Mississippi had 18,000 beef cattle operations with 477,000 cattle.

"Cattle are valuable, so producers are taking good care of them and trying to improve genetics," she said.

Sammy Blossom, executive vice president of the Mississippi Cattlemen's Association, said bull sales have set record prices in the past year.

"Demand for top-quality bulls has grown in recent years, which is evidence our producers are improving genetics," he said. "Producers see the difference in growing good calves and growing ordinary calves."

Additionally, cattle producers are working hard to make their land as productive as possible, he said. They are adding more fertilizer or leasing more land to expand forage capacity.

"Most of our producers rely on forages, not grains, to produce calves to send to feedlots in the Midwest," Blossom said. "The quality of our calves appeals to the feedlots, and they are willing to pay a premium."

Blossom said the long-range forecast for cattle remains strong.

"Medium to large operations are expanding some. They are retaining heifers if there is no large capital investment necessary," he said. "Better managed herds will see long-term benefits."

56% and 27% respectively.

She is not only producing milk but also trying to prepare her body to breed again very soon. Without an immediate, adequate increase in nutrition at calving, a dramatic loss of body condition is common as she uses body stores to meet these new needs. The most common effect of inadequate nutrition after calving is low conception rate during the breeding season.

Possibly the most often overlooked nutritional need for a spring calving cow, however, comes during the last 50 to 60 days of pregnancy. In the first seven months or so of gestation, building a calf does not require a lot of nutrients. In the last two months, however, the fetus makes 75% of its total growth. Additional protein, energy and minerals are needed to build the calf and maintain the cow's increasing weight.

From month six to month nine, this cow's daily protein requirement increases by one-half pound, about 40%. Her energy needs go up 2 lbs. or 20%. These increases aren't as significant as those at calving, but failure to attend to them can negatively effect performance just as much.

The fact is, if a cow is dropping condition in late pregnancy, whether rapidly or imperceptibly, she will not cycle as quickly after calving.

From Our Kitchen To Yours

Beef—It's What's For Dinner.

*****

Popcorn Steak Bites

1 pound beef cubed steaks, cut 1/2 inch thick
6 cups ridged potato chips (any flavor)
1/3 cup all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon pepper
2 large eggs, slightly beaten

Dipping Sauces:

Ranch or Thousand Island dressing, mustard, ketchup or barbeque sauce

Cut beef steaks into 1x1-inch pieces; set aside. Place chips in bowl of food processor. Cover; pulse on and off to form fine crumbs. Combine pepper and flour in a shallow bowl. Place crushed chips and eggs into two additional shallow bowls. Dip steak pieces in flour, and then into egg, then into crushed chips, turning to coat all sides and pressing chips onto steak pieces. Spray rack of broiler pan with nonstick cooking spray. Place beef bites on rack in broiler pan so surface of beef is 6 inches from heat. Broil 8 to 10 minutes or until 160° F. Serve immediately with dipping sauces, as desired.

Tenderloin Steaks with Horseradish Cream

4 beef tenderloin steaks, cut 1 inch thick (about 4 ounces each)
1 tablespoon minced garlic
1/2 teaspoon dried thyme leaves
1/2 teaspoon cracked black pepper
Salt to taste
Horseradish Cream:
1/4 cup dairy sour cream
1 tablespoon prepared horseradish
1 tablespoon finely chopped green onion

Combine garlic, thyme and pepper; press evenly onto beef steaks. Place steaks on grid over medium, ash covered coals. Grill, covered, 10 to 14 minutes (over medium heat on preheated gas grill, 11 to 15 minutes) for medium rare (145° F) to medium (160° F) doneness, turning occasionally. Meanwhile, combine horseradish cream ingredients in small bowl; refrigerate until ready to use. Season steaks with salt, as desired. Serve with horseradish cream.

Muffin-Style Cheeseburger Pizza

1 1/2 pounds ground beef (95% lean)
2 cups pasta sauce (any variety)
1 cup diced onion
1 cup diced red bell pepper
1 tablespoon plus 1 teaspoon dried Italian seasoning
1/4 teaspoon salt
6 English muffins, split, toasted
1/2 cup reduced-fat shredded Cheddar cheese
1/4 cup reduced-fat shredded mozzarella cheese

Preheat oven to 400° F. Heat large nonstick skillet over medium heat until hot. Add ground beef; cook 8 to 10 minutes, breaking beef into small crumbles, stirring occasionally. Add pasta sauce, onion, bell pepper, Italian seasoning and salt; continue cooking 5 minutes or until vegetables are crisp-tender, stirring occasionally. Top each muffin half evenly with beef mixture and cheese. Bake 5 to 7 minutes or until cheese is melted.

Roast Beef Cheddar Pockets

1 package (16 to 17 ounces) refrigerated fully-cooked boneless pot roast with gravy
1 8-ounce package refrigerated crescent rolls
1 cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese, divided
1/3 cup finely chopped sweet onion (optional)
1/4 cup dairy sour cream
Fresh chives

Heat oven to 375° F. Remove pot roast from package, eliminating as much gravy as possible; reserve gravy for another use. Cut pot roast into fine shreds. Unroll crescent dough onto ungreased baking sheet. Separate into 4 rectangles; press diagonal seams to seal. Pull sides of rectangles slightly to enlarge. Combine beef, 3/4 cup cheese and onion, if desired, in a large bowl; mix well. Divide beef mixture into fourths; press mixture to compact and place lengthwise in center of rectangles. Fold the long sides of each rectangle over filling, pressing at top to seal. Press ends to seal. Sprinkle pockets evenly with remaining 1/4 cup cheese. Bake in oven 13 to 16 minutes or until golden brown. Serve with sour cream. Garnish with chives.

Beef Spaghetti Pie Ole

1 pound ground beef
1 teaspoon garlic powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon ground cumin
1 10-ounce can diced tomatoes with green chilies, undrained
3/4 cup light dairy sour cream
1 cup shredded Monterey Jack or Cheddar cheese
Pasta Shell:
1 7-ounce package uncooked spaghetti
1/3 cup shredded Monterey Jack or Cheddar cheese
1 egg
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon garlic powder

Heat oven to 350° F. Cook pasta according to package directions; drain well. In a large bowl, whisk together remaining pasta shell ingredients. Add pasta; toss to coat. Arrange pasta in 9-inch pie dish, pressing down and up the side to form shell; set aside. Meanwhile, heat large nonstick skillet over medium heat until hot. Add ground beef; cook 8 to 10 minutes, breaking up into 3/4-inch crumbles and stirring occasionally. Remove drippings. Stir in 1 teaspoon garlic powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt and cumin. Stir in tomatoes. Bring to a boil; cook 3 to 5 minutes or until liquid is almost evaporated, stirring occasionally. Reserve 2 tablespoons beef mixture for garnish. Stir sour cream into remaining beef; spoon into pasta shell. Place 1 cup cheese in center, leaving 2-inch border around edge. Spoon reserved beef mixture onto center of cheese; bake in oven 15 minutes or until heated through. To serve, cut into wedges.

My Mamaw's Apron

By Lise Foy, Director
MS Agriculture & Forestry Museum

My memories of my Mamaw working in her garden include a vivid picture of the outfit she wore. She wore a 'work' dress with pants underneath, a long-sleeve shirt, gloves, and a hat (all to protect her skin), and her apron.

In preparation for the coming year and new special programming, the Ag Museum staff members have been researching historic clothing, as we will be dressed in period costume during some special events. Small Town, Mississippi, represents the early 1900's, generally focused in 1920. The Fortenberry-Parkman Farmstead is a living history exhibit dating back to 1860. Our research has revealed, as you may imagine, that clothing, specifically farm clothing, worn by rural Mississippians during these times was simple and utilitarian.

Ladies wore dresses with aprons; men wore overalls or galluses to hold their trousers up. Everyone wore hats to protect themselves from the sun. Fabrics were natural fiber, like cotton, wool or linen. There were not too many buttons, because those cost money. Everyone wore boots. The basic fashion trend could be described as 'practical.'

Most of the clothes were likely hand-made. The fabric might have been woven by hand, purchased at the General Store if there was some extra money, or recycled from flour sacks.

My grandmother knew how to make a shirt. She worked part-time at a shirt factory in Winona to help make ends meet. She knew that it took three flour sacks to make a shirt, and so would instruct 'the men' to pick up three bags that matched when they bought flour.

Mamaw could sew a lot more than shirts too. She made most of her own clothes as I remember, as well as quilts and 'granny-square' crochet afghans. I had a few lessons on her old treadle sewing machine, a few quilting lessons, and a few crochet lessons. How I wish I could turn that clock back! I inherited some of her sewing equipment, including a Singer sewing machine, many miscellaneous notions, and her well-worn crochet hooks.

There was one piece of hand-made clothing at her house I remember specifically; a green gingham half-apron with needlepoint work on the pockets. This 'fancy' apron was the one she wore on Sundays, and sometimes I got to wear it if I was helping in her kitchen.

Milking "Bessie" in 1900. It appears that this farm wife changed into her "Sunday Best" clothes to have this picture taken.

As we have gathered our supplies and ideas for costume creation at the Ag Museum, we are focused on 'flour sack' dresses with aprons and overalls. My Aunt (Mamaw's daughter) shared old patterns we are altering, and those of us who sew are working away at farm dresses for the staff and volunteer interpreters. We are in need of period hats for our 'costume closet', in case some of you just happen to have some lying around.

I look forward to wearing my 'antique' dress and apron. It brings to mind happy memories at my Mamaw's house, helping in the garden or the kitchen. And, that green apron, that somehow meant so much when I got to wear it.

Grandma's Apron

The strings were tied, it was freshly washed, and maybe even pressed.

For Grandma, it was everyday to choose one when she dressed.

The simple apron that it was, you would never think about;

The things she used it for, that made it look worn out.

She may have used it to hold some wildflowers that she'd found.

Or to hide a crying child's face when a stranger came around.

Imagine all the little tears that were wiped with just that cloth.

Or it became a potholder to serve some chicken broth.

She probably carried kindling to stoke the kitchen fire.

To hold a load of laundry, or to wipe the clothesline wire.

When canning all her vegetables, it was used to wipe her brow.

You never know, she might have used it to shoo flies from the cow.

She might have carried eggs in from the chicken coop outside.

Whatever chore she used it for, she did them all with pride.

When Grandma went to heaven, God said she now could rest.

I'm sure the apron that she chose, was her Sunday best.

Livestock Show Offers Exceptional Rewards

By Linda Breazeale
MSU Ag Communications

Livestock exhibitors work hard for trophies and blue ribbons, but they occasionally earn intangible rewards that will never collect dust.

Christy King, an agent with the Mississippi State University Extension Service in Clarke County since 2010, knows what typical 4-H members learn through livestock projects.

"Most participants learn about responsibility as they care for their animals, and then they gain self-confidence and the ability to win or lose with grace in the shows," King said. "Our Special Needs Livestock Show teaches traditional exhibitors to look beyond their own world and recognize the value of others in our community as they assist their peers with disabilities in the arena."

King resurrected the once popular show in 2012 after it had been on hiatus for about a decade. On January 23, she watched as 22 exhibitors with special needs received trophies for their efforts under the watchful eyes of active 4-H exhibitors of hogs, goats and lambs.

"This show builds relationships between regular education and special education students and bolsters citizenship, leadership and self-esteem. This makes the 4-H livestock project accessible to special education students regardless of their physical or mental challenges," King said. "The response from each group is remarkable."

Brittany Conner, a student at Quitman High School who has been showing for five years, said helping with the special needs show is a highlight of her year.

"I know what it's like to have some educational challenges, so I really enjoy sharing this experience with others," Conner said. "Since I've been doing this, I'm more likely to visit with these students throughout the year."

tion teacher in the Quitman School District. She knows the benefits young people gain from working with livestock firsthand because her daughter is involved in the 4-H Livestock Program.

"This field trip is a great opportunity for our students and provides more hands-on learning than most other trips," Riley said. "We study livestock before we come to the show so that students know what we get from hogs, sheep and goats. They also enjoy interacting with their classmates or students from other schools."

Riley also pointed to the sense of pride students gain from receiving their trophies, which were provided by the Great Southern National Bank.

"The activities surrounding this show promote communication, fine motor and social skills," she said. "They also get the opportunity to meet a celebrity judge."

This year, U.S. Congressman Gregg Harper served as the celebrity judge, presenting trophies for categories such as best-dressed lamb, most athletic goat and cutest pig. He commended King and the Clarke County 4-H members for making the show possible.

"As the parent of a child with special needs, I know how much it means to that child for people to show they care," Harper said. "We all know that every child -- with special needs or not -- can always do better with support, time and love from others."

Rozanne Evans, whose ninth-grade son took part in his third show this year, said she knows he enjoys the experience.

"He loves the trophy and the interaction with the other students, but he especially enjoys being around the animals," she said. "His favorite part is showing the pigs."

Virginia Sweetspire is a Perfect Shrub

By Gary R. Bachman
MSU Horticulturist
Coastal Research & Extension Center

If you're like me and most other home gardeners, you want shrubs to have multiseason interest and be versatile, beautiful AND low maintenance. This is no small list to consider when looking for shrubs at the garden center or nursery.

I may know the ideal shrub that has all these traits and is also a Mississippi native. Virginia sweetspire is perfect for the shrub border or woodland setting. In fact, Virginia sweetspire was selected as a Mississippi Medallion winner for 2011.

This Mississippi native shrub has an erect, densely branched stem when grown in full sun and a looser, more open habit when grown in partial shade. The native Virginia sweetspire typically grows from 3 to 4 feet tall and 4 to 6 feet wide in landscape settings. You may have to prune it to keep the plant neat and tidy.

Plant Virginia sweetspire in shrub borders or foundation plantings because the foliage will form a dense barrier.

The foliage is dark green and changes to a brilliant red in the fall. Virginia sweetspire is evergreen most years in the coastal region and semi-evergreen to deciduous in northern Mississippi. In coastal counties, Virginia sweetspire holds its gorgeous red foliage well into the winter months, depending on frosts and freezes. Plant in full sun to experience the best fall color production.

The flowers are produced in groups on racemes that are up to 6 inches long and resemble fireworks. Individual, star-like flowers are small and fragrant. The tiny flowers start to open from the base to the tip and have a prolonged bloom period. These flowers are a nice addition to the landscape when there are few shrubs and trees in bloom. Perform any pruning after flowering because the flowers are produced on the previous year's stems.

Two commonly available selections have a compact and uniform growth habit. Henry's Garnet will grow to 4 feet tall and spreads up to 6 feet wide. Fall color is a brilliant garnet red, and the flowering racemes are much larger and longer than those on other species.

Little Henry has a mounded and compact growth habit that is suitable for mass plantings. It requires little, if any, pruning to maintain shape. The summer foliage color is bright green, and fall colors include a nice combination of vivid reds and oranges.

Sarah's Eve is an interesting selection with flowers described as having a soft tinge of orange-red on the stems. I have this selection growing in my garden and find it to be a fine landscape plant. Maybe it's because my landscape is in the southern coastal zone, but I don't really see the interesting coloration it is supposed to have.

There are no serious pests or diseases of Virginia sweetspire, making these shrubs wonderful, low-maintenance plants. It is also a good choice for protecting your landscape from deer if they cause problems in your area.

Virginia sweetspire is described as tolerating wet soil, but for optimum growth, you should always plant in amended landscape soil that has good drainage. Fertilize in the spring and fall using a slow-release product formulated for trees and shrubs.

Virginia Sweetspire is an understory plant in the wild and transplants well from container-grown stock. This shrub can have a clumping growth habit, and suckering from the roots can be useful for erosion control on sloped areas.
