2016 Garden Extravaganza in Jackson

By Paula Pettis
Prissy Pots Landscaping
and Haley Barrett, MNLA

Who needs a great event to officially kick off spring? We have just the event that will make you want to get your hands dirty!! Mark your calendars for the 19th Annual Garden Extravaganza (formerly the Jackson Garden & Patio Show) March 18, 19 and 20, at the Mississippi Trade Mart on the Mississippi Fairgrounds. The Mississippi Nursery and Landscape Association (MNLA) is excited to bring so many vendors together in one central location for all of your garden and patio needs: flowers, trees, landscape professionals, equipment, yard art, ironwork, pottery, one-of-a-kind birdhouses, garden accessories and much, much more. Admission is only $6 per person, children 15 & under get in free, and as always, there is plenty of parking and it's free.

The early bird gets the worm, or in our case the tomato plant. The first 100 people through the door on Friday and Sunday and the first 200 people on Saturday will get a free tomato plant courtesy of Rivers Plant Farm and Jackson Farms Nursery.

All three days will be filled with demonstrations and seminars. Our exciting 'how to' demonstrations and seminars will be located on the showroom floor and will include topics such as: hot plants for 2016, how to create the perfect mixed containers, and much more. Since the Garden Extravaganza is a family friendly event, we have also added 'make and take' demonstrations to the Children's Activity Area to teach kids fun gardening skills. Ball Seed Company and BWI Companies team up with MNLA to sponsor this area.

For a complete list of seminars and demonstrations, please visit www.msnla.org. All seminars and demonstrations are free with paid admission. While at the show, be sure to register for fabulous door prizes donated from our wonderful exhibitors.

As in year's past, attendees will get the opportunity to view several of Central Mississippi's finest landscaper's work in the Outdoor Living Spaces competition area. These Outdoor Living Spaces will be in the middle of the exhibit hall, will serve as the focal point for this year's show, and will give you great ideas on how to make your outdoor space the best it can be. These Outdoor Living Spaces will incorporate a wide range of styles, from the outdoor kitchen area, the secluded backyard retreat, tranquil water features, family entertainment areas, and lounge areas to watch your favorite show or team. All of the landscape professionals will be on hand to discuss how to make your landscape dreams a reality.

Is your grass looking less than green? Is there a fungus among us? Do you have mysterious weeds? As always, the experts from Mississippi State University Extension Service will be there to answer any questions, provide information and test soil for free.

Of course, the real stars of the show are always the flowers. You'll find this year's Mississippi Medallion Award Winners, tropicals, ferns, trees, shrubs, roses, bedding plants, vegetables, herbs and so much more. Many of the garden centers will have dish gardens, fairy gardens, beautiful hanging baskets and gorgeous mixed containers that are ready to brighten your porch for the spring.

Not sure which plants that you need? We will have plenty of people that can help you with that. There will be numerous garden center employees, landscapers and MSU experts available to help you out. Bring pictures of the area or container that you are buying plants for and know the amount of sunlight and shade that the area receives. These are very important things to know when shopping for plants.

Do not worry about what you will do with all your purchases. There will be a customer holding area available. You will check in the products that you buy and continue shopping without having to carry your purchases around. Once you are finished shopping, you can drive around to the back and have your purchases loaded in your vehicle. It's like valet for your plants.

Visit our website www.msnla.org, find us on Facebook, or call 601-919-8111 for more information about the 2016 Garden Extravaganza. Like us on Facebook for a chance to win tickets - Mississippi Garden & Patio Shows!

From Our Kitchen To Yours

Sensational Spring Salads

*****

Deviled Egg Salad

12 eggs, hard boiled and peeled
1/4 cup chopped green onion
1/2 cup chopped celery
1/2 cup chopped red bell pepper
3 tablespoons Dijon mustard
1/3 cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon cider, white wine or sherry vinegar
A few drops of Tabasco or other hot sauce
1/4 teaspoon paprika
Salt and black pepper to taste

Chop the eggs coarsely and put them into a large bowl. Add the green onion, celery and red bell pepper. In a small bowl, mix together the mayonnaise, mustard, vinegar and hot sauce. Gently stir the mayonnaise dressing into the bowl with the eggs and vegetables. Add paprika and salt and pepper to taste. Best served chilled.

Mixed Berry and Banana Fruit Salad

2 cups hulled, roughly chopped strawberries
A handful of raspberries
1 cup blueberries
1 apple, peeled, cored, roughly chopped
2 bananas, peeled and thickly sliced
1/2 teaspoon lemon zest
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon honey

Prep the berries before the bananas and apples, and add them to a large bowl. As soon as you add the bananas and apples, sprinkle lemon juice over them to keep them from getting brown. Add the zest and the honey and gently toss to combine. Serve immediately. Or cover and chill for up to 2 hours before serving.

Cherry Tomato Cucumber Feta Salad

2-3 cups cherry and/or pear tomatoes, sliced in half
1 cup chopped cucumber, peeled (and seeded if seeds are bitter)
1/4 cup crumbled feta cheese
1 tablespoon finely chopped mint leaves
1 teaspoon fresh, chopped oregano
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons finely chopped shallots or green onions
2 teaspoons olive oil
Coarse salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste

Gently toss the tomatoes, cucumber, feta, onions, mint and oregano together. Dress with lemon juice, olive oil, salt and pepper to taste.

Shrimp and Avocado Salad

1/4 cup of white wine vinegar
1/4 cup olive oil
1 green onion, thinly sliced
1/2 pound small or extra small shrimp, cooked, peeled and de-veined
2 ripe avocados
Lettuce – preferably butter lettuce or red leaf lettuce
Optional–2 tablespoons chopped roasted walnuts or pistachios
1 tablespoon chopped cilantro
Lemon slices for garnish

Combine oil, vinegar and green onions in a bowl. Chop shrimp into 1/2-inch pieces and add to oil mixture. Arrange leaves of lettuce on individual plates. Cut avocados in half and remove pits. Remove some of the avocado around the pit area and mix in with the shrimp. With a spoon, carefully scoop out avocado halves from their skins in one piece. Place avocado half on plate with lettuce. Spoon shrimp mixture on to avocado. Sprinkle with walnuts and cilantro (optional). Serve with lemon slices for garnish.

Chicken Apple Arugula Goat Cheese Salad

Olive oil
1 large shallot, peeled and sliced
1 1/2 pounds skinless, boneless chicken breast, cut into 1-inch cubes
1 tart green apple, thinly sliced and roughly chopped
Baby arugula leaves – enough for a salad for four
1/4 cup toasted walnuts, roughly chopped
1/4 cup goat cheese – broken up into small pieces
Lemon juice
Salt and pepper

Heat a tablespoon of olive oil in a stick-free frying pan on medium heat. When the oil is hot, add the shallot slices and lightly sauté them until translucent. Remove shallots from pan and set aside. Heat another tablespoon of olive oil in the pan and when the oil is hot, add the chicken breast pieces. Cook chicken, stirring occasionally, until just cooked through, 5 to 10 minutes. Sprinkle some salt on the chicken while cooking. Remove chicken from pan and chill. Once the chicken has cooled, toss together in a serving bowl the shallots, chicken, sliced green apple, arugula, toasted walnuts and goat cheese. Dress with olive oil, lemon juice, salt and pepper to taste.

Using Poultry Litter as Fertilizer Source in Forage Systems

By Dr. Rocky Lemus

MSU Extension Forage Specialist

Poultry was the top agricultural commodity in Mississippi in 2015 with 730 M broilers produced. Poultry litter should serve as an excellent complement to commercial fertilizer fertilizers. Poultry litter contains more of the three components needed in a fertilizer (nitrogen, phosphorus, and potassium) than does manure from other animals. Phosphorus (P) content in poultry litter is usually high, and applications rates should be based on P levels to avoid potential surface water contamination.

Besides the fertilization advantage, poultry litter can also serve as a soil amendment by adding organic matter, which can help improve soil and nutrient retention. It is important to note that organic matter benefit will vary with soil type, rainfall, temperature, drainage and microbial activity. However, in areas with high poultry production, over fertilization of hay and pastureland occurs with poultry litter.

Using poultry litter should be based on two main principles: (1) always collect a soil sample to determine nutrient deficiencies in your forage system and (2) get a nutrient analysis of the poultry litter to determine the nutrient composition and adjust application rates. Forage producers having soils testing low or medium in phosphorus can profitably use poultry litter as a soil amendment.

For maximum efficiency of poultry litter, it is essential to know the nutrient content of the manure. A laboratory analysis should be done to the poultry litter with at least four weeks prior to application to determine the actual nutrient rate being applied and nutrient availability to the crop. This is also important because depending on the type of poultry operation, the manure composition can vary in nutrient content. Using poultry litter at high application rates over a periods of years is an unsustainable practice due the opportunity for soils to accumulate excessive levels of phosphorous loss to the environment through leaching and runoff.

Poultry litter can vary in physical and chemical composition due to the type of birds being raised, the number of birds per unit area, type and amount of bedding material (wood shavings and sawdust), nutrient density of their diets, storage, and post production handling methods. Most of the poultry litter across the state is stockpiled which allows the litter to go through some degree of composting. Because most of the piles are unprotected and might have moisture from rainfall events, the moisture will decompose the organic nitrogen and allow mineralization.

Data from North Carolina State University have shown the average poultry fertilizer plant nutrient content (Table 1) and how the nutrient content can impact application rates and nutrient availability. Note that nitrogen (N) in the manure can be highly variable and some N is in the form of ammonium. Ammonia is volatile and it could be loss to the atmosphere, especially at high temperature and humidity. The availability of organic forms of N, P and K (potassium) may be affected as well by rainfall, wind and sunlight.

Depending on how the poultry litter is being applied, nitrogen availability can vary. Poultry litter being incorporated has a nutrient availability coefficient of 0.60 and litter being broadcast has a nutrient availability of 0.50. Phosphorus and K has an average nutrient availability coefficient of 0.85 during the first year of litter application. Determine the available nutrients by multiplying these values by the nutrient composition values listed in the manure analysis report.

For example, let's take the stockpiled litter analysis presented in table 1 and apply the litter at a rate of 2 ton/acre. That means that the application contains 72 lb N, 160 lb P<sub>2</sub>O<sub>5</sub> and 68 lb K<sub>2</sub>O per acre. The first year only 36 lb N (72 x 0.5 = 36), 136 lb P<sub>2</sub>O<sub>5</sub> (160 x 0.85 = 136), and 58 lb K<sub>2</sub>O (68 x 0.85) per acre.

Litter application rates to hay production systems (bermudagrass, tall fescue, bahiagrass, forage sorghums, etc.) are generally determined by matching the available nitrogen or phosphorus content to the nutrient requirement of the crop. Most of the hay systems in Mississippi will require 40 to 50 lb of nitrogen per ton of hay produced. In most forage systems, the nitrogen requirements may determine the application rate, unless those areas as designated as "nutrient sensitive (P levels in the high to very high levels)" where P can move offsite (leaching or runoff).

It is also important to keep in mind that excessive poultry litter applications to forage crops can cause high nitrate concentrations and can impact livestock through nitrate poisoning or create nutrient imbalances such as grass tetany. If application rates are based on soil P levels indicated in the soil test, the litter might not supply the adequate amount of other nutrients [N, K, calcium (Ca), magnesium (Mg), and sulfur (S)] that are required by the forage crop. In this case, be sure to supplement those nutrients with the most adequate commercial fertilizer to fulfill the plant nutrient requirements.

In addition, it is important monitoring your soil pH to help optimize forage yields, nutrient availability, and promote the decomposition of the organic matter. In a poultry litter nutrient management program for forage crops, it is recommended to take annual or biennial soil samples to monitor changes in pH and changes in soil nutrient content (especially P).

One question often asked by producers is: when should applied my poultry litter?

To minimize nitrogen losses, litter should be applied as near as possible to the growing season. That means that for most warm season hay systems we are looking at spring. Applications in the fall or winter for crops grown in the summer can increase nutrient losses. For sandy soils like those present in south Mississippi, manure applications should be made more frequently and lower rates because those soils have a higher water infiltration and lower capability to hold nutrients. These conditions can increase N and K leaching under high rainfall events.

Keep mind that the longer the poultry litter is held prior to its application to forage systems, the more available N is lost to the atmosphere. Stockpiling uncovered poultry litter can cause reduction in nitrogen content. The least expensive method (but not the most effective) to temporary protect stockpiled litter consists of using plastic sheeting anchored with earth or old tires. When using this method, it is recommended to use an elevated area that is well drained and away from drainage ditches.

Improperly stockpiled litter can also generate sufficient heat to cause fire. Stockpiled litter should not exceed seven feet deep from the center of the pile and monitor temperature of the pile, since litter with temperatures that exceed 180 °F can cause spontaneous combustion. It is also important to keep different age litter stored separately.

How poultry litter application compares to commercial fertilizer?

Let's assume that a stockpiled litter that will be broadcast shows it contains 36 lbs of nitrogen, 136 lbs of phosphate and 58 lbs of potash per ton. If the fertilizer prices are as follows: $0.51 per pound of nitrogen (urea), $0.41 per pound of phosphate, and $0.41 per pound of potash. One ton of broiler litter will be worth the following: (36 x $0.51) + (136 x $0.41) + (58 x $0.41) = $97.88 per ton assuming that the soil test is recommending each nutrient. Nutrients not needed should not be considered when estimating the economic value of the poultry litter.

Now, let's assume a hay field that needs to be fertilized based on soil test recommendations. The recommendation was for a soil with a medium P and low K level. The recommendation is to use 100 lbs N, 30 lbs P (65 lbs of P<sub>2</sub>O<sub>5</sub>) and 60 lbs K/acre (100 lbs K<sub>2</sub>O). In this case, the producer needs to apply 2.8 tons of poultry litter to meet the nitrogen requirements, that means that the cost of application will go up. If we assume that commercial price of poultry litter is $50 per ton including delivery, that cost will be $140 per acre. If we take the same recommendations and calculate the cost of commercial fertilizer. The producer will need 294 lbs of ammonium nitrate, 65 lbs of triple phosphate and 100 lbs of potash.

Base on the cost per pound of fertilizer the cost of commercial fertilizer will be (100 x $0.51) + (30 x $0.41) + (60 x $0.41) = $87.90. This indicates a much lower cost of application. Therefore, poultry litter could be a good source on nutrients, only when there is a major deficiency and not needed in very large quantities.

When using poultry litter, forage producers should practice soil fertility management practices that will allow for plant uptake and reduce nutrient imbalances. Keep in mind that the value of poultry litter varies with demand, nutrient composition, accessibility, and forage crop requirements.

A successful utilization of poultry litter will depend on four factors: (1) obtaining a soil test to determine soil nutrient levels, (2) calculating the nutrient requirement for the forage crop, (3) obtaining a poultry litter nutrient analysis, and (4) applying poultry litter rates that are environmentally sustainable.

Mamaw's Food Was Locally Sourced

By Lise Foy
Contributing Writer

When the daffodils start blooming, I get excited! The time to dig in the dirt is near!

As I have been planning my gardening operation this winter, I just can't help but think of Ruby in Cold Mountain, a film released in 2003 starring Nicole Kidman and Renee Zellweger. Ruby, played by Zellweger, was a tough young woman who knew how to run a farm, and Ada, played by Kidman, was a gentle southern lady who did not have a clue. The movie was set in North Carolina in 1861 to 1863 and all the men were away fighting in the Civil War.

Ada was left alone on the farm with no money, food or livelihood. Ruby shows Ada how to survive, beginning with getting a mean rooster into a pot for supper, and later how to plant the garden with a succession plan and how to mend a fence. As I walk and plan for my garden and future orchard, I like to channel Ruby or think of the Fortenberry-Parkman family who lived in the Farmstead on exhibit at the Ag Museum.

It is fun to research 'the way it used to be done' and use some of those practices. Because, you know, our ancestors 'knew how', and furthermore practiced methods that are all the buzz now. Things like organic, sustainable, and locally grown were just a way of life. While they did not use those terms necessarily, they grew their food that way.

The March 1905 issue of Country Life in America featured a memoir of a young woman's account of her farming operation. She practiced the following 'old' rules and reports them to be reliable and satisfactory.

- Plant corn when the oak leaf is the size of a squirrel's foot (or ear).

- Plant beans when corn is coming through the ground.
- Plant beans on St. Dunstan's Day (May 19).
- Plant lima beans with the eye down.

Many of the rules of thumb for garden planning were learned from Native Americans. One I plan to try this year is the Three Sisters garden. According to Iroquois legend, corn, beans and squash are three inseparable sisters who only grow and thrive together. This tradition of interplanting corn, beans and squash in the same mounds, widespread among Native American farming societies, is a sophisticated, sustainable system that provided long-term soil fertility and a healthy diet to generations.

Corn provides a natural pole for bean vines to climb. Beans fix nitrogen on their roots, improving the overall fertility of the plot by providing nitrogen to the following years' corn. Bean vines also help stabilize the corn plants, making them less vulnerable to blowing over in the wind. Shallow-rooted squash vines become a living mulch, shading emerging weeds and preventing soil moisture from evaporating, thereby improving the overall crops' chances of survival in dry years. Spiny squash plants also help discourage predators from approaching the corn and beans. The large amount of crop residue from this planting combination can be incorporated back into the soil at the end of the season, to build up the organic matter and improve its structure.

The Three Sisters garden is also a nutritionally balanced diet. Corn provides carbohydrates; the dried beans are rich in protein, balancing the lack of necessary amino acids found in corn. Finally, squash yields both vitamins from the fruit and healthy, delicious oil from the seeds.

The Ag Museum Victory Garden next to the Farmstead has educational visuals about plant science.

Isn't all that just amazing!

I know my Mamaw knew a lot about gardening. From her small backyard plot, she always had tomatoes, beans, okra and squash in the summer. She had a fig tree, a pear tree and an orchard of peach trees. She used the kitchen 'trash' from the vegetables for compost and newspaper for mulch. I know there were bugs and birds that ate well in her back yard, but I also know she had enough to pack her cupboard with jars of home-canned food to last her for months. How I would love to have a conversation with her about how to plan my garden and help her peel peaches in her kitchen one more time.

I have always used the rule of planting my first squash seeds, tomatoes, and other summer vegetables on Good Friday, or close to that date. And it just will not come soon enough this year!

If you do not have your own plot, you can visit the Ag Museum gardens and enjoy communion with vegetable and herb plants and learn about old fashioned food production and preservation. The Victory Garden next to the Farmstead has educational visuals about plant science alongside the history of WWI and WWII era gardening. The Doctor's Herb Garden, newly renovated, features historical information about herb use next to each plant.

Mark your calendars for the Annual Easter Egg Hunt on March 26 and Spring Farm Days April 28-30. You just don't want to miss a trip to the Ag Museum to the grounds in the Spring!

The Ag Museum is located at 1150 Lakeland Drive in Jackson and is open Monday through Saturday from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. In addition to our gallery and exhibit spaces, the Ag Museum also has room for your event, whether it's a meeting, a wedding or other special event. # National Ag Day – Thank A Farmer

By Paige Manning
 Director of Marketing and Public Relations - MDAC

As only two percent of our population is involved in production agriculture, I consider myself to be one of the fortunate few to have grown up on a farm. If you were to ask my family what they do for a living, they would probably reply that they are “just” farmers. But for those who know the challenges that farmers face each day, you know that farmers are more than “just” farmers. Farmers often play the role of veterinarian, engineer, meteorologist, scientist, conservationist, environmentalist and provider – provider of food, fiber, fuel and a number of other items that contain agricultural products.

Mississippi fruit and vegetables that were ordered by schools across that state last year.

On National Ag Day, which is designated as March 15, we take the time to recognize the contributions of farmers and the importance of agriculture. Agriculture has shaped Mississippi’s history and economy. Mississippi’s 37,100 farms contributed $7.4 billion to the state’s economy last year. Agriculture remains the largest industry in our state, employing 29 percent of the state’s workforce either directly or indirectly. Ninety-six percent of the farms in that state are considered family farms. While we may be known for catfish and sweet potatoes, Mississippi farmers produce a wide variety of crops from poultry to cotton, corn and cattle, just to name a few. These farmers are feeding, clothing and providing fuel for the world. Mississippi farmers can be found selling at one of the state’s 85 farmers markets. Some of these same farmers grew the nearly 33,000 cases of

In celebration of National Ag Day, I encourage you to take the time to thank a farmer. Also, the next time you visit the grocery store or your local farmers market, take a moment to reflect on the countless food choices made available to you courtesy of a farmer. If you want to learn more about where your food comes from, visit one of the state’s 69 agritourism operations that are educating the next generation on the importance of agriculture and what life is like on a farm. These farms can be found at www.msagritourism.org. If you want to step back in time and learn more about the history of agriculture in Mississippi, make plans to visit the Mississippi Agriculture and Forestry Museum located at 1150 Lakeland Drive in Jackson. The Museum is open Monday – Saturday from 9:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. For additional details, visit msagmuseum.com. To all of our farmers, “thank you” and Happy National Ag Day.
