2016 Offers Bright Hopes for State's Poultry, Eggs

By Linda Breazeale
MSU Extension Service

Mississippi poultry and egg companies are poised for expansions to fill the national gaps caused by the 2015 bird flu outbreaks in other states.

Tom Tabler, poultry specialist with the Mississippi State University Extension Service, said companies are looking for more broiler growers or additional barns on existing farms.

"Poultry companies anticipate strength at least in the short term, but anything can change that optimism," he said.

During the week ending April 9, Mississippi placed 14.7 million broiler-type chicks for meat production. (MSU Extension Service file photo/Kat Lawrence)

"Feed costs are reasonable right now, but a drought or other problems this summer could run up grain prices and therefore production costs."

Mississippi's poultry industry benefited from higher egg prices in 2015. Bird flu primarily impacted commercial turkey houses and egg layers but not broiler houses. While most of the state's poultry industry is broiler production, Mississippi is home to Cal-Maine, the nation's largest egg production company. None of Cal-Maine's facilities across the country were struck by the flu.

"Avian influenza caused a shortage of eggs and laying hens, so prices for both are strong," Tabler said. "During the outbreak, export markets dried up for broilers and are still slow to recover."

During the week ending April 9, Mississippi placed 14.7 million broiler-type chicks for meat production, according to a U.S. Department of Agriculture report. That was 3 percent fewer than the number placed that week in 2015 and 1 percent fewer than the number placed as of April 2. Mississippi hatcheries set 18 million broiler-type eggs during the same period, up 1 percent from last year but down slightly from the previous week.

During the seven-month period of the 2015 outbreak, almost 50 million birds died, primarily in Minnesota and Iowa. Bird flu only affected commercial birds that never entered into the food chain; it has not posed a threat to consumers.

Tabler said the best news for Mississippi growers is the absence of a bird flu outbreak this winter.

"We are not completely out of the woods, but every day closer to warm temperatures is a day closer to conditions that will prevent the highly pathogenic avian influenza virus from surviving," he said. "There was a nationwide effort to increase biosecurity on poultry farms, and that may have been a factor in limiting outbreaks in 2016."

The only outbreak reported recently occurred in a commercial turkey flock in mid-January in Indiana.

"Our increased biosecurity practices will have long-term benefits for the industry," Tabler said.

Brian Williams, an agricultural economist with the MSU Extension Service, said egg prices are the lowest they have been since June 2012.

"Egg prices are running just under a dollar, almost a third of what they were in August, when they reached $2.67 per dozen," Williams said. "Broiler prices have been steady for the last several months at about $1.11 per pound."

6 tablespoons canola oil
1 1/2 cups sweet potatoes, peeled and cubed

1/4 cup green bell pepper, diced
3 tablespoons fresh parsley, chopped
1 clove minced garlic
Kosher salt, to taste
Fresh, ground black pepper, to taste

Preheat oven to 400°F. On two separate baking sheets, place the russet potatoes on one and the sweet potatoes on the other. Toss the potatoes with two tablespoons canola oil on each tray and season with salt and pepper. Bake in the oven stirring occasionally until the potatoes are browned and cooked through. Set aside. In a large nonstick skillet, heat two tablespoons canola oil. Add the garlic, onion, red pepper and green pepper. Sauté the vegetables until they are tender, about eight minutes. Add the turkey, roasted potatoes and chopped parsley. Heat through and keep warm. Serve with poached eggs and toast. Makes 8 servings.

2016 Mississippi Easter Egg Artist

Each year the Mississippi Egg Marketing Board seeks artists, both professional and amateur, to submit decorative Easter Eggs that represent Mississippi's culture. The chosen egg is presented to First Lady Deborah Bryant. Corinne Barnhill of Brandon is a lifelong artist, who has been primarily self-taught, and hobbyist, who works with several various mediums, including pencil, water color and mixed media. The selected entry was decorated with decals made from Mrs. Barnhill's original artwork. The decals chosen for her entry feature a magnolia blossom, Mississippi's state flower and a clown face painting on a small child during a Mississippi craft festival. Congratulations to Corinne Barnhill of Brandon.

Annual Legislative Luncheon

Several members of the Mississippi State Legislature assisted attendees at the annual "Make Your Own Omelet" event, hosted by the Mississippi Egg Marketing Board and Mississippi Poultry Association.

Spring, or Rather, When Life Begins

By Grant Briscoe
Director of Collections
Mississippi Agriculture
& Forestry Museum

The new year officially rings in on January 1st, but to me, the year does not begin until spring sneaks its way out of the symbolic shadows of winter. I am excited for the year to truly begin as I watch the world awaken and put on its brightest colors.

I am also excited for this year for another reason: I get to begin my first full year as a Mississippian. Last year brought me from Missouri to Mississippi as I took my position as director of collections at the Mississippi Agriculture & Forestry Museum. I want to express my gratitude to everybody for adopting me and my family.

In December, my wife and I welcomed a little boy into the world. He is already rolling over, trying to talk, playing with toys, and is an absolute joy. His development reflects the life cycle which plays out around him as leaves sprout out of seemingly barren trees.

My work life is beginning as well. I spent 2015 at the Ag Museum trying to get a grasp of the collections and the job. When I say I work in collections, I mean the "old stuff." I touch the stuff that says "Do Not Touch," and work to ensure it lasts forever. But, this year I am finally confident enough in my understanding of what is here that I can comfortably answer questions or at least find out where to go to find the answer.

As director of collections, I have the wonderful opportunity to field calls from, and visit with, Mississippians who wish to donate items from their families and farms to the Ag Museum. It is magical when I travel to pick up donations and help these objects start a new life at our museum. Although the objects start new lives with our museum, to some of us, certain artifacts represent a rebirth.

When I applied for my position, I was horrified to learn that there had been a massive fire in November 2014 at the Ag Museum. At the museum, we have been experiencing our own version of spring, as we blossom from the winter of our fire. The fire claimed a number of artifacts, but spring has a special way of healing us.

One artifact lost to us in the fire was an Eagle cotton gin. In March, I had the opportunity to accept a new Eagle cotton gin, the same type as was lost. Tears were shed as we felt our former gin brought back from the grave. That was just the start of spring.

Our spring is now in full bloom with the birth of our Education Collection, a set of artifacts which are available to be handled by our visitors, bringing history to life. Our programs are blossoming as well. "Meet the Museum" is new this year and allows guests to get a glimpse behind the scenes of the museum every third Saturday morning.

On April 28-30, we celebrated our spring in a very literal manner. Spring Farm Days allowed guests to see cooking demos, a large equipment display, and most even met some baby chicks and chickens.

I hope to see you at the Ag Museum and hopefully be able to show off some of the ways spring has sprung. Who knows? Maybe a visit can even give new birth to a love for our history in this season marked by new life.

Please take the time to follow us and keep up with upcoming events on our website at www.msagmuseum.org and on our Facebook page at www.facebook.com/msag-museum.

Roses are blooming as the Ag Museum welcomes spring with open arms.

Advertising Guidelines

The Mississippi Market Bulletin is published on the 1st and 15th of each month by the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce. The Mississippi Market Bulletin is an important way for the Department to disseminate news and information about issues affecting Mississippi's agriculture industry and the Department's operations.

Through its classified advertising section, the Bulletin provides a forum for Mississippi residents to buy and sell agricultural related items while also giving statewide exposure to small farmers who might not normally have the economic resources for such widespread advertising. The Bulletin does not publish commercial or display ads and all items offered for sale must have been produced, raised, grown or operated on the seller's property. Businesses, corporations, dealerships, brokers or other commercial enterprises are not allowed to advertise in the Mississippi Market Bulletin.

Advertising rules and guidelines have been established for the Mississippi Market Bulletin in order to comply with regulations enforced by the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce and to maintain the objectives of the publication. The staff of the Mississippi Market Bulletin reserves the right to edit, revise or reject any advertisement.

The Mississippi Market Bulletin assumes no responsibility for any notice appearing in the Bulletin nor for any transaction resulting from published notices. Advertisers are cautioned that it is against the law to misrepresent any product offered for sale in public notices or advertisements carried in any publication that is delivered by the United States Postal Service.

To place an ad, you must include your name, mailing address and account number that the subscription is listed under on each ad that you submit (this information will not be printed). Each subscriber is allowed to advertise two ads in the Bulletin, listing one ad per category.
- All listings must be agriculture related (raised, grown, produced or operated on your farm). At the top of your ad, write the category that the ad should be listed under. We reserve the right to edit, revise or reject each ad. Please print or type your ad.

Where Football Meets Farming

By Chaille Clements Munn
Communications and Marketing Specialist - MDAC

Upon taking the role of Wingfield High School's Head Football Coach, Jeff Gibson had big goals of taking the football program to the next level. He never imagined that those goals would steer him in the direction of beginning the school's first, and one of the state's most unique, agriculture programs.

As Gibson searched for ways to raise money for the football program, he was struck with a memory from his high school football school days at Wilkinson County High School in Woodville, Mississippi. Gibson remembered the team being required to participate in the economic viability of their own athletic program by raising produce. The team would then sell their fruits and vegetables to local churches at a reasonable price, always returning 10% of their profits back to the church. Congregations were thrilled to support a local school athletic program.

Relying on this past experience,

Gibson formed the Wingfield Agriculture Academy and 4-H Club in 2013 with returning members of the Wingfield High School football team and other interested students.

The Wingfield Ag Academy and Carver 4-H Club is an ongoing, long-term concept that teaches its members a host of life skills through the principles of farming, environmental maintenance, water and soil conservation, and the science of agriculture. The intent is to take the academic framework covered in the classroom and expand upon it using real, tangible applications in the campus garden and Environmental Learning Center farm. Applying that classroom knowledge to produce agricultural products gives students the motivation to make wiser decisions about the environment, the food they consume as well as possible careers. "We are building a real, tangible connection in the inner city to our state's agricultural economy and history. We are making future Mississippi agricultural scientist, farmers, technicians, and business leaders right here," said Jeff Gibson.

In 2015, members of the Wingfield Ag Academy and Carver 4-H Club planted tomato seedlings, summer squash, peppers, eggplant and greens. The football players and students had a very productive vegetable harvest and were able to participate in selling their produce at several Jackson-area farmers markets. As 2016's summer produce season quickly approaches, be on the lookout for members of the Wingfield Ag Academy and Carver 4-H Club in Jackson-area farmers markets.

The Wingfield Ag Academy and Carver 4-H Club are currently in the process of raising funds to purchase a small tractor for their gardens. The group also welcomes any donations of agricultural equipment. Please contact Coach Jeff Gibson at 601-573-9044 or coachjrgibson@gmail.com for more information on how to donate and what items are needed by the group.

Commissioner Cindy Hyde-Smith presented members of the Wingfield Ag Academy and Carver 4-H Club with the 2014 4-H Banner Club Award. This award is an outstanding achievement recognizing the most active clubs in a county.
