Surplus Drives Down Dairy Farmer Profits

By Nathan Gregory
MSU Ag Communications

An abundance of cool-season grasses and legumes means plenty of forage for Mississippi dairy cows, but increased nationwide milk production is driving down profits for the state's producers.

Producers are receiving $12.75 per hundredweight, or about $1.10 per gallon of milk. A year ago, they were being paid just under $20 per hundredweight.

Brian Williams, an agricultural economist with the Missis-

Increased milk production nationwide is driving down profits for Mississippi dairy farmers.

issippi State University Extension Service, said the sharp decrease is driven by supply.

"Higher U.S. production combined with sharply higher European milk production has contributed to what is currently a global surplus," Williams said. "The price of milk has experienced a linear downward trend since November, when futures were $16 per hundredweight."

In the first quarter of 2016, Mississippi dairies produced 53 million pounds of milk, nearly 1 billion more pounds compared to the first quarter of 2015.

"Overall U.S. production is expected to be at 212.4 billion pounds," Williams said, "which is up more than half a billion pounds from last month's estimate and up from 208.6 billion pounds a year ago."

Mississippi's dairy value of production declined about 37 percent last year from 2014 levels to an estimated value of $31.7 million.

Along with decreasing prices for Mississippi dairy producers, the industry is continuing to experience a reduction in the number of dairy farms.

Pike County Extension agent Lamar Adams reported that there are currently 80 dairy farms in the state with an average herd size of 140 milking cows. These numbers reflect the overall industry trend of family farms liquidating herds and going out of business, while the remaining farms operate with larger herds. In 2007, Mississippi had 178 dairy farms.

The nationwide annual production average is 22,000 pounds of milk for each dairy cow. In Mississippi, each cow produces about 14,000 pounds per year due to physiological stress and declining forage quality caused by summer heat.

Spring rains have boosted cool-season forage, providing plenty of ryegrass, small grains and legumes for grazing.

"The wet weather we've had across most of the state this spring has been great on winter pastures, so we have very good grazing conditions so far," Adams said. "However, frequent rain showers in late April and early May hindered the harvest of ryegrass hay, but it has still been a good spring for forage and milk production."

The same winter and spring weather patterns have also presented challenges for producers, mainly in the Delta, where farms were flooded early this year.

"There have been problems in low-lying pastures where cattle bog and tear up some of the grass while grazing," Adams said. "These wet and muddy conditions also create additional challenges for dairy farmers in maintaining high quality milk as the exercise additional hygiene practices in the milking parlor to reduce the incidence of mastitis infections."

Williams said that as the popularity of organic foods continues to rise, producers may cater their practices toward that consumer base as a way to maximize profits.

"Being that a lot of dairy cows in Mississippi are grass fed, it's an easy transition to go from conventional production to value-added production," he said. "I wouldn't be surprised to see more of our producers move in that direction."

June is National Dairy Month, when consumers are reminded of the nutritional value of drinking milk and the importance of dairy products.

Join Mississippi dairy farm families as we celebrate 79 years of June Dairy Month and encourage consumers to "Get more with milk."

Delicious Dairy!

Chocolate Mint Cheesecake Bites

Crust:

- 1 1/2 cups chocolate sandwich cookie crumbs
- 3 tablespoons melted butter

Filling:

- 2 8-ounce blocks cream cheese
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 teaspoon peppermint extract
- 1 teaspoon chopped fresh mint
- 2 large eggs
- 1 fresh mint sprig (optional)

Preheat oven to 325°. Combine cookie crumbs and melted butter in medium bowl until mixture resembles sand. Press firmly into the bottom of 36 paper-lined muffin pans or 36 mini muffin cups coated with cooking spray. Beat cream cheese, sugar, vanilla extract, peppermint extract and chopped mint until smooth in a large mixing bowl. Add eggs one at a time, scraping down sides of the bowl after additions. Spoon one tablespoon of filling into prepared muffin cups and bake for 15-18 minutes or until centers are almost set. Cool completely. Cover and chill at least two hours. Garnish with fresh mint sprigs just before serving, if desired.

Roast Beef and French Onion Grilled Cheese Sandwich

- 2 slices thick sourdough bread
- 2 ounces shaved roast beef
- 1 ounce sliced or grated Fontina cheese
- 1/2 medium sweet onion, thinly sliced or chopped
- 1 tablespoon grated Parmesan cheese
- 1/2 tablespoon prepared horseradish sauce
- 2 tablespoons butter, divided

In a small pan, heat one tablespoon of butter. Sauté onions 8-10 minutes or until tender and slightly caramelized. Set aside. Heat a nonstick or cast-iron pan over medium heat. Spread each slice of bread with horseradish sauce. Place cheese on bread, followed by onions, roast beef and remaining slice of bread. Spread top of bread with softened butter and half of the grated Parmesan cheese. Place buttered side down in heated pan. While sandwich is cooking, spread remaining softened butter and Parmesan cheese on top of bread. Cook approximately 3-4 minutes or until lightly browned. If necessary, turn heat down so the bread doesn't burn. Flip sandwich over and cook another 3-4 minutes or until lightly browned.

No-Churn Strawberry Buttermilk Ice Cream

- 1 cup heavy whipping cream
- 1 (14 ounce) can sweetened condensed milk
- 1/2 cup buttermilk
- 1 cup strawberries, chopped and divided
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Clean and remove hulls from strawberries, then cut into small pieces and divide in half. Set aside half a cup of cut-up strawberries and place the other half in small mixing bowl; mash gently with a fork and set aside. Combine cream and sweetened condensed milk in mixing bowl and whip on high speed until soft peaks form. Add buttermilk and mix on low until well combined. Gently fold in the mashed strawberries and vanilla. Pour mixture into a metal loaf pan, cover tightly with plastic wrap and place in freezer for one hour. Remove the pan, stir in remaining half cup of cut up strawberries and give the ice cream a good thorough mixing. Cover tightly again and place in freezer for at least six hours or overnight.

Cheesy Guacamole

- 16 ounces low-fat cottage cheese (lactose-free)
- 1 cup avocado, diced
- 1/2 cup red onion, peeled, diced
- 1 tablespoon cilantro, chopped
- 2 tablespoons lime juice, fresh squeezed
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon cumin, ground
- 1 teaspoon coriander, ground
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
- 4 ounces sharp Cheddar cheese, reduced-fat, finely shredded

Puree cottage cheese until smooth in food processor. In a small bowl combine avocado, red onion, cilantro, lime juice, salt, cumin, coriander and garlic powder; mash with a fork until chunky. Stir together cottage cheese, guacamole mixture and Cheddar, reserving some Cheddar to use as a garnish.

Facilities and Maintenance
MS Agriculture and Forestry Museum

I live in southern Hinds County and made an amazing find in my yard a couple of weeks ago. I was backing up a utility trailer, and with my head out of the window, I just happened to look down to the ground and noticed an unusual rock protruding from the soil. So I backed up a little further, stopped, got out and reached down, scratched the dirt away and there laid a Native American arrowhead!

So, I called my wife over, and we both started looking a bit harder. After several minutes of scouring the ground, we found another arrowhead with the tip broken off and what looked to be "chips" of rock scattered about. I assume fragments of rock were left from the chipping process of forming that arrowhead. After a couple of more minutes of looking around, it was too dark to see much of anything else, so we called it a night. When I got back to the house, I just felt so excited to find these ancient artifacts, and it got me thinking about the magnificent Fitzgerald collection at the museum.

Mr. Fitzgerald and his wife lived in Inverness, MS. He was an agriculture teacher who taught in the Delta. Throughout the years and aided by the help of his students, Mr. and Mrs. Fitzgerald would search the fields of the Delta attempting to find artifacts and collectables. Eventually, these amazing finds were donated to be displayed here at the museum. The Fitzgeralds actually donated so many artifacts and collectables that they are housed in their own building on the Ag Museum grounds.

There are over 17,500 Native American artifacts on display for public viewing. There are mosaics made up of arrowheads by Mrs. Fitzgerald because they found so many over their years of searching.

Many grinding stones and utensils that Native Americans used in the daily struggle of life are on display. As a collector myself, I can only imagine all the fun and excitement they had finding all of these precious artifacts.

Also, in the Fitzgerald collection are pieces referred to as "Mississippi Style Americana," which are common objects that were used on a typical farm or agricultural setting about 100 or more years ago. There are housewares such as cast iron cookware, a wood stove, and coffee grinders. Then, there's the quirky pencil collection that was once in the Guinness Book of World Records. For the gun enthusiast, there is a really nice gun collection with rifles, shotguns and pistols. There are many more things of our past on display at the Fitzgerald Collection just waiting to be seen. So, come by the Mississippi Agriculture and Forestry Museum where you get to enjoy the collector in all of us, just like that random evening when I found an arrowhead.

The Mississippi Agriculture and Forestry Museum is currently seeking excited individuals to be docents, educators and demonstrators in all areas. For more information on volunteering at the Mississippi Ag Museum, visit www.msagmuseum.org/volunteer/ or contact Amie Clark at Amie@mdac.ms.gov.

The Ag Museum is located at 1150 Lakeland Drive in Jackson and is open Monday through Saturday from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. In addition to our gallery and exhibit spaces, the Ag Museum also has room for your occasion, whether it's a meeting, a wedding or other special event. Call (601) 432-4500, visit www.msagmuseum.org or email msagmuseum@mdac.ms.gov for information.

Advertising Guidelines

The Mississippi Market Bulletin is published on the 1st and 15th of each month by the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce. The Mississippi Market Bulletin is an important way for the Department to disseminate news and information about issues affecting Mississippi's agriculture industry and the Department's operations.

Through its classified advertising section, the Bulletin provides a forum for Mississippi residents to buy and sell agricultural related items while also giving statewide exposure to small farmers who might not normally have the economic resources for such widespread advertising. The Bulletin does not publish commercial or display ads and all items offered for sale must have been produced, raised, grown or operated on the seller's property. Businesses, corporations, dealerships, brokers or other commercial enterprises are not allowed to advertise in the Mississippi Market Bulletin.

Advertising rules and guidelines have been established for the Mississippi Market Bulletin in order to comply with regulations enforced by the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce and to maintain the objectives of the publication. The staff of the Mississippi Market Bulletin reserves the right to edit, revise or reject any advertisement.

The Mississippi Market Bulletin assumes no responsibility for any notice appearing in the Bulletin nor for any transaction resulting from published notices. Advertisers are cautioned that it is against the law to misrepresent any product offered for sale in public notices or advertisements carried in any publication that is delivered by the United States Postal Service.

- In order to advertise in the Mississippi Market Bulletin you must be a subscriber. To place an ad, you must include your name, mailing address and account number that the subscription is listed under on each ad that you submit (this information will not be printed). Each subscriber is allowed to advertise two ads in the Bulletin, listing one ad per category.
- All listings must be agriculture related (raised, grown, produced or operated on your farm). At the top of your ad, write the category that the ad should be listed under. We reserve the right to edit, revise or reject each ad. Please print or type your ad.

Family Farms Often Stay in Mississippi Families

By Bonnie A. Coblenz
MSU Ag Communications

Aging brings a variety of challenges to individuals, but taking steps to make sure family farms are inherited by relatives is a task that sometimes gets overlooked.

Bryon Parman, Mississippi State University Extension Service agricultural economist, said the average age of Mississippi farm owners is 60. This age mirrors the national average and has risen steadily in the last few years.

"This is not necessarily a problem," Parman said. "People are working a lot longer than they used to and retiring later and later because they live longer. It would make sense that they're hanging on to the land."

Parman said converting farmland to another use is not in our best interest.

"There is a growing population worldwide and in the U.S., and if you take land out of production, you have to do more with less," he said. "We've improved our yields and management practices so we're getting so much more out of an acre of land than we did 50 years ago."

"But the more you reduce the percentage of crop-producing land, the more pressure it puts on every acre of farmland. That's why genetically modified crops exist. If we went back to traditional farming, I don't think we could produce enough. It's important that land around population centers stays in production," he said.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture defines a farm as any agricultural operation where $1,000 or more of goods are produced and sold each year. While that definition includes a lot of very small enterprises, there are some really big family farms in Mississippi.

The number of family farms in the state remains relatively stable, with the majority of farms being owner-operated, including most of the large operations in Mississippi.

"It's hard to track the rate at which a farm turns over to an heir rather than being sold outside the family, but family farm ownership is fairly robust," he said.

Parman said the last few decades reversed the trend of farms leaving family ownership when children took jobs outside the ag industry.

"Historically, 20-30 years ago and beyond, most kids were leaving the farm because there were better paying jobs in the cities and elsewhere off farm," Parman said. "In the last 10 years, with the income farms have been able to generate, a lot of kids are giving it a second look."

The baby boomers make up the largest generation in U.S. history, and they have begun turning jobs and land ownership over to their descendants.

"What you're seeing is some of the children of these farmers considering going back to farming," he said.

As a land-grant institution and a national leader in agricultural research, MSU educates a number of students each year who are headed back to run the family farm.

For the 2014-2015 academic year, MSU awarded 417 agriculture and life sciences degrees and 101 forest resources degrees. Another 737 graduates received business degrees. Each of these majors has graduates who take jobs in agriculture, including those on family farms.

Although interest in returning to the family farm continues to grow, land transfer has significant tax implications.

"Estate taxes can be significant," Parman said. "Everything below approximately $5.5 million is tax free, but above that is taxed at 40 percent or more. In the Delta, farmland has a market value of about $4,000 an acre. Estate taxes on a 3,000-acre farm would be about $2.6 million."

Although there are some programs that allow an heir to pay off the tax bill over several years, there usually are other costs associated with an inheritance of land.

"If you have a brother and sister,

Owners who make arrangements ahead of time can successfully transfer family land to the next generation rather than seeing it sold to others. (Photo illustration by MSU Extension Service and Can Stock Photo/Gina Daly)

you may have to buy them out," Parman said. "Some people choose to sell off a portion of the land to pay these costs when inheriting land."

Wayne Ebelhar, research professor and agronomist at the Delta Research and Extension Center in Stoneville, said it is vitally important that families have good estate plans in place before they expect them to be needed.

"In my family, my father and my uncle, who were partners, set up trusts where the children do not inherit but actually split the original shares in the limited liability corporation that owned the family land," Ebelhar said. "My dad was determined that the land would not have to be sold to pay inheritance taxes."

"Dad worked his whole life on the farm and did not want the government to get the farm, so to speak," Ebelhar said. "The farm passes to surviving spouses upon death, but moving to children is a whole different story. In our family, dad and mom had a plan."

Stolen Equipment Investigation Leads to Recovery by MDAC

By Chaille Clements Munn
& Jessica Spears - MDAC

The Madison County Sheriff's Department and Mississippi Agricultural and Livestock Theft Bureau (MALTB), the law enforcement division of the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce (MDAC), initiated an investigation in early March 2016 that resulted in the recovery of approximately $270,000 of stolen equipment. The recovered items are from 10 business burglaries that began in September 2015 and continued through January 2016.

Investigators have recovered stolen equipment including two tractors, four trailers, two all-terrain vehicles (ATVs) and 12 zero-turn lawn mowers in Madison County. The recovered items were reported stolen from tractor dealerships and outdoor equipment businesses located in Oxford, Kosciusko, Forest, Carthage, Louisville, Belzoni, Natchez, Columbia, Gulfport and Jackson.

As a result of the ongoing investigation, three suspects were arrested and charged with receiving stolen property and altering vehicle identification numbers. Additional arrests are expected as this investigation continues.

The MALTB would like to acknowledge Madison County Sheriff Randy Tucker and his staff for their dedicated assistance, along with the Leake and Hinds County Sheriffs' Departments in this joint investigation. The success of this investigation is attributed to the collaboration of multiple law enforcement agencies.
