July and Smith County Watermelons

Reprinted with permission from
The Meridian Star
By Anne McKee

In Mississippi, there's nothing like an old-timey "watermelon-cutting." Even the most finicky among us will take a slice, when offered. I like to call them slices-of-summer. The lush, juicy, deep red in color, sometimes white, pieces offer a feast to friends and family, plus any pesky fly hanging around.

My Papaw lived in Newton County and grew some mighty fine melons. Several times each summer my family would travel to his farm and enjoy a sticky afternoon, with juice running down our chins and arms. No problem – we rinsed off with a water hose and then went for more. Papaw always said, with a twinkle in his eye, "Now don't swallow the seeds. You don't want a watermelon growing in your stomach."

Even those words of warning didn't slow us down. Oh, those were the best days of summer. Bet you remember as well.

History has recorded that the watermelon originated in the Kalahari Desert of Africa. Egyptian hieroglyphics on walls of ancient buildings depict a watermelon harvest, the first known nearly 5,000 years ago. The melons were so important that many were placed in the burial tombs of kings. Watermelon seeds were found in the tomb of Pharaoh

Tutankhamen.

Merchant ships dispersed the popular fruit along the Mediterranean Sea. By the 10th century, watermelons came to China and by the 13th century spread to the rest of Europe. During the 16th century, watermelons were cultivated by Native Americans. French explorers noted the fruit being harvested in the Mississippi Valley.

But then, the melon made its way to Smith County, Mississippi and the little hamlet of Mize, especially in the place known as Sullivan's Hollow, where the most popular fruit in the world is known by the locals as their "superior sweet crop." Smith County pioneers, the Sullivan family, grew good produce, especially watermelons. Their special crop of the fruit became known far and wide as "Cuban Queen

Watermelon varieties are available that produce large or small, round or oblong, solid or striped fruit with red or yellow flesh, with seeds or seedless.

Watermelons." Word got out, and beginning in the 1920s, folks traveled many miles to purchase the sweet and juicy, smooth rind covered, melon. The town folks of Mize decided to come together each July (since 1978) to celebrate "all things watermelon."

This year's 38 annual festival is the weekend of July 15 & 16, 2016. There will be arts and crafts, bet you can even sample some watermelon rind jelly, and of course other food favorites, like chic-on-the-stick and funnel cakes. Don't forget the contests: seed-spitting and eating the most, plus the largest watermelon. One fun fact -- the melon declared the winner in the largest category is not good to eat, but all of the others are juicy and sweet, just stay away from that big-boy.

Also there will be games, car and truck show, 5K Run and much more included in the fun weekend. Special musical guests, EXILE, performing on Friday night and Darryl Morley, performing on Saturday night. Ticket prices are $10 per day (includes concert each day and all activities). Gates open to the public on Friday at 3:30 p.m. and gates open to the public on Saturday at 8:30 a.m.

For more information call 1-877-790-9722 or visit www.mswatermelonfestival.com.

Don't let July slip by without a watermelon cutting – even if just for one or two folks, it is worth the time and the stickiness, even the flies, too. Oh, and don't worry too much about swallowing a seed, they really won't grow in your stomach.

2 tablespoons vegetable oil
24-36 frozen prepared mini meatballs
1 cup prepared barbecue sauce
1 cup watermelon puree*

Heat the oil in a large heavy sauté pan over medium high heat or electric skillet set on 325°. Sauté the mini meatballs until browned and hot. Reduce heat to low. Mix together the barbecue sauce and watermelon puree. Pour over the meatballs and simmer for a few minutes. Serve hot. *To make the watermelon puree, remove seeds from fresh watermelon and cut into large chunks. Place watermelon in a blender and process until smooth and well pureed.

Watermelon Soda Float

2 scoops coconut milk ice cream (or vanilla)
12 watermelon balls
1/2 cup watermelon juice*
1/2 teaspoon lime zest (or splash of lime juice)
1/2 cup fizzy water

Combine the lime zest into the watermelon juice. Put half of the watermelon balls in a tall glass. Add one scoop of ice cream. Add remaining watermelon balls. Add second scoop of ice cream. Pour in the watermelon juice. Top with the fizzy water for bubbles. *Puree and strain the watermelon.

Watermelon and Peaches Dessert

4 cups watermelon cubes
2 peaches
Juice of 2 lemons
1/8 cup white sugar
1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
2 cups vanilla yogurt
1 tablespoon butter
1 cup slivered almonds

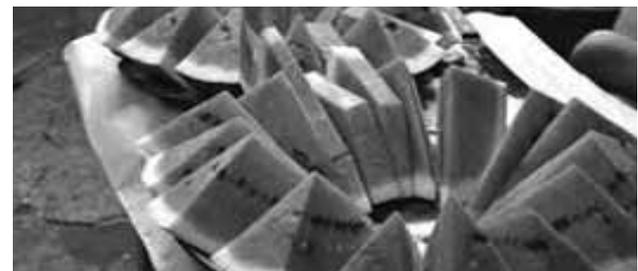

In a saucepan over medium heat, melt the butter and then add the almonds to the pan. Stir the almonds until they are toasted and golden. Remove the almonds from the pan to aluminum foil or heatproof plate to cool. Thinly slice the peaches and toss in a bowl with lemon juice. Add the watermelon cubes to the bowl with the peaches and toss together. Mix together the sugar, cinnamon and yogurt and pour over the watermelon and peaches. Sprinkle the almonds over the top. Serve immediately.

Red, White and Blue Watermelon Parfait

1 cup blueberries
6 ounce container low-fat yogurt (vanilla, lemon or coconut work best, preferably Greek yogurt)
1 cup cubed watermelon plus 3 pieces of diced watermelon
Whipped cream or dessert topping

In a pint canning jar, (or your favorited parfait glass) assemble the layered parfait, starting with the blueberries, followed by the yogurt and finishing off with the watermelon. Top with the whipped cream and garnish with the 3 diced watermelon pieces (ingredients make two servings, minimum).

Kielbasa and Watermelon Relish

1 cup minced watermelon
1/4 cup minced onion
1/2 cup finely chopped cabbage
2 tablespoons seasoned rice vinegar
2 tablespoons honey mustard
3 pounds kielbasa

Mix the watermelon, onion and cabbage in a mixing bowl. In another small bowl, slowly mix the vinegar into the mustard and then pour the mixture over the watermelon/onion/cabbage mixture and toss together. Grill the kielbasa until brown and crisp on the exterior but still juicy inside. Remove from grill to a cutting board and cool for five minutes before cutting the kielbasa into bite sized pieces and skewer them with a pick. Serve warm with the relish for scooping with the kielbasa.

Quick Watermelon Parmesan Salad

Growing Tradition

By Alya Shamaly
Rental Consultant & Office Manager
MS Ag and Forestry Museum

My name is Alya Shamaly, and as the Rental Consultant at the Ag Museum, I often assist brides and their families when they are considering holding their "big day" at one of our lovely facilities. From time to time, I have the privilege of hearing some of their family stories and, in a way, being a part of their family traditions. I would like to share a particular story with you that I had the great pleasure to participate in:

When I met with this particular mother and daughter, I could tell that the mother was very happy that her daughter would soon begin a new life with her soon-to-be husband. The couple planned to travel the world together knowing that one day they would settle down in a small town in the South and raise a family.

They had viewed several venues that morning, and the mother had forgotten how exhausting searching for an ideal wedding location was. Even though they were somewhat tired from all of the looking at venue size, contracts and table clothes, the daughter said that she had one more surprise location for them to visit – she had only mentioned that she was saving her favorite for the last stop. When they crossed the creek onto the Ag Museum campus the mother said she instantly felt the familiarity of her surroundings, like the smell of the soft, green grass and the faint sound of honeybees traveling from one flower to the next. She said she started to reminisce about taking photos with all the antique wagons and tractors with fig trees and corn cribs scattered throughout the property.

I could see the excitement that was welling up in this mother as she realized that her daughter was seriously considering getting married at the same place that she was married many years prior. The mother shared with us that her matrimony was in Small Town's Church almost 25 years earlier. It is always exciting for me to hear that people have fond memories of their events here at the Ag Museum, even when those events took place when I was in grade school! I explained to the mother and daughter that the church had become a museum exhibit due to age, but we had many other options available. As it happens, the daughter and her to-be husband actually wanted an outdoor wedding, and when I told them that the roses in the Small Town's rose garden were going to be blooming around their wedding date, the mother and daughter were over the moon.

As we were walking around our campus showing them rehearsal and reception venues, the daughter began to share with me and her mother her fond memories of field trips to the Ag Museum as a kid. She talked about remembering how loud the cotton gin was when she came for Harvest Fest and how excited all the other kids would be to buy their glass bottle Cokes and share roasted pecans from the General Store. At one point I looked over and saw the mother starting to well up, and at that moment, I realized that I had a hand in creating a tradition for this family. Getting married at the Ag Museum, with its green grass, honey bees, rustic tractors and wooden buildings was part of their heritage. And, as I walked them through crossing the T's and dotting the I's on their contract, I couldn't help but feel a sense of satisfaction knowing that I helped transform their exhausting experience into a special one.

We invite you to grow a new tradition or continue an old by letting us be a part of your upcoming event. Our larger buildings like the Sparkman Auditorium, Forestry Building and Ethnic Heritage Building are ideal for large group events like weddings, receptions and family reunions. Our smaller buildings like the Education Center and Masonic Lodge are perfect intimate spaces for anniversaries or birthday parties. And, as we rebuild from the 2014 fire, we will have more outdoor spaces available for many different types of functions.

Whether you plan to tour the beautiful grounds and learn about the relevance of Mississippi agriculture or rent one of our rustic rental facilities and grow a new tradition, we invite you to visit one of Mississippi's great treasures, The Mississippi Agriculture and Forestry Museum and National Agricultural Aviation Museum. For more information, including detailed rental information, group tours and upcoming events, please visit our website at www.msagmuseum.org, check us out on Facebook, or call us at (601) 432-4500.

The Sparkman Auditorium is frequently used as a venue for wedding receptions.

Through its classified advertising section, the Bulletin provides a forum for Mississippi residents to buy and sell agricultural related items while also giving statewide exposure to small farmers who might not normally have the economic resources for such widespread advertising. The Bulletin does not publish commercial or display ads and all items offered for sale must have been produced, raised, grown or operated on the seller's property. Businesses, corporations, dealerships, brokers or other commercial enterprises are not allowed to advertise in the Mississippi Market Bulletin.

USDA Helps Restore, Manage Longleaf Pine Forests on Private Lands

By Kavanaugh Breazeale
USDA-NRCS

The United States Department of Agriculture/Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) will have funding available to aid forest managers working to restore Longleaf Pine in Mississippi. The NRCS is partnering with the United States Forest Service (USFS) to improve the health and resiliency of the forest ecosystems where public and private lands meet. The deadline for accepting applications is Friday, July 15, 2016.

Longleaf forests once dominated the coastal plains of the Southeastern United States. During the past two centuries, development, timbering and fire suppression reduced the ecosystem's range by almost 97 percent. Coordinated conservation efforts, led by the USDA and other conservation partners, are helping this unique ecosystem make a slow recovery.

Longleaf Pine forests benefit both wildlife and land managers. There are 29 threatened and endangered species that depend on these Longleaf Pine forests for survival. Two specific species are found in Mississippi, the gopher tortoise and black pine snake.

NRCS provides technical and financial assistance through the Longleaf Pine Initiative (LLPI) to help landowners and land managers with timber stand improvement through practices such as tree planting, prescribed burning and invasive species control.

"USDA is committed to working with foresters and land managers to help restore and expand this critical ecosystem," stated Kurt Readus, NRCS state conservationist in Mississippi. "Longleaf pine forests provide vital habitat to a variety of species as well as valuable timber products."

The NRCS' LLPI has helped restore more than 240,000 acres of longleaf forests nationally. Landowners, producers and foresters interested in participating in the Longleaf Pine Initiative may apply at their local USDA service center/NRCS office. NRCS financial-assistance programs offer a continuous sign-up; however, applications received by July 15, 2016, will be considered for funding in this ranking period.

Preventing Hay Fires

By MSU Extension Service

Already this hay season there have been reports of hay heating and a couple of stack fires. Excessive moisture is the most common cause of hay fires. Optimum moisture for baling can range from 15% to 20% depending on the type of forage of species and the type and size of bale being made.

Baling at moisture levels lower than 15% will result in greater harvesting losses because leaf losses increase as moisture content decreases. On the other hand, storing hay at moisture levels greater than 20% can result in molding and heating, which translate into hay discoloration and greater dry matter and nutrient losses.

All bales made at moisture content above 15% will undergo some increase in temperature in the first two to three weeks post-baling. This change in temperature is known as "sweating" or "going through sweat," and this is due to the final stage of plant and microbial respiration. This increase in temperature can cause spontaneous combustion if bales are stored too tight or in close environments.

When storing hay in a barn or outdoors, do not stack more than five tiers high before the hay has gone through the sweating process. After the sweat when temperatures lower, more tiers can be added to the stack without fire danger.

The internal bale temperature should peak at about three to seven days after baling. After that, the temperature should decline within 15 to 30 days, depending on the moisture content of the forage, external humidity, bale density, and the amount of water absorbed by rain.

Check the bale moisture content by using a hay moisture probe to determine the potential for greater respiration. To measure the bale temperature, use a thermometer that can be pushed at least 12 inches into the bales, check the temperature of at least 20 different bales, and monitor each daily until the sweat

Electronic hay moisture probes are a useful tool to assist growers in baling at the proper moisture content. A bale with a reading like the one shown in the figure of 27.5% moisture would be considered high risk and should be stacked outside and separate from other hay. Generally hay is ideally baled at moisture content between 15% to 18%. The upper limit for moisture for large round bales is typically 18% to 20%.

At temperatures up to 120°F, most people can hold their hand or arm in the hay for 30 seconds under such conditions. This level of heating occurs in hay baled at 15% to 20% moisture. These temperatures generally do not cause serious concern in forage quality loss. Mold or mustiness may develop at this temperature range. Most people cannot hold their hand or arm in hay very long if the temperature is greater than 120°F.

At 150°F, check the temperature every day. If the temperatures continue to rise and heat is not dissipated from the storage site, a dangerous condition may develop. When temperatures reach around 175°F, there's a significant risk of spontaneous combustion. Check the temperature every few hours and notify the fire department that you have some very hot hay and work with them for recommendations for further action. Do not attempt to move the hay without fire department assistance. This would expose the overheated or smoldering hay to oxygen and may result in a fire raging out of control.

Girls State Visit MDAC

Prevent hay fires by checking moisture content prior to baling and storing. Spontaneous combustion is always a possibility with stored hay, particularly if the hay was baled with high moisture content.
