Mississippi State University Hosts State's Oldest AQHA Show

By Jennifer M. Brignac
MSU Ag Communications

The Mississippi Horse Park at Mississippi State University hosted nearly double the number of last year's contestants at the American Quarter Horse Association's Quarter Horse show March 10 and 11.

The oldest Quarter Horse show in the state of Mississippi has grown quickly over the past two years. In its 53rd year, the AQHA is still going strong, and contestants have been reaping the benefits of the new, more affordable flat entry fee.

In 2011, the Mississippi Horse Park evaluated the show format and made some significant changes that resulted in a 267 percent increase in entries. In 2012, the trend continued with a total of 3808 entries over the course of the two-day show, a 91 percent increase from the year before.

"These numbers are staggering," said Bricklee Miller, Mississippi Horse Park facility director and show manager of the AQHA at the Horse Park. "Many of our classes were just as large, or larger than the ones recently held at the prestigious Dixie National Quarter Horse Show in Jackson, so this is a big deal to the Quarter Horse contestants. The larger the class numbers, the more points the contestants can earn."

Contestants can earn points toward their qualification to compete in Oklahoma City at the AQHA World Show later this year. Because they were able to earn more points, many contestants completed the qualification process for their horses at this single show.

Cash and prizes were awarded for the all-around champions in each division. Mary Gracen Reed won the novice youth all around, Marietta Booth earned the select championship, and Amber Watts took top honors in novice amateur all around. Taking home the $500 cash prize in the open was Shawn Hays, riding Bringing On The Best. Kalee McCann was the leader in the youth division, showing Gotta Get Hot. Clinching the amateur division was Brooke Ware and her horse RI A Sudden Cover.

The average contestant drove 500 miles to attend the weekend's event and started arriving as early as Thursday. Contestants came from seven states, and the horse park rented out all but 38 of its 350 stalls.

"We don't think we'll have any empty stalls next year," Miller said. "We knew it was going to be tight when our online pre-registration started booking up so quickly. People really enjoy being able to register before they arrive. The new format allows online entries, confirmation emails containing stall and RV assignments, and special requests."

Miller said the economic impact of the weekend event was $140,324 for the Starkville community and that the event was another success story for MSU and the Mississippi Horse

Park, a division of MSU's Extension Service. The facilities host 40 major events every year, bringing new dollars to Oktibbeha County.

MSEA Completes Endowed Scholarship at MSU

The Mississippi State Equine Association (MSEA) is pleased to be the lead sponsor of the State of Mississippi Horse Championships, and now it has created an endowed scholarship in the Veterinarian School at Mississippi State University. # Hay Is For Horses? But Forage Is Too

By Noble Foundation

Forages are an essential component of a horse's diet because they need it to help prevent digestion problems.

"Additionally, an adequate quantity of good-quality forage can minimize feed expenses, which is usually the single highest cost of owning a horse," said Hugh Aljoe, a forage specialist at the Noble Foundation. "Good forage management can also minimize potential pasture problems, such as spot grazing and over grazing, which are often associated with grazing horses."

Unlike cattle and sheep, horses are not ruminants. Horses have a single stomach and a functional caecum, which means their digestive system is less efficient. Therefore, horses have a greater requirement for higher-quality protein than cattle, with growing and lactating horses having higher nutrient requirements than mature non-lactating animals.

"For optimum results, horses need to be fed often and consistently with a forage that can be easily and rapidly digested. Sudden changes or large swings in diet quality or type can cause severe and potentially deadly digestive system disorders," Aljoe said.

Horses are spot grazers, grazing more selectively than cattle, and they tend to prefer grasses to most forbs and legumes. Rotationally grazing horses through a few paddocks works well to minimize the effects of spot grazing by allowing heavily-grazed areas time to recover. In a continuous-grazed situation, mowing or clipping the pastures two or three times a year will enhance the palatability of under-utilized areas by removing excessively mature residues.

Horses prefer grasses but will consume some legumes, so horse pastures should consist of predominantly grasses, but a legume presence is acceptable. Bermuda-grass is the preferred pasture for horses because it can be easily managed for quality and quantity, and it is more forgiving of intense grazing than other forages. It can also be overseeded to cool-season grasses such as rye and ryegrass for grazing during the winter. It is most preferred if managed to maintain an average sward height between 4 and 10 inches.

"Most other forages suitable for cattle are also suitable for horses but may require more management," Aljoe said. "Since horses are more selective grazers, monocultures are actually easier to manage than a diversity of forages."

Horse hay can be produced from any pasture forage. Since horses are very selective and are very sensitive to changes in their diet, the primary requirements for good horse hay are that it be clean and leafy, free of weeds and old forage residues, free of dust and molds, and of consistent quality throughout the supply.

Alfalfa, oats, and crabgrass are other forages cropped for hay. These hays are usually of high quality if properly harvested, but thorough drying may be difficult to attain during May and early June. Blister beetles, which are deadly to horses when ingested, can also be present in alfalfa hay.

Aljoe said that to produce a clean, high-quality horse hay, forages should be fertilized (if introduced pastures), clipped when about 12 to 15 inches in height while still immature and before excessive production prevents thorough and uniform drying, allowed to dry completely, baled without being rained on and with minimal moisture, and stored in a barn or under a cover on a well-drained site to prevent spoilage. Therefore, most horse hays are produced during the middle of the summer as second and third cuttings.

"By the way, hay color is not a good indicator of quality," Aljoe added. "Besides, horses are color-blind and are therefore indifferent about the color of hay."

Color often tells us more about the curing process of the hay than its quality. Hay that is bright green was typically cut at a desirable stage of maturity and rapidly cured. A yellow color is often a result of sun bleaching and does not seriously reduce quality. Brownish hay is usually a result of excessive moisture during the curing process, thus indicating some degree of fermentation. Dark brown or black is often an indicator that the hay was exposed to rain or high humidity and is usually accompanied by a distinctive musty odor.

Remember, stage of maturity is the most important factor affecting hay quality and will also affect leafiness, color, and condition. However, the only way to truly know the quality of hay you plan to buy, sell, or feed is to have it tested. Contact your local County Extension Service for assistance in obtaining an analysis for your hay or pasture.

This timber report contains aggregated individual timber sale stumpage data. Many variables, such as raw material demand, mill inventories, buyer competition, quality, topography and weather, play key roles in determining local prices. Pine Sawtimber prices are based upon a 14-inch Diameter-at-Breast-Height (DBH) log size. Pine Chip N Saw prices are based upon a 10-inch DBH log size. The stumpage prices shown here are reprinted with permission from the Timber Owner Market Guide; a bi-monthly publication of Forest2Market (www.forest2market.com).

National FFA Week

By Harrison Lang, President
Mississippi FFA

The week of February 18-25 marked National FFA Week across the country. During that week, over 540,000 FFA members across the nation pulled out those Blue and Gold FFA Jackets to celebrate the special occasion. Always held the same week of George Washington's birthday, this week gives members a chance to educate the public about agriculture. During the week, chapters host teacher appreciation breakfasts, conduct "Ag Olympics" competitions, speak to the public about agriculture, volunteer for community service projects, and more.

In the State of Mississippi, FFA week was kicked off on Tuesday, February 21, with the 34th Annual Mississippi Legislators and Sponsor's Breakfast held in Jackson. This breakfast is a time for the Mississippi FFA Association to show their appreciation to the Mississippi Legislators for their continued support for Agricultural Education and FFA.

Special guests included U.S. Congressman Gregg Harper; Mississippi Commissioner of Agriculture and Commerce Cindy Hyde-Smith; and National FFA Secretary Jason Troendle from Minnesota. These special guests shared inspiring messages with the hundreds of young FFA members in attendance. With over 670 Mississippi Legislators, sponsors, FFA members, advisors, parents, and guests in attendance; the event was considered a huge success.

After concluding the breakfast, State FFA officers Harrison Lang, Jessica Wilkinson, Kristen Bishop, Logan Dale, and National FFA Secretary Jason Troendle hit the road visiting FFA Chapters across the State of Mississippi. Officers had the opportunity to visit ten FFA Chapters where they shared messages with members about working as a team, being a leader, and setting goals. But FFA members weren't the only ones learning during FFA week, state FFA officers were able to see the huge variety and diversity of agricultural programs across our state and learned how they operate and continue to educate students on a daily basis.

Since poultry is the number one agricultural commodity in the State of Mississippi, state FFA officers toured a successful poultry operation in Leake County where they had the opportunity to see how the farm operated on a daily basis and the secret to the farmer's success for so many years. With forestry being the second largest agricultural commodity in the State of Mississippi, state FFA officers were also able to visit Weyerhaeuser Saw Mill in Philadelphia. State FFA officers toured the facility and saw how a log could enter the mill and come out as a finished piece of lumber ready to be shipped out to a hardware store near you.

The FFA doesn't just promote agriculture during National FFA Week. Members across the country are advocates for agriculture day in and day out. The first paragraph of the FFA creed states, "I believe in the future of agriculture, with a faith born not of words but of deeds - achievements won by the present and past generations of agriculturists; in the promise of better days through better ways, even as the better things we now enjoy have come to us from the struggles of former years." When you support the FFA Organization you are not just supporting young people, you are supporting the future of agriculture and the future of this great nation.

The Charity Work of the Tennessee Walking Horse

By Jo Anne Dempsey
District 2 Director
Mississippi Walking Horse Association

The Mississippi Walking Horse Association is proud of the charitable contributions that this breed of horse has derived from horse shows within the state over eight decades. No other breed of horse has in the past nor do they now contribute to the needs of the citizens of the state or the nation as does the Tennessee Walking Horse. When the general public attends these horse shows it is to see the beautiful padded performance horse, "The Peacock of The Show Ring," and to be thrilled by the grace, beauty, talent and glide ride of these true athletes of the show ring.

At the present time, the Mississippi Walking Horse Association is proud to affiliate 10 horse shows within the state of Mississippi. They vary in size and the number of days, but they all contribute to charitable causes. Our shows are as follows: Mississippi Charity Horse Show, Jackson, Mississippi; Guntown Lions Club Horse Show, Guntown, Mississippi; Nettleton Lions Club, Nettleton, Mississippi; Faith Haven-Lorraine Wesson Horse Show, Tupelo, Mississippi; Altrusa Gum Tree Horse Show, Tupelo, Mississippi; Philadelphia Horse Show, Philadelphia, Mississippi; Louisville Horse Show, Louisville, Mississippi; Laurel Charity Horse Show, Laurel, Mississippi; McComb Horse Show, McComb, Mississippi; Tunica Horse Show, Tunica, Mississippi.

This year we are fortunate to have a new show that will be sponsored by the Mississippi Walking Horse Association. Funds from this show will be used to support all other horse shows within the state, thus placing funds raised back into the chosen charity of each horse show within the State of Mississippi. This breed, its owners, trainers, and exhibitors are now and have always been huge supporters of charitable causes. Our one night horse shows through the years have contributed millions of dollars to various charitable organizations and causes throughout the state.

The Mississippi Charity Horse Show in Jackson, Mississippi, is our oldest and longest running horse show. It has been in existence since 1930 and is now 82 years young. This is our premier horse show each year and is a three day event which brings tourists to the state capital and tourist dollars to the state. Funds from this horse show have always been used to support a charitable organization.

There have been many horse shows that have come and gone through the years in the state, but one can easily see that the Tennessee Walking Show Horse has through the years been a huge aid to local charities within the State of Mississippi. The economic impact of this breed of horse on the charitable community has been huge. No other breed of horse has been so utilized in this state, ever. When the general public attends these horse shows it is the Padded Performance

Horse that is the draw, and the one everyone expects to watch as it thrills the crowd with its high prancing step and glide ride.

The Tennessee Walking Horse is not just a show horse, it is a true hero by the fact that through the years horse shows featuring this wonderful breed have directly contributed to the aid of human beings through these charitable organizations. Credit for this having happened should go to the breeders, owners, trainers, exhibitors, and those who continue to use this breed of horse as their chosen fund raiser for their charity.
