Mississippi Poultry Association: Helping Grow Mississippi's Economy for 75 years

By Mark Leggett, President
Mississippi Poultry Association

This year marks the Mississippi Poultry Association's (MPA) 75th year of promoting the growth of the state's poultry industry. Growing the poultry industry from a farm sideline into a global industry has grown the state's economy in the process.

Mississippi, with 22 poultry plants and 2,000 farms, ranks fifth in the nation in poultry production and is home to the world's largest egg producer, Cal-Maine Foods. This growth, from every farm having a few chickens for eggs and meat into farms and plants dedicated to feeding the world, hasn't been told because the industry has been so focused on finding ways to more efficiently meet the growing consumer demand. With this, there has been little time to reflect on the past. The 75th year of MPA is a time to stop and reflect how this industry, with a $6 billion impact on the state's economy, developed.

There were groups that promoted chickens around 1900, but these were more like kennel clubs for chicken fanciers who bred and showed chickens with colorful plumage or combs. As the demand for chickens as a food source grew, an industry developed that needed assistance from a wide variety of sources to overcome the challenges.

The modern poultry industry began from an accident that a smart, enterprising woman in the Delmarva Peninsula turned into income in the 1920s. At the time, farmers ordered baby chicks from hatcheries, and they were delivered by train. Mrs. Wilmer Steele, as the story goes, ordered 50 chicks but received 500 in 1923. She wisely capitalized on the mistake, raised the chicks, and sold them to meat processors in New York City. By 1926, she was raising 10,000 chicks at a time, and an industry was born.

In 1937, the Mississippi Poultry Improvement Association was formed to combat diseases and promote the growing industry in the marketplace. At that time, prior to World War II, the poultry industry was broken into component parts. The feed mills, the hatcheries, the broiler growers, and the processing plants were all separate businesses, many with their own associations prior to this.

After World War II, poultry production began to move south from the Delmarva Peninsula. New companies sprang up to provide chicks, feed, and processing and to raise broilers. Some of these companies included Leake Milling, Green Acres Farms, Southeastern Poultry, Purnell's Pride, Fred Moore Co., Colonial Poultry, Gaddis Packaging, R&R Poultry, B.C. Rogers, Choctaw Maid Farms, McCarty Farms, Lady Forest Farms, and Davis Poultry.

Many of the companies we know today grew from entrepreneurs who saw business opportunities such as buying and selling eggs or chickens door-to-door or at markets and feed stores where they discovered that selling chicks meant selling

Commissioner Cindy Hyde-Smith receives a lesson in the art of omelet making from the world's fastest omelet maker, Howard Helmer, at the 6th annual Legislative Luncheon sponsored by the Mississippi Egg Marketing Board. Commissioner Hyde-Smith is testing her skills on Mississippi Egg Marketing Board president, Dolph Baker, sponsor of the annual luncheon. The luncheon is an opportunity for guests to learn just how quick and easy it can be to make their own omelet.

This year's annual Easter Egg Hunt at the Mississippi Agricultural & Forestry Museum in Jackson was held the Saturday before Easter, and was sponsored in part by the Mississippi Egg Marketing Board. Area children had the opportunity to dye eggs, play games, have photos taken with the Easter Bunny, and of course, for the grand finale, the hunt for over 12,000 filled eggs on the grounds of the Ag Museum.

more feed. The industry grew by leaps and bounds as entrepreneurs and farmers were willing to put their capital, land, and futures at risk. These risk-takers created new methods that produced efficiencies in raising or processing chickens, produced new products consumers wanted, and opened new markets for Mississippi products.

Market forces drove the vertical integration of the industry where hatcheries, feed mills, and processing plants all became part of one company that contracted with farmers to raise chickens. This system ensured the industry was able to feed the world with safe, affordable chicken products.

While demand for chicken grew steadily, it skyrocketed in the 1980s and 1990s because of several factors: new products, such as chicken nuggets and Buffalo wings, became popular, new research from universities, government agencies, and private companies improved production, and Russia opened up as a market for leg quarters.

The poultry industry has always been quick to seize opportunities and adopt technology to meet those opportunities, and that will continue. The industry, since its beginnings, has worked closely and cooperatively with the U.S. Department of Agriculture's many agencies, the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce, the Board of Animal Health, and Mississippi State University to overcome the challenges to continued growth.

You can look for bright entrepreneurs on the farm, in the plant, in the lab, and in the kitchen to continue to find ways to provide the world what it needs and grow Mis-

All livestock brands which are registered with the state must be re-registered by June 30th, 2012 in order to be in the 2012 brand book and to be a valid brand.

Renewal notices were mailed on March 1st; anyone who has a registered brand and has not received a notice should call the State Brands Registrar, Anna Tillotson, at 1-800-678-2660 or 601-359-1121.

Anyone interested in obtaining a new livestock brand should also call the same number.

Mississippi Code 69-29-105 outlines the process for registering or transferring a livestock brand and the penalty for branding livestock with a brand which has not been registered. The registration fee for a five year period is $5.00.

From Our Kitchen To Yours

Chicken and Eggs...Together at last!

BLACKBERRY CHICKEN WITH FETA

- 4 large boneless, skinless chicken breasts, pounded slightly
- 1/2 cup flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 10-ounce jar blackberry jam
- 2 tablespoons fresh lime juice
- 8 ounces feta cheese
- Zest of one lime
- 4 cups wild rice, cooked

Mix flour, salt, and black pepper in a shallow dish. Dredge each chicken breast to coat well. In a large skillet, heat olive oil over medium heat. Add chicken and cook 5-7 minutes or until browned, turning once. In a small bowl, combine jam and lime juice until smooth. Pour jam mixture over chicken in skillet; allow sauce to come to boil. Reduce heat and cook 10 minutes or until chicken is done. Mound wild rice on serving platter, top with chicken. Pour blackberry sauce over chicken, sprinkle with feta cheese and lime zest.

CRAB & ASPARAGUS FRITTATA

- 1 cup small fresh asparagus pieces
- 1 cup sliced mushrooms
- 1/2 cup sliced green onions
- 1/2 cup thin red bell pepper strips
- 1/2 cup flaked crab meat (2 ounces)
- 8 eggs
- 1/4 cup water
- 1 teaspoon dried Italian seasoning
- 1/2 cup shredded part-skim mozzarella cheese (2 ounces)
- 1 tablespoon grated parmesan cheese

Heat oven to 375° F. Coat 10-inch nonstick skillet with ovenproof handle with cooking spray; heat over medium-high heat until hot. Add asparagus, mushrooms, onion, and bell pepper; sauté until crisp-tender, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Add crab; mix well. Beat eggs, water, and Italian seasoning in medium bowl until blended. Stir in mozzarella cheese; pour over crab mixture in skillet. Cook over medium heat until eggs are set at edges, 5 to 8 minutes. Sprinkle with parmesan cheese. Bake in 375° oven until top is lightly browned, eggs are completely set and no visible liquid egg remains, 8 to 10 minutes. Cut into wedges.

PEANUT BUTTER-BANANA BREAD PUDDING

- 3 cups day-old, 1-inch bread cubes, about 3 slices
- 2 medium bananas, sliced (1 to 1 1/2 cups)
- 1 cup peanut butter chips (6 ounces)
- 4 eggs
- 2 cups milk
- 1/3 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Heat oven to 350° F. Combine bread, bananas, and chips in greased 9-inch square baking dish; toss to mix. Beat eggs, milk, sugar, and vanilla in medium bowl until blended; pour over bread mixture. Bake in center of 350° oven until knife inserted near center comes out clean, 40 to 50 minutes. Serve warm or refrigerate until cold. Add a dollop of vanilla ice cream or a drizzle of chocolate sauce if desired.

Advertising Guidelines

The Mississippi Market Bulletin is published on the 1st and 15th of each month by the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce. The Mississippi Market Bulletin is an important way for the Department to disseminate news and information about issues affecting Mississippi's agriculture industry and the Department's operations.

Through its classified advertising section, the Bulletin provides a forum for Mississippi residents to buy and sell agricultural related items while also giving statewide exposure to small farmers who might not normally have the economic resources for such widespread advertising. The Bulletin does not publish commercial or display ads and all items offered for sale must have been produced, raised, grown or operated on the seller's property. Businesses, corporations, dealerships, brokers or other commercial enterprises are not allowed to advertise in the Mississippi Market Bulletin.

Advertising rules and guidelines have been established for the Mississippi Market Bulletin in order to comply with regulations enforced by the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce and to maintain the objectives of the publication. The staff of the Mississippi Market Bulletin reserves the right to edit, revise or reject any advertisement.

The Mississippi Market Bulletin assumes no responsibility for any notice appearing in the Bulletin nor for any transaction resulting from published notices. Advertisers are cautioned that it is against the law to misrepresent any product offered for sale in public notices or advertisements carried in any publication that is delivered by the United States Postal Service.

- In order to advertise in the Mississippi Market Bulletin you must be a subscriber. To place an ad, you must include your name, mailing address and account number that the subscription is listed under on each ad that you submit (this information will not be printed). Each subscriber is allowed to advertise two ads in the Bulletin, listing one ad per category.
- All listings must be agriculture related (raised, grown, produced or operated on your farm). At the top of your ad, write the category that the ad should be listed under. We reserve the right to edit, revise or reject each ad. Please print or type your ad.
- There is a 30-word limit for classified advertisements, this includes: price (on the item you are selling), your city, county and telephone number or name and complete address must be included in the ad if you do not list a telephone number. Ads cannot be held over from one issue to another. You must submit them for each issue.
- Out-of-state residents are not eligible to advertise with the following exceptions: Out-of-state ads are allowed in the "Wanting To Buy" category. Out-of-state ads are allowed for individuals owning farm property within the state that is being offered for sale (consisting of 10 acres or more).

Goats Provide Easy Starting Point For Kids

By Susan Collins-Smith

Take a look at 4-H livestock show rings anywhere in the state. There are nearly as many goats as hogs, sheep, or steers.

"We've increased the numbers of goats shown by about 25 percent each year since the first year," said Kipp Brown, area 4-H livestock agent and meat goat specialist with Mississippi State University's Extension Service. "It's helping the kids, the producers and the 4-H program."

The first statewide market meat goat show was held at the Mississippi State Fair in 1996. Market goats were added to the district-level shows in 1999. By 2001, interest in show goats had increased enough to merit adding goats to the statewide Dixie National Livestock Show.

The popularity of the small ruminants stems largely from their disposition.

"It's hard for an 8-year-old to handle a 125- to 150-pound lamb because lambs can be very stubborn and very strong," Brown said. "A 250-pound hog and an even larger calf also can be intimidating."

"But the personality of a goat makes it a logical animal to start a young person with. Goats are inquisitive and docile by nature. When you add the element of human interaction, they become even easier to handle," he said.

Debbie Huff, of Brandon, said that is the reason her oldest son David, now 18, started showing livestock with a dairy goat.

"David was small for his age," Huff said. "At 8 years old, he was timid and shy and a little bit afraid of the horses and cattle we had. So we let him show a dairy goat in 2001, and that was it. He told us he wanted to show dairy goats, and that's what he's done for 11 years."

Goats are also a good beginner project for children because of their relatively low cost. Goats can range in price from $150 to $250 or more. A set of clippers costs about $100, and feed for a year is $50 to $100. Getting to the shows is easy with an inexpensive cage in the bed of a pickup.

"Starting with an inexpensive and gentle animal allows the child to learn to feed it properly and learn showmanship," Brown said. "If children can first learn to feed the goat to the proper weight, exercise him, measure his fat content, and all the other things they have to do to show the goat, it is easier for them to move on to larger, less cooperative livestock."

But it is rare for a child to give up showing goats, even if they move on to larger livestock.

"A lot of times, once kids are 10 or 12 or 13, they move into lambs and cattle, but most of them keep the goats because they like them," Brown said. "The kids love the goats, and the goats love them."

That is not a bad deal for kids or parents.

"It's the same concept as taking piano lessons," Brown said. "You probably won't make money showing goats, but you are teaching life skills. It doesn't matter what is used to train young people. To me, a goat is just a simple way to do it."

David's parents, who homeschool all four of their boys, agree.

"When David decided he wanted to show goats, we saw the opportunity there to use the milk and the animals to teach the boys even more," Huff said. "Just because we raise livestock doesn't mean our kids have to do that for the rest of their lives. It's a pathway to develop abilities to do so many other things. Everything we do in life requires that we be responsible, dedicated participants, and raising goats teaches my kids those skills."

David Huff, who plans to study engineering, begins college in August.

"We knew that having our boys involved in 4-H would teach them responsibility and accountability and instill in them a work ethic," Debbie Huff said. "People involved in the admissions process are piecing all of that together. We were not just raising goats. There was a plan in all that work. We were preparing our sons for life."

Warm, Wet Spring Puts Strawberries At Risk

By Keri Collins Lewis

An early strawberry season delights consumers, but growers must keep an eye on this spring's fickle weather to protect their delicate and valuable crop.

"The strawberry crop has come into production two weeks earlier than normal," said Wayne Porter, a Mississippi State University Extension Service agent in Lauderdale County who specializes in horticulture. "All of the rain has caused a lot of additional disease problems. Anthracnose can always be a problem, but with the constant rainfall, it is more prevalent. It puts a spot on the fruit and makes it unusable, because consumers want perfect berries."

For Mississippi growers, the goal is to harvest one pound of fruit per plant, Porter said. Yields are influenced by temperature fluctuations, as the plants have a low tolerance for extremes. This year's crop appears to be on target so far, Porter said.

"Weather is always a factor. Three years ago, a grower I work with in Clarke County got about half a pound per plant because of cold weather. Last year, he got a pound and a half, and he was ecstatic. Too many days above 85 degrees, and the strawberries quit producing," he said.

With fewer than 100 acres statewide, strawberries are considered a specialty crop, but one that is very popular with consumers.

"Growers are scattered around the state, and most sell their strawberries locally through farmers' markets or produce stands," Porter said. "I think there is potential for a lot more growers in the state to plant strawberries, because the existing growers can sell their berries quickly and easily."

Mel Ellis, co-owner of the Mayhew Tomato Farm in Lowndes County, has been growing a steadily increasing number of strawberries since 2004. He originally planted only about half an acre but now has 2 acres in strawberries, despite the labor-intensive practices required to grow the popular fruit.

"We hand-planted 30,000 plants in mid-October," he said. "Heat and hail are the biggest enemies of the strawberries. It's gotten hot early this year, and persistent heat can cause the fruit to be misshapen or stop pollinating."

"Strawberries are a mountain plant, but farmers try to grow them everywhere in the world. The strawberry plant can tolerate temperatures down to 8 to 10 degrees, but the flowers and fruit can't tolerate freezing," he said.

"In north Mississippi, we'll start having days in the 50s in February but still have freezing nights," Ellis said. "If you've got flowers out there, you have to cover them with a row material to give them some protection. If I don't start covering in February, I don't have fruit by April 1."

If the temperatures hold in the 55 to 75 degree range, Ellis can pick until mid-May. This year, he started picking berries two weeks early. The typical harvest runs from mid-March until the end of April.

"One of the benefits of Mississippi strawberries is that they're sweeter than fruit shipped from out of state, because we can wait until the fruit is fully ripe to pick it," he said. "We hand pick and then hand sort in the shed after an initial field culling. Big operations do a field cull only, so the packages you see in the grocery store may include a bad berry or berries that are uneven in appearance and flavor."

Ellis has experimented with different varieties over the years and has settled on the Camarosa. He wants a variety that is a good mix of old-fashioned berry qualities -- small, sweet and tender -- and the qualities of the newer varieties, which produce bigger berries but are less sweet.

Prices for strawberries have held steady compared to last year. Ellis is selling a flat for $20, a half-flat for $12 and a 1-pound clamshell container for $3.

In addition to selling at the Columbus Farmers' Market and the Oktibbeha County Co-Op, he and his family operate a stand at the Mayhew Tomato Farm from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Saturday. Customers can call (662) 327-8700 to find out what is available.

"I sell out of my strawberries every day," he said. "We pick daily, and each day's harvest is gone before dark."

Ag Museum Receives Grant For Nature Trail

By Sandy Havard
Mississippi Ag & Forestry Museum

The Mississippi Agriculture and Forestry Museum received a recreational trails grant from the Mississippi Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks. This grant will allow the Museum to make repairs, update educational material and connect the nature trail to existing Museum walkways and paths. The renovated trail will include fun and educational ways to learn about Mississippi forests and native plants.

The goal of this project is to communicate the connection of agriculture to the natural environment. Visitors will see historic farm buildings, gardens, mules, and other farm animals, native plants, and creek environments, as well as planes, trains and tools of farming from years gone by.

The Museum staff began working on the trail in January 2012 and plans to be finished by May 2013. For more information about the trail and other activities such as birthday parties, rental facilities, and tours please call the museum at 1-800-844-TOUR (8687).
