Christmas Horses, Ponies Take Commitment, Money

By Linda Breazeale
MSU Ag Communications

Many children dream of finding a sweet pony or their first horse on Christmas morning, but parents need to be aware of the ownership commitment and cost before granting that wish.

"Most first-time owners do not know how to take care of a horse or what will be required in the years to come," said Dr. David Christiansen, assistant clinical professor with Mississippi State University's College of Veterinary Medicine. "Many people don't realize that horses can live 30 years or more, so the purchase could become a very long-term investment."

Christiansen said the least expensive aspect of owning a horse is the initial purchase of the animal. Ownership expenses include feed, hoof care, veterinary needs, and pasture or stabling.

"Parents may think horses will teach their children responsibility, but they need to look further down the road. What will happen to the horse when the child grows up or goes to college? With the overpopulation of horses, they are harder to sell, especially as they get older," he said.

New owners should give careful consideration to the horse's future home. If kept mostly in an open pasture, each horse needs 2 to 3 acres for adequate grazing. Prepare safe fencing and housing before getting the horse and have it inspected by someone experienced at identifying potential hazards or problems.

"We often find situations where the owner just didn't know how to care for the animal. Sometimes, it's a case of people getting in over their heads in terms of work or money involved in horse ownership," he said.

Dean Jousan, 4-H livestock specialist, said initial costs include grooming supplies, bridles, saddles, and other tack. Just like the horse, the equipment costs can vary greatly. Before purchasing a horse or pony, learn as much as possible and have a respected person with horse experience evaluate the horse for the desired purpose.

Jousan said boys and girls have learned how to care for animals in 4-H since the youth development program started in Mississippi in 1907. While 4-H involvement and educational materials are free, the same cannot be said for most riding lessons.

Monroe County Extension Director B.J. McClenton is an experienced rider and trainer. He said one of the most common mistakes parents make when selecting a horse for their child is to purchase a young or improperly trained animal, thinking they will grow and learn together. A more expensive horse that is already trained, experienced and best suited for the rider is well worth the investment.

"New riders should start with a well-trained, mature horse that can be a great babysitter. Young horses take patience, just like children, so it really takes twice as much patience to have a positive outcome," he said. "A well-laid foundation can make the difference. Carefully select the right breed and type of horse. Choose a horse that is suited for the style of riding they want to pursue. There is usually a significant difference in horses for speed events and those for slower, pleasure events."

McClenton said with the proper foundation, some youths may take their experience to the next level either in competition or a future career.

A horse can be a magical gift, but a first-time owner needs to learn about the work and money involved with this beautiful, long-term companion. (Photo by MSU Ag Communications/Linda Breazeale).

PEPPER JELLY- GOAT CHEESE CAKES

24 aluminum foil miniature baking cups
Vegetable cooking spray
1/4 cup fine, dry Italian-seasoned breadcrumbs
1/4 cup ground toasted pecans
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons butter, melted
1 8-ounce package cream cheese, softened
1 3-ounce goat cheese log, softened
1 large egg
2 tablespoons heavy cream
1 tablespoon Asian Sriracha hot chili sauce
1/4 cup green pepper jelly, melted
1/4 cup red pepper jelly, melted

Preheat oven to 350°. Place baking cups in two 12-cup miniature muffin pans; coat baking cups with cooking spray. Stir together breadcrumbs, pecans, Parmesan cheese, and melted butter. Firmly press about one teaspoon mixture in bottom of each baking cup. Beat cream cheese and goat cheese at medium speed with an electric mixer until light and fluffy; add egg, heavy cream and hot chili sauce, beating until just blended. Spoon mixture into baking cups, filling three-fourths full. Bake for 10 minutes or until set. Cool completely in pans on a wire rack (about 20 minutes). Spoon one teaspoon melted green pepper jelly over each of 12 cheesecakes. Spoon one teaspoon melted red pepper jelly over remaining 12 cheesecakes. Cover and chill 2 to 12 hours before serving.

Red Delicious apple slices (rounds)
Lemon juice
Garlic-and-herb spreadable cheese
Bacon, cooked and crumbled
Baby arugula sprigs
Freshly cracked pepper

Toss apple slice rounds in lemon juice; pat dry. Spread each with about 2 teaspoons garlic-and-herb spreadable cheese. Top with bacon, baby arugula sprigs, and freshly cracked pepper.

BUTTER-MINT SHORTBREAD

3/4 cup powdered sugar
1/2 teaspoon mint extract
1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
2 1/2 cups all-purpose flour

Beat butter and 3/4 cup powdered sugar at medium speed with an electric mixer until creamy. Add extracts, beating until blended. Gradually add flour, beating at low speed until blended. Press dough into an ungreased 15x10-inch jelly-roll pan. Bake at 325° for 20 minutes or until golden. Cool in pan on a wire rack 10 minutes. Cut into squares; sprinkle with powdered sugar. Remove to wire racks to cool completely.

CHERRY-PECAN BRIE

1/3 cup cherry preserves
1 tablespoon balsamic vinegar
1/8 teaspoon freshly ground pepper
1/8 teaspoon salt
1 16-ounce Brie round (rind removed from top)
Chopped toasted pecans

Stir together cherry preserves, balsamic vinegar, freshly ground pepper, and salt in a bowl. Drizzle over warm Brie round. Top with chopped toasted pecans. Serve with crackers.

1 12-ounce jar chili sauce
1/4 cup orange marmalade
1/4 cup water
2 tablespoons soy sauce
2 tablespoons red wine vinegar
1 teaspoon dried red pepper flakes

Combine first eight ingredients in a large bowl. Shape mixture into about 54 1-inch balls. Cook meatballs, in batches, in a large skillet over medium-high heat until browned (about 5 minutes); remove meatballs from pan and drain well on paper towels. Stir together cranberry and chili sauces and next 5 ingredients in a large Dutch oven over medium heat, and cook, whisking occasionally, 5 minutes or until smooth. Add meatballs; reduce heat to low, and cook, stirring occasionally, 15 to 20 minutes or until centers are no longer pink.

Donations Needed For Puppy Transport

By Keri Collins Lewis
MSU Ag Communications

This month, some kids have visions of sugar plums dancing in their heads, and others dream of finding a new furry, four-legged family member under the tree.

Mississippi State University students and staff help some of these wishes come true through a program that gets family-friendly dogs to Northeastern states, but these volunteers have a Christmas wish of their own.

The Homeward Bound Project of Mississippi needs a new vehicle to transport animals from Mississippi to Virginia. MSU's College of Veterinary Medicine is a key partner in the project, which was started in 2007 by veterinary students dedicated to reducing the number of animals euthanized in the state. In addition to veterinary care, CVM loans a departmental trailer for transportation.

"The trailer's air conditioner and generator just don't have the capacity to cool 40 or 50 dogs in the summer months, and we have tried every conceivable configuration of additional, rented generators and a stand-alone air-conditioning unit," said Terri Snead, a CVM veterinary technician who volunteers nights and weekends with Homeward Bound.

This problem limits the program's ability to transport animals and prompted the CVM's Class of 2016 to set a goal of raising money to purchase a new, fully air-conditioned vehicle for Homeward Bound's exclusive use. Students are working through the CVM Office of Development to raise $60,000.

"Many students in our class support the Homeward Bound program by fostering dogs until transport, helping process animals, setting up the trailer, fundraising, grant-writing and completing other administrative functions," said Ryan Gibson, president of the Class of 2016. "We want to support the program's effort and increase its efficiency by buying a new transport vehicle."

Dogs from 10 Mississippi shelters and rescues go north about every six weeks after organizations in Connecticut, New Hampshire, and New York choose animals based on photos and descriptions emailed by Homeward Bound. Local adoptions continue, so adoption coordinators on both ends of the process stay in constant contact to ensure selected dogs are

Dogs from 10 Mississippi animal shelters and rescues get ready to head north as part of the Homeward Bound project at Mississippi State University's College of Veterinary Medicine. still available at transport time.

"The adoption-guaranteed shelters that we transport to aren't empty -- they just don't have the large number of puppies and young dogs our Mississippi shelters have," Snead said. "A look at their Pet-Finder listings shows a lot of older dogs and dogs with special needs."

"It simply takes longer to place those types of dogs, and it's very important for people to understand that our dogs do not displace those dogs. Our dogs meet a different need," she said.

The Hollamby family of Westchester, New York, found their perfect match in a Homeward Bound dog.

"We adopted our pup in December of 2011, just after our beloved chocolate lab passed away," said Jill Hollamby. "My daughter Emma was very sad without a dog in the house, so I encouraged her to find a dog in need."

Emma discovered an adoption event at the Westchester Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, or SPCA, but told her mom she just wanted to look.

"We arrived around noon, and there was only one cute, but nervous-looking pup left in the adoption tent," Hollamby said. "My daughter immediately fell in love with his sweet face, and I didn't have the heart to leave this little puppy behind."

While finalizing the adoption, they found out their puppy had come all the way from Mississippi.

"He jumped in the car, sat up tall in the back seat and gave Emma a big kiss," Hollamby said. "We named him Chase, and he is a smart, handsome lab-hound mix with a very funny personality -- he's a loyal, loving dog and makes us laugh every day."

Hollamby said Chase loves running through leaf piles and adores snow.

"What I have come to realize with Chase is that there is something extra special about adopting a rescue animal," she said. "Not only do we have a healthy, happy dog, but there is a special connection knowing we were part of something bigger, thanks to Homeward Bound of Mississippi."

"Without the intervention of Homeward Bound, Chase and thousands of other dogs would not have gotten a second chance at life," Hollamby said.

Keep Firewood Stacks From Housing Termites

By Bonnie Coblenz
MSU Ag Communications

Many Mississippians own a fireplace for the pleasure and comfort it provides on cold winter nights, but if they're not careful, the firewood can harbor unwanted guests.

In the winter, the desire to have a handy woodpile can open the door for termite problems. Blake Layton, entomologist with the MSU Extension Service, urged those with fireplaces not to stack wood against the outside wall of the house.

"There is no real risk of termite infestation through wood that is brought inside and burned immediately, but firewood that is stacked against the house, not used and left for the next year creates a high risk of termite infestation," Layton said.

Andy Londo, an Extension and research professor in Mississippi State University's Forest and Wildlife Research Center, said incorrectly stored firewood can attract termites, ants, and other pests.

"Keep your firewood off the ground to limit rot and keep the critters away," Londo said. "Wood gets moist on the ground, and this creates a favorable environment for insects to gather and multiply."

Wood that is cut and stacked in the spring should be seasoned and ready to burn in the fall and winter.

"Once the wood is cut and split, stack it so air can move freely around and dry it," Londo said. "Whether you take the time to stack your wood in rows or throw it in a pile, make sure air can move around the wood."

Rain does not hurt firewood that is stacked away from direct contact with the ground, and there is no need to cover a woodpile, Londo said. Make sure woodpiles are convenient to the house, but not touching the building to lessen the termite threat.

Layton said two main termite species threaten Mississippi homes. Eastern subterranean termites are found throughout the state. Non-native Formosan termites are found in 26 Mississippi counties, mostly in the southern part of the state, but they are spreading.

"The biology of these two groups of termites is similar enough that the procedures for protecting homes against termite attack work against both species," Layton said.

The best approach to keeping a home safe from termites is to treat the house before there is a problem, making conditions unfavorable for termites to enter the building.

Wood, whether it is firewood or lumber, left near the slab or foundation for prolonged periods of time can lead to a termite infestation.

"Termites can enter a house through any soil-to-wood contact," he said. "A forgotten stack of firewood that is near or touches the house can provide an opportunity for termites to enter a building."

Once they are inside a structure, termite extermination is a costly process, so the best plan is to prevent an infestation from ever occurring.

One way to prevent the arrival of termites in the house is to keep stacked wood off the ground and away from exterior walls. (Photo by MSU Ag Communications/Scott Corey)
