State Winter Wheat Crop Needs a Break from Rain

By Bonnie Coblentz
MSU Ag Communications

Cool temperatures through March kept some Mississippians comfortable, but slowed the development of wheat, the state's only row crop grown through winter.

Erick Larson, corn and wheat state specialist with the Mississippi State University Extension Service, said wheat acreage is high this year, with 420,000 acres planted in the fall. State growers planted 500,000 acres in 2007, but this year marks the second highest planting since 1990.

"We didn't have a great production year last year, but wheat is a crop that can generate some money in a time that is an off-season for most other commodities grown in the state," Larson said. "Farmers will often double-crop soybeans after wheat is harvested, or they make improvements to their land in the summer after already making a profit off those acres that year."

Brian Williams, Extension agricultural economist, said July wheat futures were trading as high as $7.30 the third week of March.

"Wheat had been on a steady decline since early December, but it appears to have taken a bit of an upward turn over the last couple of weeks," Williams said. "As of March 20, Mississippi cash wheat prices were ranging from $7.22 per bushel in Greenwood to $7.47 per bushel in Greenville."

Williams said the wheat market has a lot of uncertainty, much of which is caused by weather. In addition, there has been an increased demand for wheat as a feed substitute for corn.

"Wheat seems to be competing well with other crops right now, and it is possible that spring wheat prices may rise," he said.

Larson said the wheat was planted on time last fall but struggled with a late winter and an early spring that has been extremely wet.

"That has stunted wheat development as it breaks dormancy, and it may limit the yield potential on fields with poor drainage," Larson said.

Wheat that has been stunted does not perform as well at the vegetative stage known as tillering. Tillering is the growth of additional stems on a single plant, which results in more heads to harvest. Tillering happens in the fall and early spring, and saturated soils can limit this process. When temperatures warm, these stems begin to lengthen and tillering ceases.

"Because we've been wet, there are some wheat fields that didn't tiller adequately to meet the standards of high production levels," Larson said.

It is too soon to predict a final yield, but Larson said the crop looks average at best.

"Cool conditions have held wheat growth back a lot this year compared to last year. This may not hurt yield potential, but it makes it difficult to estimate what kind of crop we'll have," Larson said.

While continued wet weather is wheat's biggest threat now, later pressures can come from insects and disease. The crop's most critical point is heading, when grain is set. While heading often begins as early as late March, heading will probably begin in April this year.

Wheat is harvested in late May through early June. This year's cool weather may push harvest dates back, depending on the weather through the rest of the spring.

Country of Origin Labeling Law Signed

On March 19, Governor Phil Bryant signed into law Senate Bill 2513 which requires that restaurants label the country of origin of fish products on their menus. This includes foreign fish products such as basa, tra, and swai, in addition to catfish which was already included in the law. Among those that joined Governor Bryant were (left to right) Senator Billy Hudson, Chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee; Commissioner of Agriculture and Commerce Cindy Hyde-Smith; and Representative Preston Sullivan, Chairman of the House Agriculture Committee.

- 1 3/4 cups whole wheat flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/4 cup hot water
- 1/2 cup chopped walnuts

Preheat oven to 325° F. In a large bowl beat oil and honey together. Add eggs, and mix well. Stir in bananas and vanilla. Add flour and salt and stir. - 1 cup warm water
- 2 cups whole wheat flour
- 1/4 cup wheat germ
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon honey

Preheat oven to 350° F. In a small bowl, dissolve yeast in warm water. Let stand until creamy, about 10 minutes. In a large bowl combine flour, wheat germ, and salt. Make a well in the middle and add honey and yeast mixture. Stir well to combine. Cover and set in a warm place to rise for a few minutes. Roll dough on a floured pizza pan and poke a few holes in it with a fork. Bake in a preheated oven for 5 to 10 minutes, or until desired crispness is achieved. Add your favorite toppings.

Sift together flour and baking powder, set aside. Beat together the egg, milk, salt, and artificial sweetener in a bowl. Stir in flour until just moistened, add blueberries, and stir to incorporate. Preheat a heavy-bottomed skillet over medium heat, and spray with cooking spray. Pour approximately 1/4 cup of the batter into the pan for each pancake. Cook until bubbly, about 1 1/2 minutes. Turn and continue cooking until golden brown.

Combine the whole wheat flour, all-purpose flour, cinnamon, baking powder, baking soda, and salt; stir into the wet ingredients until moistened. Gently stir in the zucchini and walnuts until evenly distributed. Divide batter evenly between the prepared pans. Bake for 50 to 60 minutes in the preheated oven, or until a knife inserted into the crown comes out clean. Cool in the pan until cool enough to touch, and then turn out onto a wire rack to cool completely. Wrap in plastic wrap or store in a plastic bag when cool.

A Mississippi Spring

By Lise Foy
Director of Project Management
MS Agriculture & Forestry Museum

Today we did not reach 40 degrees on the thermometer, but tomorrow it will be over 70. My usually black truck has a fine yellow tint. Thank goodness for the rain to help wash away the pollen, but not the hail! That same black truck now has dimples.

Even though we do get a 'mixed bag' of weather here in Mississippi around the vernal equinox, spring is the delightful season of increasing daylight, warming temperatures, and the rebirth of flora and fauna. Spring means many things to people here. Farmers are planting crops, hunters are calling turkeys, and cattlemen are glad the calves are on the ground. At the Ag Museum, the grounds are beginning to come alive with insects, plant life, and people.

Many of the plants that bloom during March through May, including flowering trees, clovers, and native wildflowers, may cause a tickle in your nose or an itch to your eye, but they are significant to the honey bee because they supply early season nectar and pollen. As bees collect pollen for food, they pollinate many agricultural crops throughout the year. A recent study estimates that pollination by bees contributes $29 billion dollars to agricultural production according to the January/February issue of Bee News & Views, a publication of the Mississippi Bee Keepers Association.

The bee hives located at the Ag Museum serve as hands on teaching tools for beekeeping short course classes organized by the Mississippi Beekeepers Association. Jim Pennington, who maintains and monitors these hives, says the Ag Museum happens to be located in a great location for honey production because it is situated in the heart of the Pearl River Basin.

The low area near LeFleur's Bluff, chosen by the state's legislature in 1821 for our state's capital city because of its attractive scenery, high quality water supply, abundant timber, and proximity to the Natchez Trace, maintains good soil moisture throughout the growing season promoting heavier nectar flow which enables honey bees to produce more honey. The high quality honey harvested from the hives on the Museum's grounds is sold in the General Store throughout the year, alongside other Mississippi produced food products.

Since 1991, the formal Rose Garden at the Museum has been under the volunteer management of the Mississippi Old Garden Rose Society lead by Dr. Heber and Mrs. Miriam Ethridge. The Museum Rose Garden, which begins to bloom in early April and continues until the first frost, contains up to 75 varieties of flowering plants including hybrid tea and old-fashioned varieties of roses. This dedicated group held their annual pruning party in February to ready the garden for the many weddings and photo sessions held during the warm months.

Another beautiful outdoor area that deserves visitor appreciation during the spring and summer is the Museum's Nature Trail and Forest Study Area which serves as an educational tool that relates the environment to agriculture and how the environment has always been a friend to the farmer. The 300 yard wood trestle trail running through ten acres of timber including hardwoods like oak and cypress, pines, and other native plant species, leads people along a creek bottom between the Bisland Cotton Gin and the newly established animal pasture.

On April 16 and 17, the Ag Museum has partnered with Mississippi State University Extension Service, Mississippi Farm Bureau, Mississippi Cattlemen's Association, Mississippi Cattlewomen's Association, Mississippi Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks, Mississippi Soil and Water Commission, and Natural Resources Conservation Service to bring AgVentures to the 4th grade students in the capitol area. This new event will provide children with interactive experiences involving animals, native plants, crops, cultivation, and composting.

It is amazing to think that at one of the busiest intersections in the Metro-Jackson area, Lakeland Drive and I-55, people can enjoy a visit to the farm and walk on a nature trail. If you look through the trees, you can see the 'city' for certain, but if you allow yourself, you can be immersed in a quaint rural and natural Mississippi environment in an instant. The grounds offer several covered picnic areas and plenty of room to spread a blanket for dining al fresco!

Get out and enjoy the Mississippi outdoors this spring. And, if the weather doesn't suit at the moment, just wait an hour or so, it will change.

April 29 Deadline Approaching in Mississippi for SBA Working Capital Loans Due to Drought

By Michael Lampton
U.S. Small Business Administration

The U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) is reminding small businesses, small agricultural cooperatives, small businesses engaged in aquaculture and most private non-profit organizations of all sizes that April 29 is the filing deadline for federal economic injury disaster loans available in Benton, Calhoun, Lafayette, Marshall, Panola, Pontotoc, Tate, Tippah, Union and Yalobusha counties in Mississippi as a result of the drought between July 3 and August 27, 2012.

Under this declaration, the SBA's Economic Injury Disaster Loan program is available to eligible farm-related and nonfarm-related entities that suffered financial losses as a direct result of this disaster. With the exception of aquaculture enterprises, SBA cannot provide disaster loans to agricultural producers, farmers, or ranchers. Nurseries are eligible to apply for economic injury disaster loans for losses caused by drought conditions.

The working capital loan amount can be up to $2 million with interest rates as low as 4 percent for eligible small businesses and 3 percent for non-profit organizations with terms up to 30 years.

Applicants may apply online using the Electronic Loan Application (ELA) via SBA's secure website at <https://disasterloan.sba.gov/ela>.

Disaster loan information and application forms may also be obtained by calling the SBA's Customer Service Center at 800-659-2955 (800-877-8339 for the deaf and hard-of-hearing) or by sending an email to disastercustomerservice@sba.gov. Loan applications can be downloaded from the SBA's website at www.sba.gov. Completed applications should be mailed to: U.S. Small Business Administration, Processing and Disbursement Center, 14925 Kingsport Road, Fort Worth, TX 76155.

Completed loan applications must be returned to SBA no later than April 29, 2013.

74th Semi-Annual Ralph Morgan Rodeo

By Linda Clayton
Rodeo Sales
Smith, Harper & Morgan Rodeo

The Semi-Annual Ralph Morgan Rodeo is celebrating its 37th Anniversary this year with dates on April 19-20 in Lauderdale, Mississippi. Garth Brooks sang about the bulls and the broncs on a Sunday afternoon but in Lauderdale, Mississippi it is on Friday and Saturday that the crowd flows into Lauderdale for the rodeo.

We are expecting a great group of cowboys, cowgirls, and great stock from Smith Pro Rodeo Company to give us a action packed rodeo that weekend. Andy Stuart will be our announcer for the weekend and Lecile Harris will be there to keep us laughing with his jokes and acts and dancing with the kids in the arena at the Dance competition.

Great food, beautiful grounds, plenty of free parking, and a fun weekend for a reasonable cost of $10 for adults and $6 for children under the age of 12. The rodeo starts at 7:30 p.m. each night.

The Ralph Morgan family works hard to have a great rodeo for the community; the cowboys, cowgirls, and spectators that love the sport of rodeo. So come enjoy the chills and thrills of this famed rodeo showcase and see where "The Wild West begins where the pavement ends!"

Supertunias Make a Super Garden Impact

By Gary R. Bachman
MSU Horticulturist
Coastal Research & Extension Center

Every spring the home gardener is bombarded with new and improved petunias for the garden and landscape, making it hard to decide which to bring home from the garden center. In my opinion, you simply can't go wrong selecting any of the Supertunias.

For the past several years, I have been watching and writing about these fantastic garden performers. Whether used as spreading plants in the landscape or as container and hanging basket plants, supertunias have been good performers in Mississippi.

Vista Bubblegum with its clear, bright pink flowers was selected as a Mississippi Medallion winner in 2012. But in reality, all the Supertunia varieties are winners for the home gardener.

Vista Silverberry has silvery-white flowers with delicate magenta veins. Raspberry Blast is a bicolor variety with pink flowers edged in deep violet. One of the more interesting selections is Priscilla, a semi-double lavender flower that has purple veins.

Supertunias simply can't be beat when grown in containers and hanging baskets. The plants have a mature diameter of at least 24 inches, with some of the selections spreading reaching to an unbelievable 48 inches.

Supertunias also work well in combination containers. Salmon-colored Bermuda Beach Supertunia, variegated ivy, and light green Sweet Caroline sweet potato vine make a dynamic combination.

Another combination that is sure to impress is the pink flowers of Vista Bubblegum intertwined with the silvery-white flowers of Vista Silverberry.

One of my absolute favorite Supertunias is Pretty Much Picasso. The flowers are outstanding as their unique, fuchsia petals and lime green edges seem to blend into the foliage. Last year, a Picasso was introduced and was a great performer in the trial beds at Mississippi State University's Truck Crops Branch Experiment Station in Crystal Springs. Picasso in Pink has bright pink flower petals edged in lime green like its older cousin.

The best feature of these outrageously flowering plants is the self-cleaning that has been bred into them. Gardeners who have handled many petunias will understand that this means sticky hands are a thing of the past.

Gardeners must meet a couple of regular maintenance needs for optimal growth of their Supertunias.

First, Supertunias are heavy feeders, so keep nutrition levels consistent to maintain continuous flowering. Weekly feedings with water-soluble fertilizer work well. If you want to save a little time in the landscape, apply a controlled-release fertilizer every four to six weeks for similar results.

The second chore not to be neglected is regular watering. While Supertunias tolerate the summer heat, good flowering requires consistent moisture in the root zone. Your plants will not like going through droughty conditions unless you provide supplemental watering.

Grow Supertunias in full sun for at least five to six hours each day to reach their full flowering potential.

Try these super performers in your landscape for a vibrant look this summer.

Free Online Program Educates Homeowners with Water Wells

By Bob Ratliff
MSU Ag Communications

Homeowners in small communities and rural areas without a public water supply often have questions about how to manage, operate, and protect their private wells.

The Mississippi State University Extension Service is working with the Rural Community Assistance Partnership and the University of Illinois to help Mississippians with private wells learn more about managing their water supplies.

"A new nationwide educational program is available online to help well owners understand groundwater basics, well care best practices and how to find assistance," said Jason Barrett, instructor in the MSU Extension Service's Center for Government and Community Development. "The free, private well class also teaches well owners how to sample their wells, how to interpret sample results, and what they can do to protect their wells and source water from contamination."

The program combines a self-paced 10-part online class with live, interactive webinars in which the material is reinforced and experts answer questions from participants. Well owners can enroll in the class online at <http://www.privatewellclass.org>.

"The majority of Mississippians get their water from municipal supplies or rural water associations, but there are thousands of homes in rural areas of the state that depend on private wells," Barrett said. "In fact, in 22 of the state's 82 counties, an average of 16 percent of households rely on private wells. In four of those counties, more than 40 percent of homes have private wells."

The private well class training initiative is funded by the Rural Community Assistance Partnership through a grant from the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency. The class is provided by the Illinois State Water Survey and the Illinois Water Resources Center at the University of Illinois.
