Multiple Issues Impact 2013 Poultry Decisions

By Linda Breazeale
MSU Ag Communications

The impact of last year's drought on feed costs is not the only challenge poultry growers face in 2013.

Production costs, expansion issues, waste regulations, competition from other meat sources, and the next grain crop are major factors impacting the poultry industry this year.

"Some of the corn produced last year had to go to ethanol, so supplies are even tighter, and have driven up feed costs," said Tom Tabler, poultry specialist with the Mississippi State Univer-

This 5-week-old broiler is approaching market weight in a commercial research house at the H.H. Leveck Animal Research Center, commonly called South Farm, at Mississippi State University on March 20, 2013. Mississippi has grown more than 205 million birds in the first 14 weeks of the year. sity Extension Service.

Tabler said companies have cut back on production in recent years to manage their costs and keep meat prices profitable, leaving room for expansion when the economy recovers.

"Poultry production is three to five percent below our maximum level, but integrators will likely wait to see what grain forecasts are later in the season before making any decisions on expansion. In addition, growers need to see if they can meet all the new waste management regulations, which is part of the cost-of-production challenges," he said.

Tabler said some changes in soil fertility standards could impact where farmers can spread chicken litter. If options are reduced, finding alternative disposal methods will not be easy.

"In the best economic times, growing birds is not cheap. A new chicken house is a minimum investment of $250,000 for just the basics," he said. "Now, with feed costs soaring, no one wants to expand too quickly. Feeds costs make up about 70 percent of the cost of production."

Tabler said one option for slowing down production is to allow more time between flocks. However, this can pose risks to growers with farm payments to make. Integrators are aware of this and attempt to keep time between flocks as manageable as possible.

"Everyone is walking a tight-rope. The key right now is good management on the part of both growers and integrators," he said.

John Michael Riley, Extension agricultural economist, said corn and soybean prices have fallen since the first of the year and especially the first weeks of April, which is helping reduce the pressure on the input side.

"Nothing solves high prices like high prices," Riley said. "As feed prices went up, end users were turning to other sources, and domestic consumption fell. While prices remain higher than poultry growers would like, slowing broiler sales have helped push prices down."

Riley said he thinks poultry production is about to ramp up to fill the protein gap. Pork suffered from high production costs, and prices have not provided much incentive to expand. A lack of forage and water forced beef producers to sell during the drought.

"Pork supplies are level, and beef is going down. Poultry is going to do what it can to fill in the gap," he said.

According to the recent U.S. Department of Agriculture report for the week ending April 6, hatcheries in Mississippi set almost 18 million eggs for broiler chicks during the week. This amount is one percent above the previous week's set, but about the same as that seen at the same time last year.

USDA reported 15.1 million broiler chicks placed in the state the first week of April, five percent above the placement the previous week but one percent below the placement for the corresponding week a year ago. Cumulative placements for the year total 205 million chicks, four percent below this time last year.

Mississippi Egg Board Luncheon

From Our Kitchen To Yours

Chicken and Eggs...A Tasty Combination

CALICO CHICKEN SALAD

- 1 broiler-fryer chicken, cooked
- 2 1/3 cups chicken broth
- 1 cup rice
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1 teaspoon curry powder, divided
- 4 green onions, thinly sliced
- 1 red sweet pepper, chopped
- 1/3 cup mayonnaise

Remove the skin and bones from a cooked chicken; cut chicken into bite-sized pieces and set aside. In saucepan, place chicken broth, rice, and pepper; bring to a boil over high heat. Stir, cover, reduce heat to low, and cook for about 25 minutes. In a large bowl, place cooked rice, and sprinkle with 1/2 teaspoon of the curry powder. Sprinkle warm chicken with remaining 1/2 teaspoon of curry powder and add to rice. To chicken and rice mixture, add onion, red pepper, and mayonnaise, stirring gently to mix well. Cover and refrigerate until completely chilled, at least 2 hours. Serve on lettuce; garnish with whole black olives. Serves 4.

FARMERS MARKET OMELET

- 4 eggs
 - 1/4 cup water
 - 2 teaspoons grated Parmesan cheese
 - 1/2 teaspoon dried basil leaves
 - 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
 - 2 teaspoons butter
- Filling:
- 1/2 cup sliced mushrooms
 - 1/2 cup thinly sliced yellow summer squash
 - 1/2 cup thinly sliced zucchini
 - 1/4 cup chopped red bell pepper
 - 2 tablespoons water

Combine filling ingredients in 7 to 10-inch nonstick omelet pan or skillet. Cook and stir over medium heat until water has evaporated and vegetables are crisp-tender, 3 to 4 minutes. Remove vegetables from the pan and set aside; clean pan. Beat eggs, 1/4 cup water, cheese, basil, and garlic powder in a medium bowl until blended. Melt butter in the same pan in which the vegetables were sautéed over medium-high heat. Tilt pan to coat bottom. Pour in 1/2 of the egg mixture. The egg mixture should set immediately at edges. Gently push cooked portions from edges toward the center with inverted turner so that uncooked eggs can reach the hot pan surface. Continue cooking, tilting pan, and gently moving portions as needed. When top surface of eggs is thickened and no visible liquid egg remains, place 1/2 of the filling on one side of the omelet. Fold omelet in half with turner and slide onto plate; keep warm. Repeat with remaining egg mixture and filling to make second omelet. Serve immediately.

PINEAPPLE GINGER CHICKEN
STIR-FRY

- 1 1/2 pounds boneless, skinless chicken breasts, cubed
- 2 teaspoons peanut oil
- 2 cups fresh pineapple chunks
- 3 tablespoons molasses
- 2 tablespoons fresh lime juice
- 1/4 teaspoon red pepper flakes
- 8 scallions, cut lengthwise into 2-inch pieces
- 1/4 cup minced crystallized ginger

Warm oil in a nonstick wok or large fry pan over high heat. Add chicken and sauté until firm and well browned, about 6 minutes. Remove chicken and set aside. Add pineapple and molasses to wok and stir-fry until the pineapple is brown and tender. Stir in the lime juice, red pepper flakes, scallions, and chicken. Sauté until scallions are bright green and the chicken is fully cooked, about 5 minutes. Toss in ginger and serve over rice. Serves 4.

TOMATO AND AVOCADO EGG SALAD

- 6 hard-boiled eggs, sliced
- 2 avocados, chopped
- 1 cup chopped tomato
- 1/2 cup chopped red onion
- 1/4 cup chopped fresh parsley or cilantro
- Spinach or lettuce leaves

- Dressing:
- 2 tablespoons mayonnaise
 - 2 tablespoons sour cream
 - 1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1/4 teaspoon hot pepper sauce

Mix dressing ingredients in small bowl. Reserve and refrigerate 6 center slices from eggs for garnish; chop remaining eggs. Combine chopped eggs, avocados, tomato, onion, and parsley in large bowl; toss gently to mix. Add dressing; stir gently just until ingredients are evenly coated with dressing. Refrigerate at least one hour to blend flavors. Serve on spinach or lettuce leaves, garnish with reserved egg slices.

This timber report contains aggregated individual timber sale stumpage data. Many variables, such as raw material demand, mill inventories, buyer competition, quality, topography and weather, play key roles in determining local prices. Pine Sawtimber prices are based upon a 14-inch Diameter-at-Breast-Height (DBH) log size. Pine Chip N Saw prices are based upon a 10-inch DBH log size. The stumpage prices shown here are reprinted with permission from the Timber Owner Market Guide; a bi-monthly publication of Forest2Market (www.forest2market.com).

Record Breaking Easter Egg Hunt at Ag Museum

By Lise Foy
Director of Project Management
MS Agriculture & Forestry Museum

The 2013 Easter Egg Hunt at the Mississippi Agriculture and Forestry Museum was a record breaker. The event, held annually on the Saturday before Easter Sunday, drew an attendance of 2,335 people this year in comparison to 1,100 in 2012.

The 2013 Easter Egg Hunt at the Museum was sponsored by the Mississippi Egg Marketing Board, Mississippi Beef Council, Cal-Maine Foods and Outlets of Vicksburg. The event included egg decorating, games, pony and train rides, and pictures with the Easter Bunny, plus an Easter Egg Hunt for children ages seven and under.

During the months of April and May, we aim to reach 1,000 followers on Facebook. Number 1,000 will receive two free admission passes to the museum.

Remembering The Old Country Store

By Lise Foy
Director of Project Management
MS Agriculture & Forestry Museum

On summer afternoons, Daddy would take us to Mr. Hoover's store at the intersection of Lodi Road and Highway 82 for a snack. It usually consisted of a hunk of hoop cheese, crackers, a slice of bologna or a can of Vienna sausages, and a coke. I fondly remember the smell of the old store where you could buy garden seeds, fencing materials, and feed. I was always fascinated by the combination and range of items for sale in his store.

In post-antebellum Mississippi, changes came about in the economics of daily life that opened the way for the development of the country store. Owners of plantations began to use sharecroppers or tenant farmers for labor. Because money was practically non-existent for production of crops, trade under a crop-lien system of credit developed. Farmers pledged their anticipated crop as security for furnishings and supplies necessary to produce a crop.

While this seemed like a great way to trade, Merle Travis may have just hit the nail on the head with the lyrics, "another day older and deeper in debt, I owe my soul to the company store." Even though he was singing about the life of a coal miner in 1946, the notion rings true for the Mississippi sharecropper of the Reconstruction era.

Commissaries were opened on plantations and at crossroad sites. The owners of these commercial enterprises dominated community life perhaps more effectively and completely than had antebellum planters. Their power base was both protected and secured by crop lien laws which stifled commercial development in small trade towns.

After 1900, improved roads and transportation by automobile enabled farmers to produce a larger variety of goods for sale and promoted competitive markets. Business and cash flow increased in Mississippi during this period. Small trade towns became business centers.

Typical businesses that flourished in these small towns included the filling station, cotton gin, sawmill, grist mill, and at the center of commerce in town, the general merchandise store. Former residents of rural areas moved their families to town, built homes, and increased economic activity which created new jobs. And, so began economic development as we know it today in Mississippi.

Like so many of its kind that have been lost to fire, changes in population centers, or 'progress' in general, Mr. Hoover's store was a victim to the widening of Mississippi Highway 82 between Winona and Starkville. Still, others remain as flourishing modern businesses on Main Streets across the state.

There are a few that come to mind that are thriving today. People will drive out of their way to visit these wonderful pieces of nostalgia. Or, maybe you live near one and shop there because it is convenient and the service is personal.

William's Brothers General Store in Philadelphia, Mississippi, is over 100 years old. According to an August 2012 article in the Mississippi Business Journal, this store employs 50 to 60 people and carries things like horse tack, smoked hams, cowboy boots, men's blue denim overalls, and chicken feed. The store once featured in National Geographic, still looks much like it did when it opened.

Visitors can see displays of items that were for sale during this period, while enjoying an ice-cold Coca-Cola in a glass bottle, candy sticks, old-fashioned rock candy, or a moon pie. There is a checker board on the front porch and rocking chairs just across the way that invite you to 'sit a spell' and reminiscence about the country store from your childhood.

The Museum General Store also carries a wide assortment of toys including jacks, marbles, yo-yo's, tops, pick-up sticks, and local Mississippi products including Mississippi Bees Honey, Hillside Vineyards Jelly and Jams, Daddy's Barbeque Sauce and Rubs, Mississippi Cheese Straws, Smith Farms Pepper Sauce, Hidden Arrow's Farm goats milk products, BearCreek Herbals scrubs and spritz's, and JR Webb Pottery. We can build a basket just for you featuring any of our Mississippi products.

The Ag Museum is located at 1150 Lakeland Drive in Jackson and is open Monday through Saturday from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. For more information about the Ag Museum, call (601) 432-4500, visit www.msagmuseum.org, or visit the Mississippi Agriculture and Forestry Museum on Facebook.

May Garden Calendar

By Lelia Scott Kelly, Ph.D.,

Horticulture Specialist, Mississippi State University Extension Service

“Cooling off” with cool colors in the landscape

Hot weather is already here in most parts of the state. If you want the appearance of “cool and calm” in your outdoor living areas, be sure to incorporate flowers in shades of blue, purple, violet, lavender and everything in between. Plants with foliage in shades of green massed around an area can add to the cool effect. Adding plants with white variegation, white flowers or silvery foliage will also add to the “cool, icy atmosphere.”

Cool colors are considered relaxing and peaceful and hot colors such as reds and oranges are considered active, energetic and “hot.” So, I guess you need to decide if the overall atmosphere of your outdoor rooms should be cool or hot—for me, I prefer a mix with a tad more cool colors to calm and cool me down after a hard day of work at the Extension office!

Examples of flowering plants within the blue range are scaevola, catmint, petunia, verbena, iris, amsonia, asters and many of the perennial salvia including the mealy cup sage, bog sage, Mexican bush sage, ‘Indigo Spires’ and ‘East Friesland’ salvia—to name just a few.

Plants with silvery or whitish foliage are dusty miller, dianthus, lamb’s ear, and artemisias such as ‘Valerie Finnis’, ‘Silver Mound’ and ‘Powis Castle.’ Plants with white variegated foliage include hostas, scented geraniums, zonal geraniums, sedums, and many of the ornamental grasses.

Spring Flowering Shrubs—Time To Prune and Fertilize

After blooms have passed on spring flowering shrubs, cut back all overgrown growth. Azaleas, wiegela, flowering quince, forsythia, and spireas are spring bloomers. Remove entire limbs to simply reduce the size of the plant without destroying its natural habit. A general recommendation, if you haven’t done a soil test, is to apply a low-nitrogen fertilizer, such as 5-10-10, at the rate of 1/4 cup per established plant. For the acid-loving plants like azaleas there are fertilizers specially formulated that help to maintain the acidity of the soil.

Blooming Vegetables

If your lettuce, mustard, broccoli, spinach and other spring greens have begun to flower (bolt), don’t pull them all out. Try pinching off the pretty, yellow or white flowers and sprinkle them on a salad or sandwich. I think you will be surprised how tasty they are, and your family will be impressed with your ingenuity and flair!

Parsley could be a goner

If you planted parsley last spring, I bet it will shoot up a flowering stalk this spring and then give up the ghost! Parsley is a biennial and will complete its life cycle in two growing seasons. If this is the case with your plant you have two choices. You can let it flower, go to seed and then watch for the little seedlings that will appear around the dying mother plant, or you can yank the thing out and go buy another plant. If you want to have parsley to harvest during the summer your best bet is to go purchase a potted parsley transplant, otherwise you will be waiting on the young seedlings to get large enough and that could take awhile.

Vegetable Harvest Is Not Far Away

By Mississippi State University
Extension Service

May is a great time to be vegetable gardening. Snap bean, squash, sweet corn and Irish potato harvest is not too far away if they were planted early. Irish potatoes are harvested as soon as they are large enough to eat. However, the main crop is harvested after the vines have yellowed. Multiplying onions that over-wintered can be pulled, sun dried and saved for replanting in August.

Hopefully, the tomatoes are faring well and setting small fruit. Many times, though, young fruit will develop a blackened area on the underside (blossom-end) of the fruit. This usually occurs this time of year and is known as Blossom End Rot. It can be devastating to tomatoes. Unlike other diseases, blossom end rot is caused by a calcium deficiency rather than by fungi, bacteria or virus.

Calcium is supplied to the tomato in water absorbed from the soil by roots. Through a series of plant processes, calcium and other nutrients ultimately find their way into the fruit. However, even with adequate calcium in the soil, blossom end rot can be brought on by anything that interrupts this flow of water in the plant such as drought or soil flooding. Preventing moisture stress is therefore key to minimizing Blossom End Rot.

Usually, in garden soils with adequate calcium, plants will eventually produce normal fruit. That is, it’s usually only the first two clusters or so of fruit that are affected. The recovery may be due to increased soil temperature and an increase in the size of the plant’s root system.

Some gardeners use liquid calcium chloride sprays on their tomato leaves in an attempt to prevent blossom end rot. However, calcium does not move into the fruit very easily by this method. The best way to get plenty of calcium into the tomato plant is to keep the soil evenly moist, provide good drainage (i.e. raised beds) and keep soil calcium levels up by adding lime based on soil test results. Affected fruit should be pulled and discarded.

Wilting Tomatoes

The tomato is obviously the most popular garden vegetable. Yet, raising tomatoes can be quite difficult due to the number of pests and environmental factors that work against even the best tomato growers. For instance, there are at least seven factors that cause tomatoes to wilt. These include diseases like Fusarium, Bacterial Wilt, Southern Blight and Tomato Spotted Wilt Virus. They can also be attacked by Nematodes, which are tiny parasitic worms. And, of course, too much or too little water can cause wilting.

Probably the most heartbreaking of these wilt causing agents and the least preventable is bacterial wilt. Tomatoes with this disease wilt rapidly and rarely recover. Some describe the affected tomatoes as looking like they had hot water poured over them. The deadly bacteria that causes the disease fills the plants plumbing system to the point where water flow is cut off and the plants wilt and die.

When bacterial wilt affects tomatoes one year we are generally assured that it is there to stay. It’s therefore best to find a new garden spot, or to raise tomatoes in containers. Containers should not be in direct contact with infected garden soil.

Proper Mowing Improves Efficiency and Turf Health

By Dr. Wayne Wells
Extension Professor
and Turfgrass Specialist - MSU

The one activity that we perform on our lawn more than anything else is mowing, yet it is most often done with lack of attention to mowing height, regularity, leaf wetness, sharpness of blade and mowing patterns. Any of these factors could cause undue turf stress and provide less than desired results.

Every turf species has its own optimum mowing height and any extremes from this may cause scalping, turf thinning, and even loss of the lawn. Recommended cutting heights (inches) for our warm season turf species are as follows: bermudagrass 0.5-1.5; zoysia 1.0-1.5; carpetgrass 1.0-2.0; centipede 1.5-2.0; and St. Augustine 2.5-3.0.

Regardless of the turf species, mowing regularity should follow the one-third rule. This means never remove more than one-third of the total turf height at a single mowing. When the one-third rule is followed, leaf clippings will fall into the canopy of the turf and decompose rather quickly. With irregular and improper mowing, excess leaf clipping collect on the turf canopy shading the turf below, increases disease and insect incidences, and creates excess thatch.

Blade sharpness will determine the quality of cut and aesthetic appearance of the turf. A dull mower blade will tear rather than cut leaving leaf tips split, ragged and brown. A sharp blade will also improve the efficiency of the mower engine. Over the course of the growing season, that can be a considerable savings.

It is best to avoid cutting the lawn when there is leaf wetness from rain or heavy dew especially when disease pressures are prevalent. Changing mowing patterns, especially with riding mowers, will help reduce soil compaction and turf wear.

Pick-Your-Own Crops

By Claude Nash, Editor
Mississippi Market Bulletin

Nothing beats the taste of fresh fruits, vegetables, and nuts, but most of us lack the time and space to grow our own. Hundreds of Mississippi farmers statewide offer us the opportunity to teach our children and remind ourselves that food doesn't grow at the grocery store.

What better way to enjoy a family outing than picking your own blueberries, blackberries, corn, okra, butterbeans, peas, pecans, plums, peaches, etc. The Mississippi Market Bulletin wants to help you find these farmers who offer pick-your-own opportunities.

Beginning with the May 15th issue through the June 15th issue, we will have a county-by-county listing of farmers with pick-your-own crops. As farmers look for alternative crops and marketing methods, the number of pick-your-own farms is growing in Mississippi. We urge all farmers to participate in advertising their pick-your-own crops in these next few upcoming issues, and we encourage all citizens of Mississippi to pick the bounty of our great state firsthand.

The form below will assist those farmers wishing to list their pick-your-own crops. So don't miss out on the opportunity to advertise your farm and share your crops with our 47,000 subscribers.

National Ag Day Celebration

National Ag Day was celebrated on March 19, 2013, at the Mississippi Farmers Market in Jackson to recognize and celebrate the contributions of agriculture and to say "thank you" to our farmers and ranchers. Students from Eastside Elementary in Clinton participated in the activities, and some got the chance to meet and visit with Agriculture Commissioner Cindy Hyde-Smith during the celebration.

Tim Cooper of Cooper Farms in Morton shares with students the types of crops that he grows and explains to students the importance of farmers and where their food comes from.

4-H State Leadership Team

The 4-H State Leadership Team recently visited the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce. Pictured on the front row (left to right) are: Lashonda Harvey, Harrison County; Andrew Huff, 4-H State Council President, Rankin County; and Yolanda Kelly, Oktibbeha County. Pictured on the back row (left to right) are: Vonjacques Hall, Lee County; Elizabeth Holloway, Warren County; Marlee Anderson, Sharkey County; Selena Houston, Tate County; and Libby Tyson, Copiah County.

Students had the opportunity to get their hands dirty while learning about composting. The event was organized by the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce, Mississippi Farmers Market, Mississippi Agriculture and Forestry Museum, Mississippi Soil and Water Conservation Commission, Mississippi Farm Bureau® Federation, Mississippi Cattlemen's Association, U.S. Department of Agriculture's Natural Resources Conservation Service, Hinds County Soil and Water Conservation District, and Mississippi Egg Marketing Board.
