4-H Horse Championship Rewards Hard Work

By Susan Collins-Smith
MSU Ag Communications

To most people, showing horses seems a lot like work because of all the feeding, watering, stall cleaning, grooming, and training involved – not to mention the countless hours spent at shows. But to Mississippi 4-H'ers involved in the horse program, all that work is a lot of fun.

Each summer, young people ages 8 to 18 converge on the Mississippi State Fairgrounds for the 4-H Horse Championship to reap the rewards of a year's worth of effort. This year, more than 600 4-H horse program members participated in six educational contests and 105 riding events.

"The horse program is one of our most popular 4-H livestock programs," said Dean Jousan, Mississippi State University Extension Service 4-H livestock specialist. "Over the last 10 years, entries for the riding contests have remained between 1,100 and 1,200. Contestants number between 200 and 250 in the educational competitions."

Kristy and Michael Clark and their children Gentry, 16, and Quincee, 10, are among the faithful, spending their summer vacations at the event each year.

"We haven't been anywhere other than horse shows in about 10 years," said Michael Clark, of Bolivar County. "We really enjoy it, and our kids learn from it. 4-H provides a family environment where our kids can learn on a level that is appropriate for their age. It's not a dog-eat-dog kind of experience. They put their own work in and get the reward for that."

4-H members from across Mississippi qualify in their districts to compete in many of the more than 100 riding events and educational contests during the show. Educational competitions include horse judging, horse quiz bowl, horse public speaking, horse individual, and horse team demonstrations, and hippology. The contests are designed to encourage participants to research the horse industry and learn techniques for proper horse care, nutrition, and training.

Individuals must own a horse to take part in the performance events, but the competitions focused on learning are open to any interested individual.

"The educational contests are great for kids who are interested in horses but might not have the space or financial ability to have a horse of their own," said Larry Alexander,

Extension 4-H youth development specialist. "But the knowledge the kids gain from preparing for the competitions really enhances their overall experience if they do have a horse and compete in the performance events."

Bobby May, Union County 4-H member, can vouch for that. This year marks the 17-year-old's sixth annual trek to the statewide show, where he participates in horse public speaking, horse individual demonstration, horse bowl, and performance events.

"The things I've learned in horse bowl and doing other contests helps me every day with my horses," May said. "I've learned good organizational and research skills, and having horses has taught me responsibility."

He does not plan to work with horses for a living but knows his years spent in 4-H will come in handy when he gets the ranch he has dreamed of owning one day.

"But that will be after school," said May, who plans to become a pharmacist.

Like May, Amite County 4-H'er Christian Nations loves horses and 4-H.

12-year-old Christian has been a member of the 4-H horse program for just two years, but has had horses since she was 4. Horses have been wonderful therapy for Christian, who weighed 1.4 pounds at birth, said her mom, Debra Nations.

Christian said she spends most of her time at the barn, where she grooms, feeds, and works with 7-year-old Buddy, the horse she rides in speed events.

"When I first got him, he was afraid of everything," Christian said. "I started working with him on barrel riding, and one of the barrels had dirt on it. He wouldn't go around it because of the dirt. But I just kept working with him until he could do it."

Buddy is not the only one who has surpassed goals.

"4-H has helped Christian excel with kids in all kinds of settings, not just in horse competitions," Debra Nations said.

Christian's 4-H agent, Amy Walsh, agrees.

"I've really seen her self-confidence improve," Walsh said. "She has fun competing, and she's good at it. I love to see the smile it puts on her face."

And that is what the 4-H Horse Championship is all about, said Jousan.

"This event and the work that leads up to it give youth the opportunity to compete in an environment that fosters their development while showcasing their skills in educational contests and with their horses," he said.

Wondrous Watermelon

CHUNKY WATERMELON LEMONADE

2 cups water
1/3 cup raw sugar (or to taste)
2 cups seedless watermelon puree
1 fresh lemon, thinly sliced
1/4 cup lemon juice
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2 cups chopped seedless watermelon flesh-
(Optional for the "chunky" element)

In a half-gallon pitcher with a lid, mix 1 cup of the water with the sugar until sugar is completely dissolved. Stir in the rest of the water, watermelon puree, sliced lemon, lemon juice, and vanilla extract. Stir to mix well and chill thoroughly. For the chunky watermelon lemonade, stir in the 2 cups of chopped watermelon at the end.

SWEET SOUR WATERMELON & CUCUMBER SALAD

1/2 cup cider vinegar
1 cup water
1/2 cup sugar (or to taste)
1 tablespoon poppy seeds
Dash salt and pepper to taste
Bunch scallions, trimmed, and chopped
3 cups seedless watermelon balls or small chunks
2 cucumbers peeled, seeded, and cut into small slices

Mix together the vinegar, water, sugar, and poppy seeds in a bowl and season with salt and pepper to taste. Stir in the chopped scallions. Place the watermelon and cucumber in a serving bowl and pour the marinade over the top. Serve immediately or cover and refrigerate a couple of hours before serving. Toss gently before serving.

PROSCIUTTO WRAPPED WATERMELON & BRIE FINGERS

24 pinky finger- sized seeded watermelon rectangles
24 thin Brie slices about the same dimensions as the watermelon fingers
24 slices prosciutto ham

Place a piece of Brie on top of each watermelon finger and wrap each with a slice of ham. Secure with a toothpick.

WATERMELON & PEACHES DESSERT

4 cups watermelon cubes
2 peaches
Juice of 2 lemons
1/8 cup raw or organic white sugar
1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
2 cups vanilla yogurt
1 tablespoon butter
1 cup slivered almonds

In a saucepan over medium heat, melt the butter and add the almonds to the pan. Stir the almonds until they are toasted and golden. Remove the almonds from the pan to aluminum foil or heatproof plate to cool. Thinly slice the peaches and toss in a bowl with lemon juice. Add the watermelon cubes to the peaches and toss together. Combine the sugar, cinnamon and yogurt; pour over watermelon and peaches. Sprinkle the almonds over the top and serve immediately.

MINCED PORK & WATERMELON LETTUCE WRAPS

1 cup Hoisin sauce
1 cup toasted pine nuts
1 cup minced seedless watermelon
8 large Bibb (or iceberg) lettuce leaves

In a heavy, non-stick skillet over high heat brown the pork until well done. Reduce heat to medium and add the garlic, ginger and soy sauce to the pan. Stir for a few minutes and then add the scallions. Remove from heat and add the Hoisin sauce and pine nuts. Stir to mix well. Fold in the watermelon. Divide among the lettuce leaves, wrap and serve immediately.

Advertising Guidelines

The Mississippi Market Bulletin is published on the 1st and 15th of each month by the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce. The Mississippi Market Bulletin is an important way for the Department to disseminate news and information about issues affecting Mississippi's agriculture industry and the Department's operations.

Through its classified advertising section, the Bulletin provides a forum for Mississippi residents to buy and sell agricultural related items while also giving statewide exposure to small farmers who might not normally have the economic resources for such widespread advertising. The Bulletin does not publish commercial or display ads and all items offered for sale must have been produced, raised, grown or operated on the seller's property. Businesses, corporations, dealerships, brokers or other commercial enterprises are not allowed to advertise in the Mississippi Market Bulletin.

Advertising rules and guidelines have been established for the Mississippi Market Bulletin in order to comply with regulations enforced by the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce and to maintain the objectives of the publication. Proactive Steps Reduce Risk of Termite Damage

By Susan Collins-Smith
MSU Ag Communications

Seasonal termite swarms cause Blake Layton's phone to ring off the hook this time of year.

Layton, a Mississippi State University Extension Service entomologist, said all three major termite species in Mississippi mate from January through June in hopes of forming a new colony. Mating season is one of the rare times people see the secretive insects. Sightings often spark suspicion of an infestation.

"Termites swarm every year during this time. It's normal. It's what termites are supposed to do," said Layton, who is also an Extension professor in MSU's Department of Biochemistry, Molecular Biology, Entomology and Plant Pathology. "Just because termites are swarming near a structure does not mean there are termites in the structure."

That said, all Mississippians should take the threat of termites seriously. Eastern subterranean termites live all over the state and are the most common species. Southeastern drywood termites are the least common type and are found in the extreme southern counties of the state, mostly along US Highway 90. Formosan termites are an invasive species found in the southern half of the state.

"Every wooden structure in Mississippi is at risk of attack by termites," Layton said. "For most homeowners, it is not a matter of if termites will enter their home, but when."

Layton suggested homeowners throughout Mississippi keep a termite contract with a pest control company.

"By their nature, termites are very difficult to detect, and by the time homeowners see outward signs of an infestation, there could be thousands of dollars of damage," he said.

Initial termite treatment costs and annual renewal fees depend on the size of the home and type of foundation. Treatment costs can range from approximately $800 to several thousand dollars. Annual renewal fees can range from about $80 to several hundred dollars, Layton said.

"Initially it can be expensive, but treating a home before there is an infestation is much less expensive than having to correct the damage a colony of termites could cause over a year or two," he said.

Layton said contract terms vary depending on the company, and homeowners should read the contract carefully before signing it to make sure they understand the terms. Some companies cover termite damage done when the home is under contract, and others do not.

Formosan termites, which prefer warm, moist climates, pose additional risk to homeowners in the southern half of the state. Established colonies exist in 25 counties and continue to spread as far north as the Jackson area, Layton said.

Compared to Eastern subterranean termites, Formosan termites form larger colonies and are more aggressive feeders. Individual Formosan termites are also larger. All three factors allow them to consume more wood in less time than a colony of Eastern subterranean termites could.

Christian Stephenson, MSU Extension Service county coordinator in Hancock County, said his office receives several calls about termites each spring.

"A lot of our calls are from people who find dead termites inside their house," he said. "Formosan termites swarm at night, and they are attracted to light. Sometimes they find their way inside. If people find 15 or 20 in their living room one morning, they think they must have an infestation. But that usually isn't the case."

Stephenson said although Formosan termites can do more damage in a shorter amount of time than the state's native species, homeowners shouldn't panic if they suspect an infestation.

"If the home is under contract with a pest control company, call them and have them do an inspection," Stephenson said. "If the home is not under contract, it is okay to take a few weeks to get bids from several pest control companies and make the best decision for the individual situation.

"Professional monitoring and periodic treatments are extremely important," Stephenson said. "But homeowners also need to take additional steps to reduce their risk of termites entering the home."

These factors can increase the probability that termites will enter a structure:

- allowing soil, mulch, and leaves to get too high around the foundation;
- placing untreated wood products in close contact with the ground;
- disturbing the treated soil band around the home;
- allowing water to pool against the foundation; and
- piling wood or lumber against the structure.

Formosan termites arrived in New Orleans on cargo ships returning from East Asia after World War II. Mississippians first found them in 1984, and now Formosan termites inhabit more than 10 states.

For more information on termites, refer to Extension publication 2568, Protect Your House from Termites, or contact your county Extension office.

Field Day Showcases the White Sand Unit

By Bonnie Coblenz
MSU Ag Communications

Mississippi State University's beef cattle research unit in Pearl River County is hosting a summer field day August 13 to display results of ongoing research projects.

The White Sand Unit of the Mississippi Agricultural and Forestry Experiment Station is hosting the half-day event specifically designed for cattle and forage producers. The event begins at 9 a.m. and concludes with a provided lunch. The MSU Extension Service is also helping make this event possible.

Participants will be given a tour of the summer forage crops being grown on the research station and will have a chance to examine the herbicide and fertilizer test plots. Researchers will give an overview of the current projects at the station.

A highlight of the event will be the annual hay evaluation contest. Participants will evaluate weight and quality of two bales of hay from the Experiment Station's supply. Winners will receive prizes donated by Circle T Fertilizer and Seed Company in Poplarville.

The White Sand Unit is MSU's primary beef cattle research unit with about 150 mature cows. The beef cattle research is based on cow-calf production, which is the most common beef cattle enterprise in south Mississippi.

The White Sand Unit is located about 10 miles west of Poplarville on Highway 26. Contact Daniel Rivera at (601) 403-8777 or Larry Fitzgerald or Elsie Davis at (601) 795-4525 for more information.
