Hay Production and Management Program

By Rocky Lemus, PhD
Extension Forage Specialist
Mississippi State University

Hay is a stored feed widely used during winter feeding when grazeable forages are not available. In Mississippi, approximately 28% of the total forage production is harvested for hay. There are approximately 700,000 acres in hay production. Most of the hay production is dominated by bahiagrass and bermudagrass. Cow-calf producers, beef cattle stocker operators, dairy producers, and horse producers rely heavily on hay to provide an economical source of animal nutrition. To maintain their operations, producers are constantly striving to improve and balance both the productivity and economic efficiency of the available hay. Several key points to remember in considering the production, storage, feeding, and supplementation of hay include: species, fertility, weed control, hay management and quality evaluation.

Species – Yield and quality of different forages will have an effect on hay quality and production. Good quality forage can be produced from all of the legumes and grasses we grow in Mississippi, if they are harvested at the proper stage. But the “window of opportunity” for good quality forage is narrower for grasses than for legumes, because quality declines more rapidly in grasses. Forage quality usually declines more rapidly in the spring than it does in late summer, so a timely first harvest is important to achieve good quality.

Fertility – In the last five years, there have been an increase in the amount of fertilizer applied to pastureland in Mississippi, but the reality is that most of those applications are not based on soil test recommendation, which might lead to less nutrient use efficiency if pH and time of application are not managed correctly. High yields of hay remove large amounts of nutrients. It is recommended that hay fields should be soil tested annually and follow any lime and nutrient applications (nitrogen, phosphate, and potash) recommended by the soil test. Maintaining a proper pH will allow plants to increase nutrient uptake and minimize losses. Apply N according to how much forage you need to produce for your livestock.

Weed Control – Weeds compete with the desirable grasses for sunlight, water and nutrients, and some are toxic to cattle. Hay produced to sell will not have premium quality if it contains weeds. Chemicals are available to control weeds in hay fields, and they should be applied when weeds are young and tender.

Hay Management (harvest, conditioning, baling and storage) – Numerous factors impact the quality of hay actually consumed by livestock, including losses at harvest, baling, storing and feeding. Harvesting at proper stage of maturity (boot stage) will maintain quality components (especially protein and sugars). As forages advance from the vegetative to reproductive stage (seed), yields continue to increase, but forage quality deteriorates rapidly (high in fiber and low in protein, digestibility and palatability).

During baling and storage, moisture content is the worst enemy. It is recommended to harvest and bale when plants are about 18 to 20% moisture. Hay baled with higher moisture percentages can foster mold, resulting in loss, and in severe cases, damage as the accompanying heat can cause spontaneous combustion. Due to its importance, testing hay for moisture content is essential to the success for both the buyer and seller.

Quality Evaluation – There is a considerable amount of variation in hay composition even among bales that come from the same lot. A lot of hay is generally considered to be hay from the same cutting, field, species, variety, maturity stage and curing conditions that have been stored under similar conditions. Collecting a representative hay sample and having it analyzed is absolutely critical for obtaining accurate forage quality information [crude protein (CP), fiber (ADF and NDF), and total digestible nutrients (TDN)]. This quality information can be used to determine the type and amount of supplementation needed for the desired level of animal production

Hay production can be a complicated process. Yet producing high-quality hay should be a goal of each hay producer. Cutting hay at proper stage of maturity and moisture content and providing proper fertilization will allow livestock producers to get higher quality hay and reduce possible supplementation.

Don't Guess, Hay Test! Know what you are feeding and supplement with protein or energy when necessary. Starting with the proper quality forage, storing and feeding the hay correctly can result in an inexpensive, yet cost-effective winter feed that might increase animal performance. A successful hay production and utilization depends on the integration of harvest management, hay preservation, and quality analysis.

Coconut-Almond Granola

2/3 cup sugar
1/3 cup boiling water
1 cup nonfat dry milk
2 tablespoons corn syrup
2 1/2 cups rolled oats
1 cup wheat flakes
1/2 cup toasted wheat germ
1/4 cup chopped almonds
1/4 cup unsweetened shredded coconut
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons canola oil
1 cup raisins
1/2 cup pitted prunes, chopped
1/2 cup dried apricots, chopped

Dissolve sugar in boiling water in a medium bowl. Stir in dry milk and corn syrup and beat with an electric mixer until smooth and creamy, about 2 minutes. Cover and refrigerate for 1 hour or overnight. Preheat oven to 300° F. Combine oats, wheat flakes, wheat germ, almonds, coconut and salt in a large bowl. Add oil and the reserved milk mixture and mix thoroughly. Spread on a baking sheet. Bake the granola, stirring occasionally, until golden brown, 40 to 50 minutes. Stir in raisins, prunes and apricots. Bake for 5 minutes more. Let cool.

Toasted Quinoa Salad with Scallops & Snow Peas

12 ounces dry seas scallops, cut into 1/2 -inch pieces, or dry bay scallops
4 teaspoons reduced-sodium tamari, or soy sauce, divided
4 tablespoons plus 2 teaspoons canola oil, divided
1 1/2 cups quinoa, rinsed well
2 teaspoons grated or minced garlic
3 cups water
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup trimmed & diagonally sliced snow peas, (1/2 inch thick)
1/3 cup rice vinegar
1 teaspoon toasted sesame oil
1 cup thinly sliced scallions
1/3 cup finely diced red bell pepper
1/4 cup finely chopped fresh cilantro, for garnish

Toss scallops with 2 teaspoons tamari (or soy sauce) in a medium bowl; set aside. Place a large, high-sided skillet with a tight-fitting lid over medium heat. Add 1 tablespoon canola oil and quinoa. Cook, stirring constantly, until the quinoa begins to color, 6 to 8 minutes. Add garlic and cook, stirring, until fragrant, about 1 minute more. Add water and salt and bring to a boil. Stir once, cover and cook over medium heat until the water is absorbed, about 15 minutes (do not stir). Remove from the heat and let stand, covered, for 5 minutes. Stir in snow peas, cover and let stand for 5 minutes more. Meanwhile, whisk 3 tablespoons canola oil, the remaining 2 teaspoons tamari (or soy sauce), vinegar and sesame oil in a large bowl. Add the quinoa and snow peas, scallions and bell pepper; toss to combine. Remove the scallops from the marinade and pat dry. Heat a large skillet over medium-high until hot enough to evaporate a drop of water upon contact. Add the remaining 2 teaspoons canola oil and cook the scallops, turning once, until golden and just firm, about 2 minutes total. Gently stir the scallops into the quinoa salad. Serve garnished with cilantro, if desired.

Sugar Snap pea & Barley Salad

2 cups water
1 cup quick-cooking barley
8 ounces sugar snap peas, trimmed & sliced into matchsticks
1/2 cup chopped fresh flat-leaf parsley
1/4 cup finely chopped red onion
2 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
2 tablespoons lemon juice
3/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon freshly ground pepper

Bring water to a boil in a medium saucepan. Add barley and cook, covered, for 10 to 12 minutes, or according to package directions. Remove from the heat and let stand, covered, for 5 minutes. Rinse the barley under cool water and transfer to a large bowl. Add snap peas, parsley, onion, oil, lemon juice, salt and pepper, and toss to combine.

Roasted Red Peppers Stuffed with Kale & Rice

Peppers:
3 medium red bell peppers
1 tablespoon extra-virgin olive oil
1/4 teaspoon salt
Freshly ground pepper, to taste
Filling:
8 ounces kale (6 cups lightly packed), trimmed
1 tablespoon extra-virgin olive oil
1 medium onion, chopped
1/2 cup chopped red bell pepper
2 cloves garlic, minced
3/4 cup cooked short-grain brown rice
1/2 cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese
1/4 cup toasted pine nuts, divided
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/4 teaspoon salt
Freshly ground pepper, to taste

To prepare peppers: Preheat oven to 400° F. Halve peppers lengthwise through the stems, leaving them attached. Remove the seeds. Lightly brush the peppers outside and inside with oil; sprinkle the insides with salt and pepper. Place cut-side down, in a 9-by13-inch baking dish. Bake until peppers are just tender, 10 to 15 minutes. Let cool slightly. Turn cut-side up. To prepare the filling: Bring 2 cups salted water to a boil in a large wide pan. Stir in kale, cover and cook until tender, 10 to 12 minutes. Drain, rinse under cold water; squeeze dry and finely chop. Heat oil in a large nonstick skillet over medium heat. Add onion and chopped bell pepper; cook, stirring often, until onion is golden, 6 to 8 minutes. Add garlic and cook, stirring, for 30 seconds. Stir in the kale. Remove from the heat and let cool slightly. Stir in rice, Parmesan cheese, 2 tablespoons pine nuts and lemon juice. Season with salt and pepper. Divide the filling among the pepper halves. Sprinkle with the remaining 2 tablespoons pine nuts. Add 2 tablespoons water to the baking dish. Cover the peppers with foil and bake until heated through, 15 to 20 minutes. Uncover and bake for 5 minutes more. Serve hot.

Dixie Challenge - Clinic for Wounded Service Men and Women

By Gay McCann
Mississippi Quarter Horse Youth Association

The Mississippi Quarter Horse Youth Association votes each year on an organization/charity that they would like to participate and/or contribute funds. This year the youth selected the Jinx McCain Horsemanship Fund through the Semper Fi Program. The youth chose the Jinx McCain Horsemanship Program because it relates to what each of them hold dear, their love for their horses and the friendships made with fellow horse lovers.

This program provides riding and horsemanship clinics for the wounded service member across the nation. The youth held several fundraisers throughout the past eight months to contribute to this program but also agreed to help sponsor the inaugural Dixie Challenge held in Canton, Miss., on April 23-26, 2015.

The Dixie Challenge was a huge success with 16 veterans from all across the United States who came to participate in the clinic. The clinic started on Friday with a horsemanship clinic under the direction of Tom McBeath. On Saturday, the clinic continued with a roping clinic under the direction of Jeff Chapman and a team ranch sorting clinic under the direction of Ricky Thaggard.

Pictured far left is John Mayer of Willow City, Texas, and on the far right is Mo Smith of North Carolina, both with the Jinx McCain Horsemanship Program which is sponsored by the Semper Fi Fund and the Mississippi Quarter Horse Youth members and parents.

Numerous volunteers offered their time and their horses for this event, which would not have been possible without everyone involved.

Each of the youth members have come away from this clinic and this experience with the greatest honor to have been involved in a program like the Jinx McCain Horsemanship Program, as well as the opportunity to help and interact with individuals who have fought for the freedom we have as Americans. As the day came to a close on Sunday, talk began about plans for making this an annual event, and immediately, the youth one-by-one would say, "count me in, this has been the best."

The Mississippi Quarter Horse Youth would like to send out a special thank you to all that had a part in the clinic whether you helped with the clinics, brought your horses, helped with the food, gave monetary contribution, or just came for moral support. Thank You!

Unplugged

By Lise Foy, Director
MS Agriculture & Forestry Museum

As a child of the 80's, I remember well a time before cell phones. I remember Daddy renting a VCR so we could watch a movie on our TV. We had an antenna you turned manually to tune in to different stations. My brothers and I played video games on an Atari. My oldest brother had an 8-track tape player mounted under the dash board in his truck. We played 45's on our record players.

A few weeks ago, my brothers and I were talking about growing up together, telling stories about things we did together and to each other. We can tell lots of stories involving bicycles and removal of training wheels. None of our childhood stories involve the internet, cell phones, or dish TV. We are not that old, but our stories must sound like ancient times to our children, who range in age from eighteen to almost two. They cannot imagine life without cell phones!

We were fortunate to have grown up on a small farm in Mississippi, where we could spend our summers outside, in the dirt or in the pond, until the sun went down or until Daddy whistled for us to come to the house. That whistle is amazing too; even today, in a crowded place, anywhere, if we hear a loud whistle, our ears perk up, and we look to see if we are being called.

Today, we are all so 'connected', attached to our devices. It is hard to put them down. So hard, in fact, Mississippi had to pass a law to make us put them down so we can drive our cars. I hear that we are so attached to our cell phones and that we touch them more than anything else in our possession, and therefore they carry more germs than anything else we may come in contact with on a daily basis. There is something to think about.

There is a group out there who support something called the Slow Movement, slow food, slow living, who feel a collective need to fight back against our increasingly fast-paced way of living. There is a National Day of Unplugging. Ironically, there is an app for that too!

Way back when, God said, "On the seventh day thou shalt rest." The meaning behind it was simple: Take a break. Call a timeout. Find some balance. Recharge. Somewhere along the line, however, this mantra for living faded from modern consciousness. The idea of unplugging every seventh day now feels tragically close to impossible.

The Ag Museum has an invitation for you. Unplug and rediscover real fun. Not to say cell phones aren't fun, but real, as in tangible, authentic, in-person experiences. The kind you have when you have an uninterrupted meal with your family or read a book to your child. The Mississippi Ag Museum offers the rare opportunity to encounter real farm-life culture through interactive activities, special programs, exhibits and tours.

Rediscover your history; learn about Mississippi culture and agriculture. The Ag Museum houses one of a kind things like the Bisland Cotton Gin, the oldest operating cotton gin in the United States, and an Ag Cat airplane with serial number x-1, the first of its kind.

We also invite you to Unplug and volunteer. We are always looking for volunteers who are willing to share their knowledge, learn a new craft they can demonstrate to our visitors, or engage in crucial behind-the-scenes opportunities. By volunteering, you can make history come alive for our visitors. Available volunteer needs include gardeners, quilters, printers, docents, musicians, and various craftsmen. There are currently four volunteer orientation sessions scheduled for May 16, June 20, July 18, and August 15. All begin at 10:00 a.m. Contact Theresa Love or Amie Clark at 601-432-4500 to sign up!

Cell phones are here to stay. New devices are coming that we are certain to 'need.' I accept this and embrace it most days. My cell phone is my calendar, rolodex, grocery list, radio, record player, camera, road map, calculator, meteorologist, recipe book, checkbook register, internet browser, and anything else on the green earth I may 'need.' But, rest assured, while my girls will grow up with this ever-changing technology, they will also Unplug on a regular basis to play in the mud, swim in the pond, and experience real fun.

The Ag Museum is located at 1150 Lakeland Drive in Jackson and is open Monday through Saturday from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. In addition to our gallery and exhibit spaces, the Ag Museum also has room for your event, whether it's a meeting, a wedding or other special event. Call (601) 432-4500 for information.

If you would like to make a donation to the 'Raising the Barn' campaign, make checks payable to the Mississippi Agriculture Museum Foundation, 1150 Lakeland Drive, Jackson, MS 39216.

Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey® presents Built to Amaze! Entertained Visitors and Made Presentation at Ag Museum

By Chaille Clements
Communications and
Marketing Specialist - MDAC

On April 23, Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey® presents Built to Amaze! presented Commissioner of Agriculture and Commerce Cindy Hyde-Smith with a golden hard hat and a $500 contribution as the Mississippi Agriculture and Forestry Museum begins the process of rebuilding and improving the campus following last November's fire that destroyed the Children's Barnyard, along with the Veterinary Infirmary and maintenance shop. "We are thrilled to be teaming up with a world-class act such as the Ringling Brothers to bring awareness to the Ag Museum's cause. We had a setback with the fire last year, but we are on the road to recovery and aiming to restore everything that was lost and more ensuring that the museum is as educational and exciting as possible for all visitors," said Commissioner Hyde-Smith.

This unique collaboration was formed in order to bring awareness to the museum's fundraising efforts. "Properties that play in Jackson are proud to contribute to the rebuilding efforts of the Mississippi Agriculture and Forestry Museum. It is in the best interest of all of Jackson to be a part of this in any way they can, no matter how small or how large in order to continue to bring entertainment into the community creating jobs, additional revenue for the city, and restore a historic landmark for future generations," said Chad Ballard, Promoter: Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey® presents Built To Amaze! and All Feld Entertainment, Inc.

Ringmaster Andre McClain and several performers from Ringling Bros. Circus were onsite to entertain visitors before the presentation. This event kicked off a full weekend of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey® presents Built to Amaze! held at the Mississippi Coliseum in Jackson.

Anyone who wishes to make contributions and donations to assist with rebuilding efforts and future improvements needs to make checks payable to the Ag Museum Foundation, 1150 Lakeland Drive, Jackson, MS 39216 or call 601-432-4500 for more information.

MSU Alum Becomes New Cattle Association Executive

By Linda Breazeale
MSU Ag Communications

Andy Berry of Magee has been selected to lead the Mississippi Cattlemen's Association as the organization's new executive vice president.

A 1998 graduate of Mississippi State University, Berry has been active in cattle programs since he began showing polled Herefords in the Lawrence County 4-H program. He was a charter member of the Mississippi Junior Cattlemen's Association.

"This is a once in a lifetime opportunity to support the industry I love," Berry said. "I have appreciated and benefitted from my predecessors -- Jim Newsome and Sammy Blossom -- and I would like to make a similar impact on the association and the industry in the coming years."

Berry said one of his goals is to grow the association's membership.

"Mississippi has more than 15,000 cattle farms but only 3,300 members in the association," he said. "We also need to reach out to nonproducers who support the industry and the issues we support, such as property rights and animal welfare issues. We need to be supportive of all animal agriculture and the way of life that it entails. We need to be sure consumers know in addition to its great taste, beef is a healthy and good source of protein."

Dr. Harold Newcomb, a veterinarian in the Batesville area, is president of the Mississippi Cattlemen's Association. He said Berry embodies the total package for the organization.

"Andy has the background with the industry and with the organization," Newcomb said. "He has a great personality and is an excellent communicator. He has a firm understanding of the cattle business on the state and national levels."

Newcomb said all of the candidates were exceptional, but Berry stood out.

"Our organization is made up of families, and Andy is very family oriented," he said. "His two young sons are following in his footsteps with interests in cattle shows. Andy and his wife stay very busy with their sons' activities."

Newcomb said Berry will be a strong leader for the organization.

"We see Andy as someone who can guide our membership through the issues impacting the industry," he said. "He also will work well with the Mississippi Beef Council as its executive vice president."
