High Season Begins for Agritourism Industry

By Robert Nathan Gregory
MSU Extension Service

Mississippi is one of many states to proclaim October as Agritourism Month, but the industry's peak season has already begun in earnest.

Katie Robinson, owner of Bull Bottom Farms in Montgomery County and president of the Mississippi Agritourism Association, opened her family farm's seventh annual fall festival to the public September 23. She and her husband, Nic, a row crop producer, will host families, students and church groups for the next five weekends.

"We love agritourism and what it has done for our family," she said. "Agritourism is an asset to the state because it provides a good, safe environment for kids, groups and families to come see what farms are all about."

The farm features several attractions seen at many Mississippi agritourism sites, including a corn maze, a pumpkin patch and live animals. The family has worked to incorporate a wide range of activities to entertain families. Among those are a magic carpet slide, a hay ride and pig races. They've added two new activities this year: a corn cannon and a catfish feeding pier.

"Nic grew up on this farm, and about eight years ago, we were looking for a way to move back home. He wanted to farm with his father but knew there was no way row crop production alone could support two families, so we started researching ways to diversify the farm to make it produce more income," Robinson said. "We took a leap of faith, I quit my sales job, and we moved back to Mississippi. That's how Bull Bottom Farms was born."

The Mississippi State University Extension Service supports the state's growing agritourism industry. Extension began making a push in 2005 to encourage Mississippi producers to create activities that attract visitors to rural areas while educating the public about the importance of agriculture.

Rachael Carter, an economic development specialist with the MSU Extension Center for Government and Community Development, said incorporating agritourism adds a welcome element to local revenue streams.

"Agritourism is a way to diversify farm revenues, educate people about our food production, and create a sense of connection between local farms and our communities," she said. "Extension is working on creating a brand for agritourism, and we are offering a marketing and branding workshop in December to showcase agritourism and local foods efforts working together."

Sylvia Clark, Extension associate for family and consumer sciences, noted the economic benefits and the educational value that agritourism offers the state.

"People who have opened their farms to the public in Mississippi have done a great job of including entertaining activities for children, and those experiences can't be had just anywhere," Clark said. "In addition to being fun for children, these sites show them the direct link between the food they eat and where that food comes from. It sounds simple, but a lot of children do not understand that link. Seeing an operating farm firsthand fosters an appreciation for the work our producers put in to feed the state and the world."

To Robinson, family farms that offer an agritourism component give children the chance to disconnect from electronic devices and get exercise.

The only reason you need a phone at our farm is to take pictures and capture moments you will never want to forget," she said. "Bring your kids to one of these farms and let them see how wonderful it feels to be outside and actually be worn out from too much fun. Anything that encourages them to put down their phones and get outside is good, and the fact that they are picking a day on the farm over a day of staring at a screen is a win for them and the producers."

Delicious Fall Recipes

Hearty Lentil Soup

- 3 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 1 1/2 cups onion, finely chopped
- 1 tablespoon garlic, very finely minced
- 1 heaping cup carrots, finely diced
- 1 1/2 cups sweet potato, peeled and finely diced
- 1 cup celery, finely diced
- 16 ounces lentils, rinsed, drained and sorted
- 1 15-ounce can petite diced tomatoes
- 1 1/2 - 2 teaspoons Italian seasoning
- 1 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 6 cups lower-sodium vegetable broth
- 3 cups water
- 4 cups collard greens, packed, stems trimmed and chopped
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice

Heat oil in a large (5-quart or larger) stockpot over medium-high heat. Add onions, garlic, carrots, sweet potato and celery. Cook, stirring frequently, until just tender. Stir in lentils, diced tomatoes, Italian seasoning, pepper, salt, broth and water. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer 35 to 45 minutes or until lentils are tender. Stir in collard greens and lemon juice, and simmer an additional 10 minutes or until greens are desired doneness.

Quick Pear and Cranberry Crostata

- 1 9-inch pie shell
- 4 ripe pears, peeled, cored and sliced
- 2 cups fresh cranberries
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/3 cup all-purpose flour
- 1 cup semi-sweet chocolate chips
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 tablespoon Turbinado or raw sugar

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Roll pastry into a 12-inch circle and place on a baking sheet. Place chocolate chips in the center, fanning out into about an 8-inch circle. In a large bowl, toss together pears, cranberries, sugar, flour and salt. Spoon the mixture over the chocolate chips, leaving two to three inches on the perimeter. Fold the edges toward the center of the crostata, leaving the fruit in the center exposed. Be sure there are no holes in the pastry or the fruit juice will make a mess. Dot crostata with butter and sprinkle with Turbinado sugar. Bake for 30-40 minutes, until golden and bubbly.

Cranberry Apple Punch

- 2 cups apple cider
 - 2 cups ginger ale
 - 2 cups cranberry juice
 - 1 cup frozen cranberries
- Combine all ingredients and pour over ice.

Maple Apple Pork Medallions

- 1 1/2 cups apple cider or 100% apple juice
- 3 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1/4 cup pure maple syrup
- 2 tablespoons apple cider vinegar
- 2 teaspoons stone-ground mustard
- 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/4 teaspoon allspice
- 1 pork tenderloin (1 - 1 1/4 pounds), cut into 8 medallions
- 1 tablespoon canola oil
- 2-3 apples, cored and sliced

In a medium bowl, whisk apple cider or juice with cornstarch. Add maple syrup, vinegar, mustard, pepper, cinnamon and allspice, and whisk until thoroughly blended; set aside. In a large (12-inch) skillet over medium-high heat, heat oil. Add pork medallions and brown on each side for two minutes. Continue cooking four to six minutes, or until pork reaches 145 degrees when checked in the middle with a meat thermometer. Remove medallions to a plate and cover to keep warm. Add spiced maple mixture to skillet and bring to a boil, stirring frequently. Add apple slices, stir well, cover and reduce heat to medium-low. Cook four to six minutes, stirring occasionally, until apples begin to soften but are still firm. Add pork medallions back to skillet and warm additional one to two minutes.

Roasted Cauliflower and Butternut Squash

- 2 medium butternut squash, peeled
- 1 head cauliflower
- 1 red onion, peeled
- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon fresh thyme leaves
- 1/2 teaspoon red pepper flakes

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Cut squash, cauliflower and onion into 1-inch chunks. Toss with olive oil, salt, thyme leaves and red pepper flakes until well combined. Spread evenly on large cookie sheet with sides. Roast for about 30 minutes, until caramelized.

ARTIFACTS

DO YOU KNOW WHAT THIS ARTIFACT IS?
(TURN UPSIDE DOWN FOR ANSWER)

Although this is clearly a wedge, that would only be halfway correct. This wooden wedge is called a "glut". "Gluts" and metal "wedges" were interchangeable, and were primarily used to split wood. However, as metal became more common, the name "glut" vanished, adopting its metal counterpart's name.

Through its classified advertising section, the Bulletin provides a forum for Mississippi residents to buy and sell agricultural related items while also giving statewide exposure to small farmers who might not normally have the economic resources for such widespread advertising. The Bulletin does not publish commercial or display ads and all items offered for sale must have been produced, raised, grown or operated on the seller's property. Businesses, corporations, dealerships, brokers or other commercial enterprises are not allowed to advertise in the Mississippi Market Bulletin.

Cattle Prices Falter Despite Good News

By Linda M. Breazeale
MSU Extension Service

News that China is lifting a 13-year import ban on U.S. beef is not helping prices as much as some cattlemen would have hoped.

Brian Williams, agricultural economist with the Mississippi State University Extension Service, said the news has not resulted in any long-term impact on cattle markets.

"China was already importing beef from the U.S., primarily on the black market through neighboring countries," he said. "The only difference we may see is a shifting in the destination of our exports, with more going directly to China and less going to its neighbors that would have otherwise ended up in China anyway."

China initially put the ban in place after a cow in the U.S. tested positive in 2003 for Bovine spongiform encephalopathy, commonly known as mad cow disease. The Chinese government was slow to lift the ban.

Williams said reports recently released by the U.S. Department of Agriculture suggest that cattle supplies are strong. The Cattle on Feed report provides the total number of cattle heading to slaughter in the U.S. as of Sept. 1. It also gives the total number of cattle placed on feed in August and the total number of cattle going to slaughter in August.

"Placements totaled almost 1.9 million head, an increase of just over 15 percent from the previous year," he said. "Cattle marketed in August totaled 1.868 million head, up 17.63 percent compared to last year."

Williams said the large year-over-year increases in placements and numbers going to market could startle industry watchers.

"When we dig a little deeper, there

Cattle benefit from good pasture management that minimizes weed development during dry periods and helps pastures ahead of the dormant season. These beef cattle were photographed on the Mississippi State University H.H. Leveck Animal Research Center near Starkville on September 29, 2016. (Photo by MSU Extension Service/Kevin Hudson) were two extra business days in August 2016 compared to August 2015. Those extra days make up a significant chunk of the increase in volume," he said.

Williams said Mississippi's 500- to 600-pound feeder steers are averaging $1.17 per pound, which is quite a bit lower than a year ago, when they were trading for $1.95 per pound. Feeder cattle futures are following a similar trend, with November feeder cattle futures trading for $1.23 per pound compared to $1.81 a year ago.

Brandi Karisch, Extension beef cattle specialist, said when prices go down, producers should become more committed to best management practices. These practices include improved genetics, backgrounding calves before sale, and preconditioning, which includes vaccinating and deworming cattle, as well as castrating bull calves.

"When the markets are strong, all cattle typically sell well, but when prices waver, the quality cattle are more valuable, and the price separation becomes wider," Karisch said.

As winter approaches, cattle producers turn their attention to forage concerns. Most of the state has had ample rain for pasture growth and hay production.

"We have drought conditions in some areas, primarily Monroe County and the counties surrounding it," she said. "Those producers are facing a shortage of grass going into the dormant period. Fescues and ryegrasses are not coming up yet, and that will hurt fall and winter grazing that they typically depend on."

Mississippi beef cattle and calves had a $448 million value of production in 2015. Beef was the state's fourth largest agricultural commodity, behind poultry, forestry and soybeans.

Project Helps Strengthen Local Foods Network

By Susan M. Collins-Smith
MSU Extension Service

Mississippi food producers, buyers, economic developers and marketing professionals can attend an upcoming session of the Local Foods Resource Mapping Project to help strengthen the state's local food network. Mississippi is one of six states hosting the pilot project aimed at connecting people interested in the growing farm-to-table movement. Other participating states are Alaska, Arkansas, Arizona, Kentucky and North Carolina.

"Nationwide there are more and more requests for assistance related to local and regional food systems," said Chance McDavid, a community and economic development specialist with the Mississippi State University Extension Service. "This project will help everyone involved get a better sense of the local foods infrastructure, identify gaps within the system, and explore potential entrepreneurial opportunities that may exist."

Sessions will function like focus groups to allow individuals and groups to share ideas and ask questions. Producers, restaurateurs, caterers, grocers, hospitals, transporters, distributors, wholesale buyers, cooperative managers, food pantries, university faculty, economic developers, farmers market managers, university and public school food service managers, and others can attend.

"Local food system development is also about economic and community development," said Leslie Hossfeld, project co-leader, professor and head of the MSU Department of So-ciology and founder of the Mississippi Food Insecurity Project. "This is an opportunity for people to participate in building a strong system for producers, buyers and consumers of locally grown foods in Mississippi."

Nine meetings are scheduled throughout the state:

- Oct. 19 in Jackson from 2 to 4:30 p.m.
- Oct. 20 in Hattiesburg from 9:30 a.m. to noon
- Oct. 21 in Gulfport from 9:30 a.m. to noon
- Oct. 24 in Greenwood from 2 to 4:30 p.m.
- Oct. 26 in Hernando from 2 to 4:30 p.m.
- Oct. 31 in Verona from 2 to 4:30 p.m.
- Nov. 2 in Oxford from 2 to 4:30 p.m.
- Nov. 4 in Corinth from 9:30 a.m. to noon
- Nov. 8 in Starkville from 2 to 4:30 p.m.

Registration is free and will close three days before each meeting. To see a listing of all scheduled sessions and to register, visit <http://www.tinyurl.com/msufoods>.

For more information, contact Chance McDavid at 601-857-2284 or chance.mcdavid@msstate.edu.

The Southern Rural Development Center teamed up with the MSU Extension Service, MSU Department of Agricultural Economics and MSU Department of Sociology to plan and host the meetings. The project is funded through the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Marketing Service and directed nationally by the Northeast Regional Center for Rural Development.
